The announced 1947 homestead opening on Coppeck bay covers only a portion—less than half—of the area there which is scheduled for entry.

Coppeck bay homesteading represents a direct homestead invasion of the so-called "sump" area in the Tulelake bottom.

Expanding Farm Land

LITTLE by little over the years, the reclamation bureau has carried on a program looking toward permanent cultivation of at least a part of the sump area.

Tule lake represents an outstanding success among the reclamation bureau's projects in the 11 western states.

Passing On Right

SINCE South Sixth was developed into a four-lane highway, there has been considerable speculation and some confusion among motorists about the question of passing on the right out there.

Passing on the right hand side is legal on the four-lane sections of South Sixth. The rule provides, however, that any driver switching from one lane to the other should do so with proper signaling and assurance that it can be done safely.

"Slow-moving vehicles should keep to the right-hand (outside) lanes, and signs advising that procedure have been placed along the street.

That's the set-up, as advised by both city and state police in whose jurisdiction the street lies.

High Prices Or Not, The Working Man Is Better Off

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—Is the working man better off in a period of high prices, such as now?

My father, who was a small business man and a part-time philosopher, thought so.

"A man's got to have something in his pockets that jingles," he would say.

During his lifetime dad had a series of grocery stores. He always set up business in working class neighborhoods.

"A working man will pay his grocery bill because he has to eat to keep on working," he explained.

"But groceries aren't so important to well-to-do people. They pay liquor bills or buy a new automobile before they think of settling for their food."

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—A republican leader in New England (former Willie demo) says Governor Dewey will not get a convention delegate in his whole area.

All this talk, however, ignores Joe Martin, the house speaker, who has been chosen legally by congress as next in line for the Truman chair.

They say it was well contrived because the New York governor went to the places where he knew he would be well received, and avoided the areas where his welcome might not achieve the best publicity.

Then Harold Stassen, the career candidate, came forward with what he had been indicating privately, namely a suggestion that the republicans should consider only candidates who have taken public stands on public national questions (which Dewey largely had not).

The emerging of Senator Taft into this candidatorial situation at his Columbus celebration, thus had a greater significance than was given it. Taft's radio broadcast there, is being called around Washington his "speech of acceptance" (although he said he would let Ohioans know definitely when he came back from his vacation).

Taft is a remarkable worker, and hair will surely fly. He worked almost day and night to get the congressional session ended, and then doubled his work on the following Sunday in his office, so he could get away Monday.

The first strong fight for the republican presidential nomination in 27 years certainly seems to be developing.

The last time I helped out in dad's store was 15 years ago. I had just finished college, but it took more than a sheepskin to land a job in the summer of 1932.

Mother didn't like the idea of sonny boy going back behind a grocery counter with all that expensive education, but dad said:

"Maybe he can learn something there the professors didn't teach him."

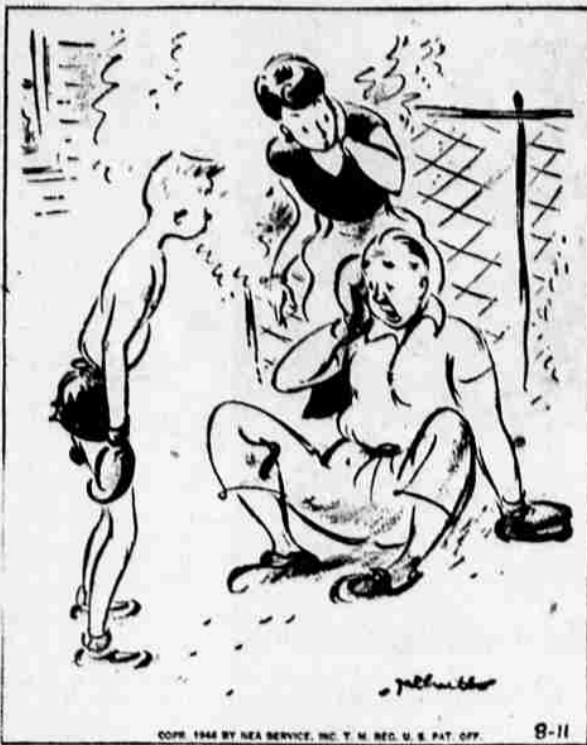

So he put me to work passing out sale handbills around the neighborhood. Dad had a theory you should advertise twice as much when business slumped. In the afternoon I came back to the store and helped wait on customers during the late shopping rush.

In those depression days we

A general information blurb was thrown on my desk the other day which contained a very interesting item. It seems ABC has signed the comedy team of Abbot and Costello to a five-year contract under very odd terms.

Sponsorship of the show, to be transcribed in Hollywood each week will be made available to local merchants, or anyone else for that matter who has the dough, on a basis somewhat resembling the plan used on the Bing Crosby Philco series.

State Demo Row Stalled

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 11 (AP)—The dispute between the state democratic central committee offices and National Committeeman Lew Wallace over organization of the committee was stalemated today.

Henry Aiken, Heppner, former chairman of the state committee, has refused to call a new election of officers despite Wallace's citing a letter from the attorney general's office that the election May 17 was invalid.

Byron G. Carney, Milwaukie, elected chairman at the May session, has accused Wallace of playing into the hands of the Oregon republican party to disrupt the democratic organization. He said Wallace was a "republican."

Aiken said "Carney has been recognized in Washington, D. C. (by the democratic national committee). I wouldn't ask anybody to come in again and spend their money just to humor Wallace."

Wallace demanded a new election on the basis of a letter from the attorney general's office stating that 76 members are needed for a quorum and that the proxy votes should have been admitted.

Bad Time Ends Well

SEATTLE, Aug. 11 (AP)—Four emergency landings which he had made for practice only a few minutes before came in handy yesterday for Robert G. Lyons, 19-year-old former radio aircrewman.

The young navy veteran, with only 30 hours of solo time to his credit, dead-sticked his small plane through a skein of telephone wires to land safely on a Seattle residential street shortly after the plane's engine went dead at 1500 feet.

Skimming over a crest of a hill, he stalled over one set of wires, dropped under another, landed on the paved street, swerved twice to miss parked cars and then swung onto a lawn to miss a running pedestrian. The plane's nose stopped six feet from the front porch of a residence.

Marauding Hawks Shot Down

YONKERS, N. Y., Aug. 11 (AP)—Elderly women residents of the New York Guild for Jewish Blind could sun themselves in their garden today with little fear that they again would be molested by hawks that several times last week swooped down and pecked at them.

Police said a man living near the home shot one of the pair of hawks Saturday, and since then its mate has avoided the vicinity of the home.

Police Lt. Arthur Rowland theorized that the white hair of the women attracted the birds.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The sensational nature of England's economic crisis, involving as it does the great experiment in socialism, naturally centers world attention on her. But we shouldn't allow ourselves to be misled into regarding this as solely a British disaster.

Most certainly it is one of the momentous international developments of the post-war period. Upon Britain's degree of success in dealing with this emergency must depend largely whether the western democracies are able to hold their own against the westward sweep of an aggressive, empire building communism.

England's bad luck is a stroke of rare good fortune for the red bloc and its world revolution. Should the crisis worsen and be protracted, it might prove to be the Samson whose strength would topple the pillars of the already shaky politico-economic structure of Western Europe.

Weakened France An already terribly weakened France would find it difficult, if not impossible, to keep her feet under such circumstances. French Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier in a speech yesterday attacked the aspirations of communism which he said tried through propaganda to change the meaning of the word "democracy."

Prime Minister Attlee declared yesterday Britain is "certain of victory," and the consensus of observers seems to be that this forecast is warranted. However, none can say at this juncture how long the unfortunate country must struggle along the tortuous trail of harsh depression before it finally comes out upon the broad highway to recovery. Attlee himself minced no words over the seriousness of the position.

"We have to face now," he said, "before we have recovered from the effects of a long war, and before our long-term plans have taken effect, the necessity of relying entirely on our own resources. This is a situation as serious as any that has faced us in our long history. We must, therefore, act vigorously and drastically."

Huge National Effort The prime minister called on the country for a national effort comparable to that which was developed during the war. An estimated ten million radio listeners heard him proclaim:

"We cannot rest upon the help which our fellow members of the commonwealth have been and are giving so generously, and even though plans may be put forward by our friends in America to help bring prosperity back to Europe, we must stand on our own feet."

That is a realistic approach to a tough problem, but there are certain imponderables to be dealt with. One of them is the strength of Attlee's leadership, which is being questioned by some of his own followers, especially the extreme left-wingers. It's quite possible that the economic crisis may be complicated by a political imbroglio.

A sizeable rift has developed over the question of nationalizing the country's great steel industry. This nationalization was on the socialist election platform but things haven't gone well because of powerful opposition from the steel interests.

The left wingers insist on carrying out the program, and the political writer of the London Daily Express says major changes in the government may result.

The next few months are going to be crucial in the battle of England (and other hard hit countries of Western Europe) for economic recovery. That means this period is

Army Officers Visit Boeing Plant. SEATTLE, Aug. 11 (AP)—Two of the army's outstanding fliers and one of Boeing's most famous off-springs arrived here last night after a 10-hour non-stop 2400-air-mile flight from Washington, D. C. The fliers were Col. D. S. Irvine, assistant chief of staff for the army air forces strategic air command, and Lt. Col. Albert F. Lasseter, operations officer for the 43rd bomber group—here to make a two-day inspection of B-50 bombers being built for the army. The plane was the Pactus Dreamboat which Irvine took on a record-breaking flight from Honolulu across the arctic ice cap to Cairo, Egypt, and which Lasseter recently piloted to break two closed course distance and speed records.
