Crest Slated To Hit Salem Late Today

flood level. The city itself was not endangered.

Portland, where the Willamette empties into the Columbia, is expected to get the crest tomorrow, and 20 carloads of merchandise were being moved from the lowest waterfront terminal. It will be covered at the one-foot-above-flood-stage forecast.

Main highways and secondary roads throughout the flood areas were either kept open on a one-way basis or closed entirely. U. S. highway 99 was under water on both its east side and west side routes at mid-Willamette valley points. The Oregon Coast highway was closed south of Coquille but there was likelihood of its reopening late today. Elsewhere slides and water plagued motorists and disrupted bus schedules. The Union Pacific reported its trains getting through but Southern Pacific tracks were blocked by a slide near Dunsmuir, Calif. Throughout Southern Oregon the trains were reducing speed over bridges and trestles. The SP expected to add a shuttle train today between Salem and West Salem because the lower highway bridge will be covered by the Willamette.

Damage estimates—not yet attempted—will include badly eroded Eastern Oregon and Washington wheatlands.

Blaze Guts Old Building

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8 (AP)—A raging fire that shot flames hundreds of feet into the air gutted the upper stories of historic Turner hall, on the edge of uptown Cincinnati, early today.

The five-story, brick and frame building, once used as a drill post for the Army of the Republic, now houses the Turner's Athletic association bowling alleys and gymnasium. A U. S. postal sub-station occupies the first floor.

The top three floors were gutted, firemen said.

Every piece of Cincinnati fire department aerial equipment was brought to the scene shortly after 3 a. m. (EST). The fire was reported under control about 90 minutes later.

There was no immediate estimate of damage.

This Guy Has Got Something

TOKYO, Jan. 8 (AP) — The Nippon Times, in a feature story reporting Emperor Hirohito's efforts to "humanize" himself, said today among other things:

". . . It is not everybody who can take a fan between his toes and fan himself. Not only can Emperor Hirohito perform this stunt, but he is able to do so while swimming. He can also swim in the rain holding an open umbrella in one hand."

Furniture Store Slated In Tule

TULELAKE, Jan. 8—A license for operation of a furniture store has been issued by the city to Ray E. Welch and Wilbur D. Welch, Klamath Falls. The business will go into a new pumice tile building now under construction on the location of the former Farmer's club, damaged by fire several months ago and later torn down. Pat Murphy of Klamath, Calif., is owner of the building. City officials state that a glass shop will be opened in one room of the building but no details as to managership are yet available.

The furniture store will open about February 1.

National Guard Rushes To Rescue

PORTLAND, Jan. 8 (AP)—Thirty uniformed national guardsmen dashed from an assembly meeting to put out a barn fire in an isolated area near their air base headquarters last night.

Deputy Sheriff J. D. McMillan said the guards rolled to the fire scene in three army trucks "soldiers hanging on all sides." He added, "We got all wet, but they saved the barn."

Princess Anne To Go To Switzerland

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 8 (AP)—Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma will leave tomorrow with her parents for Lausanne, Switzerland, to join former King Mihai of Romania, a member of the royal household announced. Anne and Mihai are expected to be married soon.

In Bucharest, it was announced that the former king would be permitted to keep his yacht and private plane. A report there said the yacht, the Lucefarul, would leave Braila for Genoa, Italy, as soon as travel papers are obtained for the party of 12 to sail aboard her.

Fox Hunters Hunting Their Foxhounds

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 8 (AP)—The newly organized United Steel and Wire company Fox Hunting club turned its attention today from hunting foxes to hunting hounds.

The 60 members bought two hounds, valued at $200 and noted for their fox-hunting ability.

Tuesday they went a-hunting for the first time. They sighted a fox and the baying hounds took off "like they were jet-propelled," according to Club President Oliver Parlin.

The dogs haven't been seen since. Neither has the fox.

Hope Dims For Return Of Battleship Oregon To State

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP)—Rep. Angell (R-Ore.) said today there is little chance that the hull of the historic Battleship Oregon that sped around the horn in 1898 to take a major part in sinking the Spanish fleet at Santiago, Cuba, could ever be returned to his state.

At the outbreak of the second World War the battleship, then a patriotic shrine at Portland, where Oregon maintained it as a museum, was sold for scrap. She was completely dismantled and the hull towed to Guam, where the navy planned to use it in blocking harbors used by Japanese if that became necessary.

The hull was not used for that purpose and is now rusting away near the island.

"I have urged the navy ever since it took the Oregon for scrap to return it to Portland," Angell said. "I have been told it would cost more to recondition the old battleship than to build a new one and that the proposal to bring the hull to Portland is not practicable.

"I am sorry that is the condition, for the old ship was a patriotic shrine visited by thousands of school children every year. The state of Oregon spent more than $100,000 in fixing the berthing place for the battleship and it was the headquarters for all patriotic events."

The Oregon made her dash around the horn when the Spanish fleet was bottled up in Santiago harbor. She made the 14,000-mile trip at an average speed of 11.6 knots per hour and reached Santiago on July 1.

The Spanish fleet attempted to escape from the harbor two days later and the Oregon went into action. She forced the Spanish Battleship Maria Theresa, one of the most powerful in the world at that time, onto the rocky shore and forced the Almirante Oquindo to run onto the beach. She then sent shot from one of her thirteen-pounders into the stern of the Colon, bringing about its surrender.

The navy planned to use the old ship for a target after the first World War but protests caused it to turn the vessel over to Oregon on July 3, 1925, the anniversary of the battle of Santiago.

Kleppen Clue Turned Up

Milton Kleppen, who disappeared from his home in Merrill in March, 1947, and has not been back since, was alive and in Klamath Falls on August 12, Deputy Sheriff Jack Franey said Tuesday.

On that date he was supposed to have been here and paid a premium on a life insurance policy. Franey said he received a call this morning from an undisclosed person, in answer to recent news stories about Kleppen's disappearance, and received proof that the ex-soldier was here August 12.

However, he did not go to his home in Merrill. Kleppen left Merrill March 23 to open a store in Klamath, Calif., and was last seen in Crescent City March 26, until today's disclosure.

Revolt Rumor Said False

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 8 (AP)—Walter Jobim, governor of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, denied Tuesday by telephone from his capital at Porto Alegre that any revolutionary movement was under foot in Southern Brazil.

Jobin issued the denial when queried about rumors circulating in Montevideo that a revolt had broken out in the garrison at Rosario, about 50 miles north of the Uruguayan border.

The Uruguayan News agency Ani said the rumors started circulating after Brazilian troops had made their appearance in the border town of Santa Anna do Livramento. Ani quoted Brazilian authorities in Santa Anna as saying the troops had been ordered there because of the threat of a general strike.
