Power Shortage Biggest Problem

SEATTLE, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Pacific Northwest power shortage which "puts the brake on economic activity" is the most glaring danger signal ahead for public power, former U. S. Senator Hugh B. Mitchell said yesterday in a public power week address before the Washington Public Utility Commissioners' association.

Mitchell, president of the league for the Columbia valley authority, said a federal agency, working in the region and taking the region's needs as primary, provides the only assurance for coordinated promotion of the Northwest's maximum development.

Tropic Ills Move To U.S.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 (AP)—The prevalence of leprosy in areas where American troops were stationed makes appearance of "a few cases" after long incubation periods "almost inevitable," the Journal of the American Medical Association reported today.

The Journal mentioned this possibility in an editorial which forecast that various tropical fevers and other exotic diseases would turn up in areas in the United States where they formerly were rare or nonexistent.

"Exotic diseases now must be constantly expected," the Journal said. "Diseases probably most frequently met will be malaria, bacillary dysentery, amebiasis, filariasis, and intestinal protozoan infestations." It added that other rare tropical diseases were expected to occur in scattered numbers with probably a few cases of leprosy being recorded.
