GI Insurance Deadline Up

Oregon veterans now have until July 31 to restate their GI insurance without a physical examination, following a new extension of this deadline from last December 31. Patrick W. Kilby, veterans administration contact representative in Klamath Falls, reported today.

During the past 11 months, 13,179 ex-GI's of this state have received $89,443,500 worth of National Service Life Insurance, Kilby said. Large as this may seem, veterans in Washington more than doubled Oregon's mark, as 27,000 reinstated $184,000,000 of coverage.

Veterans whose health is as good as when their GI insurance lapsed may regain it with no more trouble than an application and paying two months' premiums. Even those who didn't carry service policies when they were in uniform can get them now.

Any amount from $1000 up to $10,000, in $500 multiples, may be retained. Term policy rates are the same as they were in service, and the added amounts paid on permanent types all go into cash reserve values, Kilby explained.

"One of the best service insurance references," he remarked, "is for any doubting ex-GI to talk it over with a World War I veteran who didn't keep his U.S.G.I."

Students Join Art Exhibit

One hundred and fifty entries for the state scholastic art exhibit in Portland will be sent from Klamath Falls schools before the deadline of January 10, it was announced by Robert B. Banister, Klamath Falls public schools art director. Location of the exhibit will be at Meier and Frank store, February 2 through February 12.

The Klamath entries will include every type of art — oils, charcoal, pastels, water colors, advertising, fashion and posters. Fifty of these will be from students of junior high age, and the remainder from elementary and high school students.

Banister is chairman of the Eastern Oregon division of the scholastic exhibit.

"We hope that all the other towns in Eastern Oregon will have entries in the show. It is a wonderful opportunity to encourage the talents of our students and further their careers," he said today.

Swimming Classes Started

Some 200 Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scouts jammed the high school swimming pool last night for their first swimming instruction meeting of the year.

Three separate classes are conducted during each of the swim meets, which are held twice monthly, and last night more than 200 girls took instruction in water lore during the course of the evening.

The three classes, each an hour in length, include the Bluebirds and Brownies, in the first class from 6:30 to 7:30, the intermediate Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scouts in the second session, from 7:30 to 8:30, and the senior Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls in the closing session from 8:30 to 9:30.

Last night's intermediate class, with about 100 girls, crowded into the shallow end of the pool.

The classes are arranged through the city recreation department and the board of education, and Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scout executives furnish instruction. Sam Smith, city recreation director, said last night that the postage-stamp dimensions of the pool greatly hamper instructional attempts of any kind, and pointed out that the crowded conditions in the pool last night bear testimony to the need of an adequate swimming pool in the city.

Ella Redkey, executive secretary of Klamath Falls Girl Scouts, and Virginia Denton, Camp Fire Girls director, supervise class instruction. Classes were formerly held once a month but were recently moved up to a twice-a-month basis.

The recreation department keeps the pool open from 1 to 9 p. m. on Saturdays, charging 10 cents admission from 1 to 5 p. m. and 25 cents from 5 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

Lumber Pay Talks Stalled

K. A. Gordon, business agent of the AFL Lumber and Sawmill workers of this area reported "no result" from yesterday's talk between a negotiating committee for the council and the Pine Industrial Relations committee.

A possible wage increase was the subject of discussion, which is not yet completed. The state council of AFL lumber and sawmill workers has recommended a 50-cent hourly pay boost in the industry.

At present the minimum pay in the pine industry here is $1.30 for sawmill and logging, $1.27 1/2 for box factory work.

A warranty deed is on file today at the courthouse transferring the one-third interest of Guy J. Hayden in the Alpha apartments, 7th and Pine, to William Serruys.

Revenue stamps indicate a transaction of about $50,000.

The building houses the Pine Street market and Derby's music store on the street floor, the apartments upstairs. The frontage is 120 feet on 7th street, 105 feet on Pine.

Cemetery Meeting Stated Thursday

Members of the city cemetery committee will meet Thursday, January 15, Mayor Ed Ostendorf announced today. The meeting was originally set for yesterday, Friday, but not a sufficient number of members attended to make a quorum.

Up for discussion will be the proposal to give burial plots without charge to Klamath Falls war dead.

Meteor Society Tries To Track Down Fireball Paths

The American Meteor society, whose president is Dr. C. P. Olivier of the University of Pennsylvania, is deeply interested in determining the heights, paths, and possible landing places of spectacular fireballs, which light up the night like day, are often quite noisy, and are seen from localities hundreds of miles apart. Sometimes newspaper requests for observers' accounts bring over 100 letters to the regional director of the society. The present writer received 517 reports on the twilight meteor seen over California and Nevada, November 29, 1945. The method of tracing will be described next week.

Although the meteor society undertakes to trace and publicize only very startling objects, we always

Rotary Book List Complete

The last shipment of the books given to the county library by the Rotary club has been received, completing the list of 139 books in the Rotarians' gift.

Many of the books have already seen much service and this list added to those already published in The Herald and News as received, completes a treasure of unusually good reading for children of Klamath county, County Librarian Eleanor Davis said today.

These are the books: Bronson, "Paddle Wings"; Cronell, "Beau Dore"; Hausman, "Illustrated Encyclopedia of American Wild Flowers"; Head, "Good King Wenceslaus"; Hogboom, "Boy's Book of the West"; Kraft, "Adventure in Jade"; Lewis, "Poetry For Two"; Miller, "This is Photography"; Newcomb, "The Secret Door"; Steinbeck, "The Red Pony"; Van Doren, "The Careless Clock"; Verrill, "Foods America Gave the World"; Verrill, "Minerals, Metals and Gems."

Juckeland Gets Contract

Juckeland Truck Sales and Service company's bid for chassis for school buses, the lowest of seven submitted to the Klamath county school district, was accepted Friday.

Bids were opened in the Veterans Memorial building Tuesday, revealing Juckeland's bid at $2424 each for 41-passenger International bus chassis, or two for $4848 and 65-passenger bus chassis for $2833 each and $5666 for two.

The bid was accepted for four bus chassis, two sizes, by the school district for a total of $10,514. Five of the remaining bids were submitted by local representatives for large motor companies and the other from a Prineville concern.

Bodies for the buses were not included in the bid and will be obtained from a chassis manufacturing concern. Large bus bodies are $3483 each and small ones at $2664. Delivery on the completed buses is hoped for by September so that they may be put in use for the fall term. J. S. Heyden, clerk for the county school district office, said.

Insulator Lack Holds Up Job

LAKEVIEW, Jan. 10 — Delivery of a carload of insulators is holding up completion of the new Lakeview-Alturas auxiliary power line, but with these promised for early next month, the line is expected to be in operation by the end of February, it was announced this week by Phil Quisenberry, assistant manager of the California Oregon Power company here.

The new line from Alturas will be used as an auxiliary to serve the Lake county area when the line from Klamath Falls is out of order, thus eliminating many of the long work stoppages due to power outage.

Other members who participated in the program included Past President Sam Ritchey, Haary Bechen, Frank Percival, Bill Duncan, Wally Larkin, Paul Matthews, Gene Bailey, Mark Smith, Keith Ambrose and Victor Phillips.

The size and scope of Rotary, its objectives, functions and procedures were the general topics of discussion, the principal purpose of the program being to further acquaint newer members with their organization. It was emphasized that Rotary International is now comprised of over 300,000 members in over 78 countries of the world.
