Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

HERE is a not generally realized fact:

The case-load of the Klamath county welfare bureau has advanced to approximately the 1940 level.

The December figure was 173 general assistance cases, as compared with 171 cases in 1940. The actual number of persons on general assistance, however, was 336 in December of 1947 as compared with 531 in 1940. There were more people per case eight years ago, which makes the present situation look somewhat better than it does when examining the bare case load statistics.

EPLEY

General assistance cases do not include old age assistance and children's cases. In general, the figures from the welfare office indicate a labor and unemployment situation about comparable with that which existed in 1940, before the wartime decline in unemployment that sent the Klamath county case load down to a low of 72 cases in December, 1943.

The fact this county has increased substantially in population since 1940 should also be taken into consideration in comparing the case load figures.

• • • •

Costs Up

THE cost per case has gone up, of course, since 1940.

The welfare office has given us an example of one man, whose individual welfare budget in 1940 was $20 a month, but now must have $50.

The cost of the 171 cases in 1940 was $4113, while 173 cases in December, 1947, cost $6383 (not including a $2100 county infirmary item which has been added to the welfare cost here recently and was charged elsewhere in 1940.)

A good example of what has happened to welfare costs may be found in the old age assistance overall picture. In December, 1940, there were 237 old age cases in Klamath county, with a total cost of $5204. In December, 1947, there were 282 cases, with a total cost of $12,137.

The welfare bureau has found it necessary, as living costs advance, to increase the grants to those who depend on it for subsistence. A systematic study is made of food costs before boosts are approved in allowances.

About Average

COSTS per case in this county run about average with the other counties of the state. However, the county has always had a most favorable showing in the welfare cost per population unit.

A nearby county, west of the mountains and in the same population bracket as Klamath, had a $64,000 welfare cost in November, 1947, as compared with $21,000 for Klamath county.

Of course, the increased case load plus increased costs have raised the Klamath county budget for welfare purposes substantially.

For 1948, the bureau has a budget of about $275,000, or some $24,502 per month. Here is the monthly budget estimate: Old age, $12,150; aid to dependent children, $3016; aid to the blind, $36; general assistance (including medical costs for the overall program) $7600; administration, $1673.

Since the 'thirties, when "relief" was a new subject of public interest, not a great deal of attention has been paid to the welfare situation. It is something we have taken for granted and don't like to think about. But the figures quoted here, given us by the welfare office, deserve some careful consideration.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE United Nations has come up with a new gimmick, Mr. Trygve Lie, its secretary general, has again found a soft spot to extend the extraterritorial rights of the United Nations upon American soil. It is extraterritoriality for the press. The UN assumption apparently is that any person, allegedly assigned to the United Nations as a newspaperman, a reporter or photographer, may enter the United States at will, may remain here at will, may travel all over the country, with or without the consent of the United States.

In the particular cases which focused attention on the new gimmick, one of these so-called journalists came into the country on a student visa; the other asserted his profession. Both were admittedly communists. Both sought to remain in the United States indefinitely and contrary to the wishes of the American government because they had established a press relationship with the United Nations.

Neither limited his relationship to the United Nations. Both lived in quarters situated in the United States; purchased their needs in the United States; found their amusements in this country, and moved about it with freedom as though the American government welcomed their presence. But they were not wanted. Actually the American government tried to evacuate them.

• • • •

Vicious Device

EXTRATERRITORIALITY is a vicious device that readily lends itself to abuse. Just before I arrived in Shanghai, a number of prostitutes lived there on Soochow road. They were American girls, recruited principally in the Middle West. They lived in China under extraterritoriality; that meant that no Chinese authority could do anything about their presence there, and apparently no American authority objected to the flag of this country flying over and protecting brothels. Finally, an American district attorney, Arthur Bassett, who was sent to the scene, ordered the flags removed and threatened the girls with the law. Many of them married, for limited purposes, beachcombers of varying nationalities with the object of regaining extraterritorial rights. It was not extraordinary for Chinese and denationalized persons to purchase protection from European and Latin American consular agents who sold extraterritorial rights, making a fortune thereby.

Opium and cocaine smugglers, of whom there were a considerable number, profited by this practice, the Chinese authorities having no control over them in their own country.

The United Nations is empowered to manage its own affairs, and by treaty and act of congress the right of access is provided those who have business with it. But no treaty exists and no act of congress exists granting those who have business with the United Nations similar privileges within the United States. Let them go to the United Nations and stay there! If the United Nations has no room for them or is unwilling or unable to provide for them, that still does not entitle such persons to free occupation of American soil.

The United States has not abrogated its sovereignty in favor of the United Nations nor has congress transferred to Mr. Lie or his associates the administration of our immigration laws.

• • • •

Keep Out the Scum

IN the case of Mather et al vs. Cunningham (1909) Judge Spear stated:

". . . The ownership of the soil, therefore, controls the establishment of all local laws. Without the consent of the owner, no extraterritorial law can be enacted within an independent jurisdiction, or extended to it . . ."

Referring to the operation of extraterritoriality, Judge Spear said:

". . . Whatever laws may have been extended by congress to Shanghai are operative, not upon American soil, but upon the territory of the Chinese empire. How do these laws reach there? By treaty, permission of the emperor."

This pertinent reference applies fully to the United Nations extraterritorial privileges. They can only exist, outside the narrow area designated to that body in New York, by consent of the owner of the soil adjacent to it, namely, the legislature of the state of New York. The United Nations cannot legislate for the state of New York and Trygve Lie cannot determine who is to live in that state. Nor can he legislate for the United States; that function is for congress. Nor does he control immigration into the United States. This country must be tough about it or we shall have the scum of the world entering our country on diplomatic passports.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Mohandas Gandhi's fast ("unto death," if necessary) to compel the Moslems and Hindus to cease the bloody strife which has threatened to plunge the Indian sub-continent into war, ended yesterday in triumph for the aged and frail little Mahatma when he received solemn pledges that his peace program would be carried out.

Of course it is probable that not even Gandhi himself believes this means the immediate inauguration of an unbroken era of brotherly love between Hindus and Moslems—between the new dominions of Pakistan (mainly Moslem) and India (largely Hindu). Bitter religious and racial differences which have been going on for centuries can hardly be wiped out in the twinkling of an eye.

Great Achievement

Still, the Mahatma's achievement is great, for he has shocked untold millions into pausing and reflecting on the iniquity of communal strife. He has received promises from the government of India that all steps will be taken to alleviate the plight of Moslems within that predominantly Hindu dominion. And both Moslem and Hindu leaders have sworn that they will strive for communal peace.

This has been an historic event in the stirring life of the most powerful figure among the Indian peninsula's four hundred millions—the man who, more than any other, has been responsible for winning his people's independence from England. Rarely has his country been so stirred.

On Saturday, when the doctors warned that Gandhi's life was in danger from fasting, the capital city of New Delhi took the day off to pray for his survival. All business was suspended, and thousands of feuding Hindus and Moslems joined in mass demonstrations which were calculated to convince the Mahatma that the religious hatreds were quenched. However, he clung doggedly to his fast (persistance being one of his outstanding characteristics) because he wasn't yet convinced that he had won his fight.

Then when Gandhi finally became convinced yesterday that India would be turned back to peace, the capital exploded into a celebration which ran far into the night. The Mahatma told a prayer meeting that he had broken his 121-hour fast on the pledge and counsel of friends from India and Pakistan.

Outstanding Leader

(It would be interesting if one could look ahead and see how history deals with Gandhi, and with this sensational milestone in his 78 eventful years. I believe we are safe in assuming that future generations will give him a place among the outstanding spiritual leaders of all time. As for this generation, untold millions in India literally worship the "Mahatma" (a term of respect which means "great-souled one").

Gandhi always has condemned these demonstrations strongly, and even has frowned on the use of the term "Mahatma." However, so far as that designation is concerned, nothing could stop the Indians from employing it. Indeed I've heard Gandhi's own son, Devadas, who is publisher of the Hindustan Times in Delhi, persistently refer to his father as the "Mahatma." Actually Devadas generally says "Mahatma-Ji," that little suffix denoting reverence and affection.

After he had broken his fast yesterday Gandhi said that if the solemn pledge he received is fulfilled it will "revive with doubled force my intense wish to live a full span of life doing service to humanity." He added that by full span he meant "at least 125 years, or as some say, 133 years."

I can see the broad grin on Gandhi's wrinkled face when he said this, for he has a sense of humor, as I discovered on acquaintance. However, that's not a new idea with him, for he often has predicted that he will live to be 125. He also believes in reincarnation, and says:

"I think we all come back here again if we are not pure enough to enter heaven."

SONG TO CRATER LAKE

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., (To the Editor:)—I am a great admirer of Oregon scenery and am at present enjoying a stay in your fair little city of Klamath Falls. And I have a strong urge to bring to the attention of the good people here the fact that they do not seem to appreciate their scenic wonders to the extent that we Californians do.

Sometime ago the Red Bluff chamber of commerce sponsored a song at one of their banquets which pays high tribute to Crater lake and which is supreme in musical setting and powerful in the descriptive beauty of the words. A congressman who was present on this occasion remarked how fortunate the city of Klamath Falls was in holding the title of "Gateway to Crater Lake" and that many music lovers had so often expressed the desire to sometime have a song written especially for it.

I am informed that one of your local radio stations has a record of "A Song to Crater Lake" which has been left there by the composer for the convenience of the public. We who come from other states would like to hear your comments. I am sure you have been waiting for the opportune time to give the song proper recognition.

Very sincerely,
Marlene Mason, California visitor.

Editor's Note: Charles Cecil, KFLW's disc jockey, tells me he played this record a number of times, and that it was later picked up by the owner.

The Gallup Poll

Public Sentiment Favors UMT Program

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 20 — President Truman's request to congress for a peacetime military training bill finds public sentiment receptive. However, the proportion of voters in favor of universal military training is smaller today than it was six months ago.

If the country were to vote in an official referendum on the much-discussed UMT program, approximately two-thirds would favor it today, as shown by the results of a nationwide unofficial sampling referendum by the institute.

The vote:

"Do you think congress should or should not pass a law to require every able-bodied young man (who has not already been in the armed forces) to take military or naval training for one year?"

Should pass law	65%
Should not	24
No opinion	11

A previous poll on the issue, reported July 25, 1947, showed a vote of 75 per cent in favor, 18 per cent opposed and 7 per cent without opinions. The question read: "In the future do you think every physically-fit young man (who has not already been in the armed forces) should be required to take military or naval training for one year?"

In measuring attitudes on this controversial issue facing the new congress, the institute used its now, multiple-question technique which makes it possible to probe opinion from many aspects.

For example, the survey tested voter-awareness of the arguments for and against military training, recorded intensity of sentiment, measured the attitudes of people who have a member of the family of draft age.

It found that:

1. Majorities in every section of the country favor peacetime training.

2. Veterans of World War II show a higher percentage in favor than the population as a whole.

3. The best argument for UMT, in the opinion of the people questioned, is the need for preparedness and protection while the world is upset. The second best reason given by voters is that it is good training and good discipline for young men.

4. The strongest reasons against UMT, voters say, are that it is unfair to young men to take a year out of their lives, disrupting their education, and that it will encourage war and warlike attitudes.

5. Persons who have a male member of the family of draft age vote in favor of military training by almost the same percentage as those who have no family member that would be affected by UMT.

6. Although some labor union leaders have opposed UMT, the rank and file of union members questioned in the poll showed a vote of approval of nearly 3 to 1 of the training program. The occupation group least in favor are the farmers of the country.

7. Intensity of sentiment is about the same on both sides of the issue.

Opinion on peacetime military training has been measured periodically since 1942, always with a majority found in favor. The trend follows:

	Favor	Oppose	No opin.
Dec., 1942	68%	27%	7%
Nov., 1943	63	29	8
Dec., 1944	70	25	5
Nov., 1945	75	21	4
July, 1947	75	18	7
Today	65	24	11

Detailed results of today's polls are given in the following tables:

"What would you say is the strongest (best) reason FOR universal military training?"

Preparedness, protection	72%
Good training, good discipline for men	17%
Show Russia we can't be pushed around	6%
No good arguments in favor	4%
Don't know	5%

"What would you say is the strongest (best) reason AGAINST universal military training?"

Unfair to interrupt careers and education of young men	18%
Will encourage war, make men warlike	13%
Undemocratic, breeds regimentation, nationalism	7%
Hard on parents, young people needed at home	6%
Cost too great	4%
Not needed, atomic age makes obsolete	3%
Miscellaneous	4%
No good arguments against	30%
Don't know	17%

Both the above tables total more than 100 per cent because some people gave more than one argument.

"Do you think congress should or should not pass a law to require every able-bodied young man (who has not already been in the armed forces) to take military or naval training for one year?"

By Sections	Should	Should Not	No opin.
N. Eng. & M. Atl.	64%	26%	10%
E. Central	65	25	10
W. Central	67	24	9
South	68	16	16
Far West	66	22	12
By Occupation
Prof. and Bus.	65	26	9
White Collar	70	21	9
Farmers	56	30	14
Manual workers	69	21	10

Those opposed to U. M. T.	49	49	11

Ration Form Printing Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Two republican congress members today introduced legislation authorizing the Truman administration to set up meat rationing machinery, including printing of ration books.

The bill, sponsored by Senator Flanders (R.-Vt.) and Rep. Javits (R.-N.Y.), provides up to $1,000,000 to allow the agriculture department to make all necessary reparations.

Under terms of the measure, President Truman is authorized to submit a detailed meat rationing program to congress. It would go into effect automatically unless disapproved by both the senate and house within 30 days.

Atom Ban Closes Area

RICHLAND, Wash., Jan. 19 (AP) — Two parts of the million-acre Columbia basin irrigation project will be affected by Saturday's presidential order forbidding airplane flights over three of the atomic energy commission's projects.

The order closes a 631-square mile area of the Columbia basin and covers the Pasco unit and the Wahluke slope in irrigation project.

A Hanford official said: "This puts teeth in our patrol system. We had requested that an executive order be issued to reestablish wartime restricted boundaries."

The atomic energy commission's aerial patrol here, although not presently equipped with armament, will renew the previous practice of "force flying" violating aircraft to the nearest airport.

The order is not expected to affect the operations of commercial airlines nor result in alteration of established routes.

Missing Prodigy Clue Followed

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19 (AP)—Police said they gave the sheriff of Fresno, Calif., today the description of a man wanted for questioning in connection with the mysterious disappearance of Jacqueline Horner, 14-year-old piano prodigy.

Sergeant R. A. Houghton of the juvenile division, who is conducting an investigation, said the man is believed to be in the Fresno area and that the sheriff there has been asked to detain him.

Jacqueline has been missing from her Hollywood home since last Tuesday when she reportedly quarreled with her mother. Yesterday the girl was believed traced to Modesto in the California Central valley, but there all signs faded.

Nina Sue Fernimen In French Play

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Jan. 19 (Special)—Nina Fernimen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fernimen, Route 3, Klamath Falls, is a member of the cast for the spring term production of the joint drama-language schools', "Les Precieuses Ridicules." The Moliere comedy will be produced entirely in French.

Miss Fernimen is a senior in psychology.

STATIC

By LOIS STEWART

Seven weeks would be a long time to hold your breath and even six weeks is long in between report cards—but seven weeks comes along on wings if it's your turn to write Static. It's my turn this week so all complaints, brickbats and bouquets for radio may be hurled our way until press time next Saturday.

If this column is to be about radio, there's one question I'd like to ask. If this Dick Contino of Bakersfield who has been making hay to the tune of $1750 with his accordion on Horace Heidt's Sunday eve program over NBC, has won seven straight times in a row—how long until he gets that $5000 Horace is always talking about. Dick has wowed them from the Pacific coast clean through Minneapolis, as of last night, and each night has walked off with the money.

How do you like the new star Horace discovered a couple of weeks back? A young crooner who, on his first appearance three Sunday nights ago, said he "got his education at a school for the blind." Does that mean that he is blind? He's forecast as one of the "voices" of America. Last night he probably hauled in for himself another couple of hundred thousand fans who like religious music. He sang, "The Old Rugged Cross." The applause was terrific, indicating that the choice is not straight across the board for swing and boogie. Name's something like Farr or Parr.

You old Morgan fans you! Yes, he'll be back on KFLW starting Thursday night, January 29, at 7:30 sharp. The Henry Morgan Show will have as its sponsor Rayve Cream shampoo. The show, formerly an ABC package sponsored by Eversharp company, was sold independently. It will have the same format and cast, including the Bernie Green orchestra. Everyone around the newsroom has his or her favorite program. Bill Jenkins takes up arms for Morgan. Personally, we like Theatre Guild—every Sunday night over KFLW.

And if we're not real sleepy we like Chuck Cecil's Telequest program. Chuck maintains that Ballerina keeps ahead of the other in-the-throat numbers and this little squib from the trade journal, "Music Business," might interest you Ballerina listeners.

"Abe Burrows, who does satire on Tin Pan Alley songs, describes Ballerina as the following: 'It's about a Ballerina who is dancing with an aching heart. No mention is made of her (aching) feet. It seems that this Ballerina gave up a guy to be a big success as a dancer. The moral is that this poor sap of a girl chooses a career and money instead of a fellow who is offering her a great opportunity to stay home and do dishes.'"

Chuck repeats Wednesday night last week's trick of playing old records. You can call in and dedicate. One of the choicest in Chuck's own collection is a recording of Dardenella by Red Nichols. Dardenella was popular back in the early 20's when the Camel Walk was the going dance. Remember? It'll date you but go ahead and dedicate.

Who were the kids in the yellow life raft at Crater lake Sunday? People at government camp late yesterday were watching the youngsters haul the raft up a steep, snow covered hill and then they all climbed in and went down lickety split without, apparently, a casualty. Looked like more fun than skiing and probably was as the sport was very poor Sunday what with an icy crust and all.

Ralph Bellamy, noted star of stage, screen and radio will be heard as narrator in the eighth program of the series "The Tenth Man," over station KFJI at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday. The program is sponsored by the Oregon Mental Hygiene society in the interests of better mental health. This episode is called "Out of the Shadow." It dramatizes the often unfortunate struggle of the ex-mental patient to again find his place in the business world. It carries an intelligent and constructive story of how these persons may be helped.
