Recognizing the need for an effective program to rebuild the Klamath county dairy industry, such a program was outlined at the annual meeting of the Klamath Dairy-men's association held Wednesday in the federal buildings. Over 50 persons, including milk producers and others interested in the dairy industry, participated in a 90-minute discussion along the general lines of dairy cattle feeding, dairy herd improvement, quality milk production, disease control, and production of 4-H and FFA dairy products.

Election of officers resulted in Willour Reiling, Post valley, being selected as president; Ernest M. Linn, route 1, relected vice president; Rex High, Post valley, relected director, and William Tubach, route 2, was elected as the other director.

Fred L. Hutton of the Oregon milk control section, told the group that a hearing would be held in Klamath Falls, possibly within the next two or three weeks, to establish new minimum retail and wholesale milk prices as well as new minimum producer prices.

The Dairy-men's association spent a total of $675.00 the past year for advertising of milk and milk products through the Oregon Dairy council.

Roosevelt

Members of Roosevelt PTA turned out Tuesday for the first meeting of the new year, and heard Recreation Director Sam Smith discuss the city's recreation setup as it now stands and as it is planned.

Smith introduced Willard H. Shumard, field representative of the National Recreation association, who is making his second visit to Klamath Falls and complimented the city on its advance in the field of recreation. Smith then showed charts and maps of various recreation centers and urged full cooperation in the summer program. Smith discussed the one and one-half mill recreation levy which will be on the May primary ballot and which, if passed, will give the city $1.33 per capita for the operation of recreation facilities and centers. Shumard had previously announced that to efficiently operate a recreational plan, $1.50 per capita was the minimum requirement and Klamath Falls had always been far below this figure.

Mrs. Arthur Reinhart, president of Roosevelt PTA, advised Mr. Smith that by the March meeting the Roosevelt group would have a report to make on recreation which is the project of the PTA this year. Reports on past activities, including Fathers Night, were heard and

The next regular meeting will be held February 10 at 2 p. m. An important executive board meeting will be held January 27
