

Red Cross At Tulelake Makes Plans

TULELAKE, Feb. 7 — Community support is solidly back of next summer's youth recreational program, planned on a scale similar to that of last summer when several hundred young people from grade school through the teen-age group were provided with supervised entertainment for three months, June through August.

The report of continuing interest in the project was made Friday by Francis Chambers, who succeeds Ross Ragland as chairman.

Supporting the plan this year are the Red Cross and the city of Tulelake with the city allotting a total of $660 in three monthly installments of $220 as the city's share of the $1300 budget. This sum will cover the salary of a director, yet to be named, salaries at $1.25 per hour for any others employed, supervised dances twice a month, hay rides, roller skating parties and picnics.

The junior group will also benefit from city funds with a playground supervisor for games, handicraft, story telling and play hours.

The Red Cross has assumed responsibility for the swimming program including salary of a Red Cross approved instructor, salary of the bus driver, insurance on the school bus and the gasoline.

The swimming tank in Klamath Falls will be used for the lessons unless the pool at the OVS is made available. Age groups will receive instruction on different days and children of both Siskiyou and Modoc counties will be eligible for the courses.

The program will get under way early in June and continue through August. Last year several hundred young people took part.

Assisting Chambers in organization will be Thorben Reiben, treasurer, Mrs. Thorben Reiben, Mrs. Don Webster, Mrs. Ed Duckett, Mrs. Frank Jamison, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Keller, Ross Ragland and W. R. Moore, city park commissioner.

High school students will be Dick Moore, student body president; Marguerite Moore, Alice Stonecypher, Galen Lesh and Bob Laird.

Klamath Man Hurt In Crash

Lewis E. Wilkinson, youngest son of Mrs. Anna K. Sutton of Klamath Falls, was critically injured on January 22 near Nelscott, when he went to sleep while driving home from a show. His car left the road, sheared off a telephone pole, rolled over several times and completely demolished the car.

Young Wilkinson received concussion of the brain, a crushed right hip, broken pelvis and several crushed ribs on his left side, besides numerous cuts and bruises. He was moved from the McMinnville hospital to the veterans hospital in Portland where he has showed marked improvement the last few days.

Mrs. Sutton has been at her son's bedside for the past two weeks.

Newburn Says State Can Afford Costs

PORTLAND, Feb. 7 (AP)—The state of Oregon can well afford the increased cost of education in state-owned schools.

So said Dr. Harry K. Newburn, University of Oregon president, in a speech before the Oregon Dental association last night.

Despite increased school budgets, the cost "is only one-half of 1 per cent of the state's annual income," Newburn said. He added his belief that Oregonians favored granting the schools adequate funds.

Pond Activity At Town's First Mill Shown In View

Today's old-time picture shows pond-monkeys busy on logs beside the old Moore brothers sawmill on Link river above the bridge. It was the first privately-owned sawmill in Klamath county, and the enterprise was established in 1877. The picture was probably made around 1910.

The Moore brothers mill was a water-power operation, taking water from Link river for power purposes.

This mill had a capacity of about 7000 feet a day, and it employed no more than a dozen or 15 men. It never shipped much, if any, lumber out of here, because there was enough demand in the district for what boards and timbers could be produced from the old plant. Many of the early-day farm buildings as well as city structures were sawn in the Moore brothers mill.

The Moores later moved their mill from the location on the river to the west side of Lake Ewauna, between what is now Riverside avenue and the lake. Later pictures in this series will show the mill in that location.

The mill on Link river was actually built by William Smith Moore, who sold it to his sons, Rufus and C. S. Moore. The Moore brothers operated the mill until 1910. William Smith Moore, the father, built a sawmill for the government at Klamath Agency about 1870. The first sawmill in Klamath county was a government mill at the agency built in 1863, to produce lumber for the buildings at the new post at Fort Klamath.

It was from these small beginnings that the Klamath industry grew to the huge proportions of the 'twenties, 'thirties and 'forties.

Benjamin Would Forget All About $92,000 In Basement

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7 (AP)—Benjamin Lieberman is willing to forget all about the $92,800 treasure found in his cellar—provided he is paid a fee.

The former $75-a-week bookkeeper says he lost his health and his job worrying about the hoard. So yesterday he relinquished claim to the cash.

His only condition is that the state of California give him the usual 25 per cent informers' fee if it wins the treasure through escheatment proceedings.

This the commonwealth agreed to do. Common pleas court which is hearing claims put off a ruling on the rightful owner until later this month.

Lieberman told police he stumbled on the treasure 11 months ago while hunting a light bulb and didn't know how it got in the cellar of his home.

But Mrs. Anna Theresa Hillop, widow of a gangster slain in New Jersey, told the court the cash was

Five Killed On Mountain

JASPER, Ark., Feb. 7 (AP)—Five air forces personnel perished last night in the fiery crash of their plane in this Ozark mountain country.

The plane, a B-25, from Wright field, O., struck the side of Round-top mountain, two miles south of this isolated Northwest Arkansas county seat, and burst into flames.

(At Dayton, O., Wright field authorities said the plane left there yesterday with five men aboard—one of them believed to be a navy

"hitchhiker"—and that all five were dead. The plane was bound for Little Rock.)

The rugged countryside was coated with ice and rescue workers had to combat cold weather in reaching the scene.

The four identified victims listed by Wright field were from the Midwest and East.
