

Old Picture Starts Vintage Question

It isn't that we like to start anything, but a good healthy argument is good for business. We're referring to the old-time picture we ran last Wednesday evening showing E. H. Harriman, Frank Ira White and Thomas Lamont basking in Klamath sunshine on the porch of old Harriman lodge.

The picture was loaned by Mrs. White and she thought the picture was taken around 1908. Bert Hall opined the picture was of 1913 vintage and Mrs. W. D. Miller concurred. But along comes O. D. "Buck" Williams and sides with Mrs. White. He says Harriman never came back to Klamath Falls after 1910, anyway, and if the picture had been taken in 1913, why the heck was it necessary to grab a horse, hang on to its mane, and ride hell-bent-for-leather to Montague to catch a train. The first horse came into these parts in 1909. The whole thing adds up to what we're suspicious for a long time, everybody likes pictures of a day gone by and it sharpens wits to remember the little details. Like this one.

When Mr. Lamont, who died just this week at his home in Florida, made his several trips to Klamath Falls he hired young Louis Hoagland (now of Long Beach, Calif.) as his driver. Louie and Mr. Lamont got along just fine and dandy and when the New York financier left he departed with the "if you're ever in New York, look me up."

Things happened and Louie found himself in uniform, campaign hat and all, and the army sent him overseas with a layover in New York. Mr. Lamont lived up to his word and showed Louie quite a whirl. Harriman lodge was in its hey-day before our time. But we would like to have seen all the fuss and feathers of those summer days when the lodge was host to the Lamonts, the Harrimans, the Fleischackers and their ladies.

Goings and Comings Dept.: The Frank Weavers got back the middle of the week from a trek which started before Christmas and took them to Minnesota, Florida, New Orleans and back to California where they stopped off for a visit with their son Clark and his family. The Weavers were just ahead of all the weather and a warning, don't mention all the good weather we had while they were gone. Decorations for the Mardi Gras were going up all over New Orleans while the Weavers were there and they reported reservations difficult even at that time.

Northbound through Klamath Falls last Monday, Barbara Johnson Nelson and her little one Genevieve Ann. Barbara will remain with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Johnson of Portland, for the next six weeks. Genevieve is a charmer, looks a great deal like her father, Lt. Stuart Nelson, who stayed behind in Alameda. The little one was quite overcome by all the snow she saw around the depot.

The Andrew Colliers are home again after a month's trip along the East coast. They accompanied daughter Carolyn to New York where she is now enrolled in the school of social service at Columbia university. Carolyn is living at the Parkside hotel as is another Klamath girl, Barbara Hood, daughter of the A. B. Hood of Washington street.

Mr. and Mrs. Collier, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Collier of Eugene, also visited with Mr. and Mrs. Dick Igl, (Phyllis Collier), and when they continued south took a trip from Miami, Florida, across to Cuba for a time.

Barbara Hood is doubly up on her work in New York. She is studying piano and in addition is doing secretarial work in the Bureau of Fashion Trends. Incidentally this month's issue of American Home carries an interesting article by the manager of the bureau and Barbara works in that office.

Boasting a wonderful tan for mid-winter, the Lawrence Bertrams and their young daughter "Puddy" returned the early part of the week from three weeks spent in Mexico. Lawrence enjoyed the fishing at Guaymas.

Mrs. Horace E. Getz is in Richland, Washington this week doing a great deal of admiring of her first grandchild, a little girl born last month to the Horace Jr's.

Salem folks bound for Death Valley in Southern California included Rod and Faye Livesley and Jody Bush and Rod's mother, Mrs. T. A. Livesley. They'll stay for several weeks.

Jane Epley and little Alexandra stepped off the train Thursday morning after a several weeks' stay with Jane's mother in Oakland.

Lots of papas are getting pressed up for Dad's Day on the University of Oregon campus and will be met by sons and daughters who are much taller than they are. Experience teaches—it's very difficult to attempt discipline on the very young when you have to look up to them to do it. Should be eight-inch heels for mothers of growing sons.

Stephen Stone is now wearing papa's pin. Just recently Steve was invited to join Phi Mu Alpha, national music honorary, and was presented with the pin his father, L. H. Stone of 1503 Canby, received as a student at the University of Michigan. Other Phi Mu's are Andy Loney, Jack O'Connor and John McManus. Steve will be here on February 22 as a member of the University of Oregon chorus which sings at the KUH's auditorium. Advance notice says they're good.

Added to the list of honor roll students at the University of Oregon school of law: George H. Proctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arch Proctor of our town. The young man made a grade of 3.00 or better before their names were added to the honor roll.

Several benefits coming up including the Fremont PTA bridge party the afternoon of Saturday, March 13, in the school auditorium. Even a PTA has to have a budget to operate on.

The Soroptimist club of Klamath Falls has changed the date of its rummage sale to next Saturday, February 14. The date shouldn't be hard to remember, it's St. Valentine's Day. The location is on South 9th street just back of Curran's. Hours, 8:30 to 2. To spur on collections, officers of the club at lunch last Thursday wore some of the garments to be sold. They didn't all fit.

Larry Parks, who is mentioned for Oscar awards, stopped in our town Thursday night en route to Hollywood from Timberline where he and wife Betty Garrett had been for the skiing. Reports from those who visited with the actor who played the title role in "The Jobson Story." They had dinner at the Pelican.

Appreciation: for the lovely red tulips from the youngsters who made the trip to the Scholastic Art Exhibit in Portland. Parents of these boys and girls must be bustin' out all over with pride. Did you know the Klamath students noosed out all other schools in the state—including Portland schools—in the exhibit now shown at Meier and Frank in Portland. They were guests of the store at luncheon this afternoon and then they all lined up and got their wonderful Gold Key awards.

Added to the list of new homers, the Ross Raglands at Tulelake. They are moving sometime within the next week or so into their recently completed three-bedroom home located on First street and a brand new addition to the town of Tulelake.

Klamath Girl Will Be Denver Bride

Fay Steinseifer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Steinseifer of this city, will be a St. Valentine's Day bride when she exchanges vows next Saturday afternoon with John J. Pickett, son of Mrs. E. E. Pickett of Denver, Colo.

The young couple will be married in Denver. Miss Steinseifer attended Oregon State college and the University of Washington, where she was affiliated with Sigma Kappa sorority. She has been an airline stewardess with United Air Lines for the past 16 months, and was based in Denver.

Mr. Pickett is attending law school at Colorado university, where he is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

The bride-elect returned to Denver last week after a month's visit with her family and friends in Klamath Falls. During that time she was entertained at several informal affairs.

Mrs. Irving Burke and Mrs. John Robinson entertained for her in the Elks' party room at a linen shower. Bowls of iris and pink carnations with pastel colored tapers were used to set the early spring theme of the party. High in bride went to Mrs. Carl Steinseifer, and low to Wanda Shaw. In pinochle, first prize was won by Mrs. Ernest Steinseifer.

Guests were Mrs. Howard Strode, Mrs. Robert Ruge, Mrs. Allen Aldrich, Mrs. Ed Ostendorf, Mrs. Arthur Treibwasser, Mrs. R. P. Ellingson, Mrs. Raymond Biggers, Mrs. Walter Weisendanger, Mrs. Marshall E. Cornett, Mrs. Emil Albrecht.

Mrs. Otto Erlindson, Mrs. John Raffetto, Mrs. Dave Liskoy, Mrs. Tom Walters, Mrs. H. R. Lister, Mrs. Ed Swartz, Mrs. V. J. Josephson, Mrs. G. O. Moore, Mrs. Ivan Kandr, Mrs. Rex Hatt, Mrs. Robert Ellingson Jr., Mrs. Ernest Steinseifer of Tacoma, Wash., Orpha Hudson, Mildred Crawford, Dorothea Ellingson, Wanda Shaw and Jean Merrill. Fay was also honored at a kitchen shower and a miscellaneous shower in Denver.

Red And White Holiday Theme Used For Party

A huge red and white Valentine extending greetings to members of the Wednesday club proved the center of interest at the group's last meeting held this week in the parish hall of St. Paul's Episcopal church.

Other decorations and favors carried out the Valentine motif. Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Troy Cook, Mrs. William Stok and Mrs. Richard MacDonald. A business session, refreshments and cards were features of the meeting. Mrs. Roy Whytal, president, announced that at the next Wednesday club meeting Mrs. Victor E. O'Neill will review the book, "House Divided."

In cards, prizes were awarded to Mrs. Walter Eschebeck, Mrs. M. P. Leonard, Mrs. E. J. Howell and Mrs. Martin Brauer. The next meeting will be on February 18 for members and guests.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS in our town next week will be Governor and Mrs. John H. Hall. Among the affairs honoring Mrs. Hall during her brief stay here will be the Republican Women's tea on St. Valentine's Day. In this handsome family group are, left, Mary, Mrs. Hall with small Diane, John, and Governor Hall.

Faculty Wives Are Feted At Party

A lovely event of Friday afternoon was a tea given at the Winston D. Purvine home on the Oregon Vocational school campus when Mrs. Purvine entertained for wives of faculty members.

Pretty bouquets of spring blossoms were placed about the rooms, and daffodils centered the tea table. Hours were from 2 to 4:30. Pouring and assisting the hostess were Mrs. John Dunn, Mrs. H. Pedersen, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Henry Doerr and Mrs. Guy Davis.

Calling during the afternoon were Mrs. I. W. Morris, Mrs. John Rgiman, Mrs. Harold Rotrock, Mrs. Herbert Madole, Mrs. Wallace Uerlings, Mrs. L. D. Jones, Mrs. David Freeland.

Mrs. Ranzaw Peterson, Mrs. Henry Swisegood, Mrs. D. Jones, Mrs. John Erekstol, Mrs. William Lieske, Mrs.

Annual Snowball Highlights Week For Younger Set

Mary Lou Case was the attractive queen who reigned with four pretty princesses over the DeMolay Snowball, an event of Wednesday night, February 4.

Princesses were Beverly Young, Dorothea Cogdill, Maudie Thompson and Joan Moore.

The affair is an annual formal dance for the younger set arranged by DeMolay at the Masonic temple.

Patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Milne, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rockholt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bonney and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Southwell.

Ben Thomas, Mrs. Elmer Zeigler, Mrs. J. A. Floyd, Mrs. P. E. Macintosh, Mrs. Art Chase, Mrs. F. A. Tyler, Mrs. Jess Crabtree, Mrs. Lester Ogden, Mrs. C. C. Grewell, Mrs. C. D. Newman, Ruth Doerr, Mrs. Donald Sheldon, Mrs. Marvin Shroder, Mrs. Alice Stone and Mrs. Karl Waldron.

NEWS TOLD this week by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Steinseifer was the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Fay, who will wed John J. Pickett of Denver, Colo., next Saturday, Valentine's Day.

MRS. DON J. ZUMWALT is chairman of the Saturday tea complimenting Mrs. Hall. The affair will be held in the Pelican party room, and all interested women are invited. —Gudeman

Soroptimist Skit Announces Sale

The members of the Soroptimist Club of Klamath Falls were reminded to collect rummage for the coming sale in a humorous and unique fashion show. Thelma Henry, Doris Peyton, Vivian Owens and Lorraine Johnson conducted the meeting, gaily arrayed in articles of clothing that had been turned in for the sale to be held Saturday, February 14 at 129 South 9th.

Mrs. Vincent R. Lawler, Oregon state vice president of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, reported on the state meeting she attended in Portland February 4 where she learned of the extensive activities of other counties in the support of the Easter seal and lily sale for Oregon during the month of March, 1948. In Lane and Coos counties, the Kiwanis, Rotary and Soroptimist service clubs are raising a $100,000 fund for the further development of the children's hospital school in Eugene, a state institution for the care of physically handicapped children.

The society has opened a retail store in Portland as an outlet for the products of the handicapped, both children and adults. There is also, in the process of development, a rehabilitation center to be located in the northern part of the state. The work of the society has increased tremendously during the past year, and it will be in a position to help a greater percentage of handicapped children and adults this coming year. The Easter seal drive in Klamath county is sponsored by the Soroptimist club.

Mrs. A. L. Stone of Fairview, near Portland, is here for several weeks as the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Stone of Canby street.

AN ATTRACTIVE bride was Maniel Boyd, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Boyd of Tulelake, Calif., who exchanged vows with Robert S. Adams Jr. of Merrill. The two were wed Sunday, February 1, in the Tulelake Community Presbyterian church. They will make their home near Tulelake. —Evergreen
