

Control Of Weeds Needs Big Effort

The need for more fundamental knowledge of weed behavior and plant physiology was determined as necessary if weed control programs are to keep pace with new developments in weed control chemicals. This need was expressed over and over by weed research specialists at the Western States weed control conference held in Sacramento last week attended by approximately 600 persons from eleven western states.

In addition to state weed control specialists, farmers, dealers, chemical company representatives, county weed control supervisors, commercial applicators, extension services and bureau of reclamation personnel and others were present. Representing the Klamath basin area were Murel Long and Gene Duant of the Farmers Fencing Service, Ed Green of Tulelake; Bill Brunsden of the bureau of reclamation; Harold Schleferstein, county weed control supervisor, and Jim Ellings, assistant county agent.

Professor Virgil Freed of Oregon State college who heads up the weed control research program for this state, was president of this year's conference.

This meeting was the 10th annual meeting of the Western States weed control conference. Started a decade ago largely through the efforts of the late Professor Hyslop of Oregon State college, it has grown from a three-state meeting attended by only a few to its present size.

Two days of the meeting were devoted to reports on new developments in weed control methods, chemicals, as well as reclamation weed control research. The remaining day was given over to weed control equipment, both ground and air. Every make and model of the latest equipment was on display as well as weed control chemicals.

Research to be carried on this coming season will revolve around the following points:

1. The rate of absorption of the herbicides through the leaves and roots of the plants.
 2. The action of the chemical inside the plant. More information is needed as to why a chemical such as 2, 4-D regulate or inhibit the growth of the plant.
 3. The action of chemicals on the cells of the plant.
 4. The translocation or movement of the chemical within the plant.
- After they've accomplished this work they will know why some plants are very susceptible to 2, 4-D and others quite resistant to 2, 4-D. They will also be able to make more definite recommendations for control of any one particular type of weed.

Very little was said about IPC, the chemical for quack grass control that received so much publicity last year. Although IPC was used in extensive trials, results were disappointing all down the line.

Cattle Raisers

Association Eyed
LA GRANDE, Feb. 12 (AP)—Extension service officials today moved to create a county-wide association of cattle raisers at a meeting here February 12.

Burns Bailey, assistant Union county agent, said the proposal to form a cattlemen's association had been under discussion several months and Thursday's meeting will make tentative plans for the organization.

Two-Fireplace Red Scratch Brick Home

This house, about two-thirds completed, is located on the Alturas highway out of Tulelake. M. L. Sutton is the owner.

Brick Home Gives Room

Two bedrooms, two and a half baths, two fireplaces, a two-car garage and lots of built-ins make the Sutton place a roomy, comfortable home.

There is, of course, a kitchen and a utility room and a large living room and dining room besides a glassed-in solarium where the second fireplace is located. The owner, M. L. Sutton, rancher, has his office in the house also, adjacent to which is the half bath.

This house has a concrete floor-base throughout, overlaid with one-inch tile in the living and dining rooms which, with the office, have a three-foot mahogany wainscoting. Asphalt tile covers the kitchen and entrance hall. Bathrooms are floored with faience tile with a four-foot glazed tile wainscoting. There is wall-to-wall carpeting in the bedrooms.

A forced hot air furnace located in the utility room furnishes heat for the building which has no basement.

The exterior is of red scratch-face brick and white woodwork. Fixed glass windows are used with over-head vents. The currently popular hip roof covers the modern home designed by Howard R. Perrin, architect.

Government Gets Use Of $340 Million For Nothing

BY CHARLES MOLONY
WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—The government is getting the use of $340,000,000 for nothing.

It's the value of government securities which have come due and quit paying interest without the owners cashing them in. Some date back to the middle of the last century.

The total has gone up $34,000,000 in the last 12 months.

Much of the older securities undoubtedly have been lost or destroyed, officials told a reporter today, but they are mystified by one recent development.

The owners of $26,750,000 of a $758,945,800 issue of bonds called for redemption on October 15 still haven't presented them for payment.

These bonds drew 4 1/2 per cent interest, the highest the treasury paid on any of its $254,000,000,000 of interest-bearing debt.

Bonds of that kind usually are owned by banks, insurance companies or others who guard them well. Also, such investors usually collect their money promptly so they can put it to work somewhere else.

One possible explanation is that the bonds are owned by persons in foreign countries who:

1. Do not know the treasury called them for redemption several years ahead of the due date, or
2. Prefer to hold paper that is good for dollars any time rather than turning it over to their own governments for local currency.

Some of the bonds are continuing to trickle in for the pay-off. About $500,000 worth have come in this month.

The government is borrowing money these days at an interest rate averaging 2.15 per cent. So the treasury is saving nearly $7,000,000 a year by having the use of the money represented by the uncashed securities.

The overdue lot includes almost $11,500,000 of World War I Liberty bonds, and about $100,000,000 worth of savings bonds issued in the 1935-38 period.
