Traditional Welcome
 Given Island Guests

Sunshine and leis were vacation fare for the Klamath folk on this page. The envy of their stay-at-home friends, the group flew to the Hawaiian Islands for mid-winter vacations and interesting side trips to various islands in the group. At least three on this page are still in Hawaii, others returning this morning on the Matsonia due to dock some time before noon at San Francisco.

The happy couple at left are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kent of 737 Pacific Terrace. The Kents arrived in Honolulu on the Clipper January 27, for a six-week stay and are guests of Mr. Kent's niece while there.

The J. Frank Adams, (right, above), caught their first glimpse of Honolulu February 1. They left Monday evening on the Matsonia and will soon be back home in Merrill telling the folks about the sunshine and rain.

In the center is Mrs. Clara Shaw, Mrs. Adams' mother, who was welcomed in traditional island fashion on her arrival by plane at Honolulu as natives decked the mainlanders with lovely leis fashioned of exotic flowers. Mrs. Shaw also reached San Francisco today.

A wide-eyed little visitor is small Sara West, (below, left), who seems to have taken the exciting trip in stride with her doll clutched in one arm, while mother and daddy, Mr. and Mrs. Dale West of Merrill, are close at hand. The Wests also flew to the Islands by Clipper and came home today on the Matsonia.

Mrs. William Yates (left) and Mrs. Samuel D. Earhart, are also Klamathites sold on the Islands and all their beauty. Mrs. Yates is remaining in Honolulu for several weeks yet, and her husband may join her before she returns to Klamath Falls. Mrs. Earhart arrived in San Francisco at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by Clipper and was home at 10:50 the next morning.

Also expected home today were Mr. and Mrs. William Hooper of Tulelake, who have been in the Islands since late in January, and Mrs. Prentice Yeomans, daughter of Mrs. Rose M. Poole, who has been in Honolulu since August.

Younger Set Swaps
 Valentine Wishes

Guests who gathered for a combination Valentine and birthday party Saturday honoring Beverly Swansen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Merle Swansen, enjoyed a doll show. Later the 10-candle cake was served to Beverly, Nancy Clark, Gail Nerseth, Sharon Taylor, Gallie Sue Burke, Gene Gilbert, Carol Biehn, Janice Whytal, Gloria Mahan, Annette Jacobs, Carol Kious and Patty Jean Swansen.

Dolls, the puppet kind, featured entertainment at a Valentine party given by Mrs. Howard Listoe for daughter Susanne last Saturday. Ingerid Norland entertained with the clever puppets and later refreshments were served at a heart-decorated table to Nancy Warren, Karen Porter, Susan Peake, Marjorie Orr, Lois Snyder, Eva Casey, Cecelia and Catherine Kann, Bernice Bullard, Kay Angstead, Shirley Oliver, Julie Harnden, Marsha Mills and Sheila Adler and Susanne.

Jane Larkin, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Larkin, was hostess at a 12:30 o'clock luncheon on Valentine's Day. Guests created their own Valentine interpretations and there was a box for distribution of sweet messages. Jane's guests were Frances Cox, Gail Nerseth, Sharon Taylor, Nancy Drew, Janice Whytal, Evelyn Deets, Nancy Clark and Gloria Mahan.

There was another celebration on St. Valentine's Day when Ulyssa Balentine, 7-year-old of the U. S. Balentines, entertained, combining Valentines with birthday which was on February 16. Rites Solemnized Valentine's Day

A Valentine's Day bride was attractive Phyllis Marie Hutchins, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Howard F. Hutchins of this city, who exchanged vows with Wesley D. McNeer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. McNeer Sr., also of Klamath Falls.

Rites were solemnized at 7 o'clock in the evening, February 14, at the First Christian church. The bride's father read the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Victor Phillips, pastor of the First Methodist church.

Calla lilies formed the pretty setting for the nuptials with wood-wardia fern, palms and white tapers in tall candelabra completing the background.

Catherine Blanas sang, "Ich Liebe Dich" by Grieg, and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. Mrs. Patricia Hunt was accompanist.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Charles F. Wright, of Eugene, as the traditional Lohengrin wedding processionals was played.

Her gown was lovely with its fitted bodice of imported French lace, net yoke with seed pearl trim and a satin skirt ending in a full court train. Her illusion net veil of finger-tip length was held in place with a Juliet cap of matching lace and seed pearls.

A cascade arrangement with a single white orchid encircled with stephanotis and lilies of the valley formed her bridal bouquet.

Matron of honor was a close friend of the bride, Mrs. Leo Amate, of Palo Alto, Calif., the former Barbara Schultz of this city.

Her gown was of French blue taffeta with a slight train on the bouffant skirt and an off-the-shoulder yoke. Long taffeta mitts matched her frock.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Samuel Warren, Mrs. Clay Burrell, Mrs. Glenn Kennedy and Paula Albert.

All wore identical gowns of pink, fashioned similar to that of Mrs. Agate. All the bride's attendants carried nosegays of pink, white and fuchsia carnations with white rib-

Income Tax Blanks Are Usual Bugaboo

You may now greet your most intimate friend with the salutation, "Hi, illiterate," without expecting a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun. In a recent missile which reached our desk it says, to-wit: "There's really nothing to making out an income tax return. There are a few illiterates who really need help. There are others whose education is so limited that they cannot understand simple business terms. But most people can prepare their own returns without difficulty if they really try!"

There are a lot of people around this town that make a pretty good thing out of all its illiterates! Oh well, they have to eat too and we might as well play dumb.

Folks in these parts continue to pack up for points south. Registered in our going-and-coming department column were quite a few who were Mexico bound.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Semon of Henley and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Schreiner of Malin left Wednesday morning in the Semon car for Mexico City and Acapulco, to be gone just as long as their hearts dictate. They are planning several interesting sidetrips along the way.

Another southern trip which sounds like a lot of fun is the one Florence and Charles Hovey of Vancouver, Wash., are enjoying. They were here recently and disclosed plans which included leaving from San Francisco on a coastwise steamer and will take in part of South America, going through the Canal Zone and returning by way of Mexico City. We understand Charles' mother, Mrs. Richard Hovey of San Francisco, was going along.

The Eugene Hookers are doing Arizona this week. They left for a fortnight's jaunt through Reno, Las Vegas, the Grand Canyon, Arizona and home by way of Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. They're due back the last day of February.

Mrs. W. F. Farley, who has been here for several months, left today for her home in Holden, West Virginia. She plans to stop in Florida for a month's visit with her daughter Dr. and Mrs. T. F. Farley returned recently from a three weeks' stay in Los Angeles and his mother remained here during their absence.

A visitor in our town for the next few weeks is Mrs. A. H. Fox of Minneapolis, guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. James H. Hilton and family. Mrs. Fox left Minneapolis Wednesday and was met in Eugene by Mrs. Hilton on Friday. They visited for a time with Jean Hilton, student at the University of Oregon, and were en route home today. Mrs. Fox has visited here frequently at the Hilton home and has many friends who will greet her February visit.

Dr. and Mrs. Ray W. Oldenburg and their mothers, Mrs. Paul Oldenburg and Mrs. George E. Banks are home after a whirl in San Francisco. While south Dr. Oldenburg attended lectures at Stanford-Lane hospital and the women folks enjoyed the new spring showings in San Francisco shops.

The Don Cossack chorus is one here next Monday night at the Pelican theatre and the University of Oregon singers will hold forth Sunday afternoon at the KUHS auditorium, giving the music people plenty of good listening. Don't know whether you know it or not, but at the Julius Huehu concert recently, William Primrose and his accompanist were in the audience for a time. Primrose is the viola expert who performed here several seasons ago and is rated tops in his field. He was en route to Portland to appear as soloist with the Portland symphony.

First of the Klamath contingent to return from the Hawaiian Islands is Mrs. Samuel D. Earhart who reached home Thursday morning.

Complimented

Guests were invited to a prettily appointed luncheon this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Pelican party room, when Mrs. Warren Coe Hunt entertained in compliment of Mrs. Silas Corwin Coleman of Battle Creek, Michigan, who with Mr. Coleman, is here for an extended visit at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Lawson Hunt.

Pale pink camellias floating in crystal bowls centered the long table where places were marked for 36 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman arrived here last week for their Klamath visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank X. Sexton of 235 S. Riverside returned this week from a visit in Portland and Eugene. They stopped in Eugene at the University of Oregon on the return trip south to visit daughters Mary Louise and Mariann for Dad's Day. Mary Louise has pledged Alpha Omicron Pi and is a junior at the university.

First Methodist Scene Of Rites

Harvey Ovgard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Stephens of this city, took Joy Gwyn for his bride in a ceremony read at the First Methodist church, Sunday, February 1. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald C. Gwyn, also of Klamath Falls.

Rev. Victor Phillips read the ceremony before a gathering of friends and relatives of the young couple at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

A spring setting of forsythia, pussy willows, palms and wood-wardia fern formed the background for the rites with silver candelabra and lighted tapers on either side of the altar.

Pews were marked with bouquets of white carnations, snapdragons and acacia, tied with white satin ribbon bows.

Warren Cronin played incidental music as guests assembled, later accompanying Van Thome, who sang, "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

The traditional wedding march was played as the bride came down the aisle, given in marriage by her father.

The bride's gown was a Victorian fashion with puffed sleeves in a modified leg o' mutton style, fitted at the wrist, and bouffant skirt. The dress was rose point lace. For jewelry she wore a locket, loaned by a friend, Bonita Huddard.

Her fingertip veil fell from a ruffled halo cap. A shower arrangement of white carnations, stephanotis and lilies of the valley with white satin streamers formed her bouquet.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. William P. Campbell, who wore a frock of blue with full skirt, and brief, puffed sleeves. Her bouquet was of yellow and white freesias.

Dorothy O'Malley and Evelyn Tate were bridesmaids in gowns of pink like that of the matron of honor. Their flowers were showers of bouquets of daffodils, stephanotis and pink carnations.

Little Gail Campbell, niece of the bride, was ring bearer.
