Klamath Featured In Journal Story

The week's printed matter delivered to our desk brought some interesting news that we'll pass on to you.

It gave us a great deal of pleasure to see Joan Campbell's by-line on a story in Pacific Parade, Oregon feature section in last Sunday's Oregon Journal. It had to do with natural hot water heat which you bless or curse, depending on the way the well is acting, and peculiar in Oregon to this part of the state. Joanny did a good job on the story, well illustrated with pictures of well drillers and stuff. The title is, "Volcano, Inc. Heats Klamath Falls." We have a copy if you would like to see it. Joan is a senior student at the University of Oregon, daughter of the Hugh Campbells of our town, and was a fellow newsroom employe of your favorite home town newspaper.

A card from Olive Cornett, who left here with her aunt, Mrs. W. T. Van Decar of Yakima, Wash., several weeks ago for a warmer climate. Olive developed a fine cold while in Sunny California and went on from Santa Ana to Hemet, where she hopes to break up the cold and get back home.

Still seeing quite a bit of Europe, Pauline Offield's sister, Mary Kelly, who writes of a fascinating trip from Salzburg, Austria (where she and husband, Capt. Walter Kelly and daughter, Joan are living), through Innsbruck, over the Brenner pass to Venice, Italy. Mary writes of the marvelous materials in Italy, bolts and bolts of real silk, all possible shades, and for a fraction of what we're paying.

From up Alaska way comes word concerning Art Bremer, former desk man at The Herald and News, who is now doing advertising on a Fairbanks newspaper. Baz Harris wrote the letter, set in type from the News-Miner, and he mentions it was 29 below there on St. Valentine's Day. But he was going home to a cozy apartment where his refrigerator held, he quote, "a caribou roast and four moose steaks."

Starting on their way home next week are Mr. and Mrs. Percy Wells who have been gone since last fall on a jaunt which took them through the northern section of the country and where they have spent the past three months at Thomasville, Georgia. They will take a month to make the trip back to Klamath Falls before opening their door at 219 North Rogers.

The John Budds, who lived here just before the war with their young sons, Bill and John, are now in Chicago where John is president of Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway. When John was overseas with the engineering branch of the army, Franny and the boys lived in St. Paul, but John's new job took them all to Chicago.

Friends of young Harlan Bosworth 3rd, are hoping he passes his exams with flying colors. Harlan was recently named as the principal nominee for appointment to Annapolis, effective July 1. He takes his exams in Medford on April 21.

Eastbound the first of this week, Mrs. Robert P. Ellington Sr. and daughter Dorothea, called to Ladysmith, Wis., by the illness of Mrs. Ellington's sister, Mrs. Emory Ellington. Dorothea met her mother in San Francisco and they went on from there.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Staiger and young son Bitzy left Friday morning for Portland after several days spent here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Woodruff of Pacific Terrace. Jolene is still furniture shopping for their home on Lake Oswego and while here was wearing one of the season's prettiest suits, a shrimp colored suede skirt and jacket.

Things coming up—Klamath Union high school music department's two spring concerts, the first on March 5, when Madelon Adler, 17-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Adler, will be the guest artist. Madelon, junior student at University high school at Eugene and special student at the University of Oregon school of music, will play the Grieg Concerto in A Minor. Coming home with Madelon for the week-end next Wednesday night is Helen McPette of Newport, music major at the University and head of the piano department. All will be houseguests of the Adlers. Folks with a good memory for faces will remember Helen as Miss Newport in the Miss Oregon contest last summer and she placed second! In addition to being engaged with a great amount of charm, Helen is considered an exceptionally fine pianist.

Home from a three week's stay in California are Mr. and Mrs. Don Ellington. Also back from quite a lengthy sojourn in the south, and reporting freezing weather along the Southern coast, are the Roland Wrights.

Lots of folks are anticipating a jaunt to Eugene in mid-March, and they will be good rooting from the Klamath section especially if the Pelicans make it into the final bracket of the state basketball tournament. Reservations are reportedly non-existent even at this early date.

Coming home next week-end are Paul and Mary Jane Sabo who are recovering satisfactorily following a harrowing experience of early January when they were burned in the explosion of a butane gas tank at their trailer house in Corvallis where they attend college. Mrs. Stephen Sabo, Paul's mother, has returned home after spending much of the time with the two. Mary Jane is still in the hospital in Corvallis and Paul went back in after a touch of flu put him down. They'll be at the Sabo home here at 73 Pine when they return.

Quite a colony of Klamath folks in and around Pasadena, The G. A. Krauses, of course, have spent each winter there for a number of years, but more recent additions are the Willard Constans, Huntington Taylor, Bill Dinsmore and his wife who visited here last summer, the Charles Moore who have wintered there for some time, Rose and Dennis Babson and young Punky, and quite a few others. Almost as thickly populated with former Klamath folks as the San Jose sector.

Of interest to his many friends here is word of improvement of George Courtright, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Courtright of Klamath Agency, who continues to receive treatment for polio at Knickerbocker hospital in New York City. George was stricken while in Paris last summer where he had gone to continue the study of music. The right leg is still affected but he is able to get around with crutches. He writes of the wonderful care given the polio patients, a number of which are in the same room with him. He may be there for a full year, his father reports.

Dates On the Calendar Dept.: Fremont PTA's benefit card party for undernourished children's hot lunch program, next Saturday, March 6. Fremont auditorium; egg raffle sponsored by home economics club of Langell Valley grange, on March 11, (more on this elsewhere in the paper), proceeds to go toward making up boxes for needy European children; Saturday, March 27, Easter Seal Sale drive for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults. Mrs. Robert A. Thompson is head of the local organization and Mrs. Lawrence Slater is chairman of Soroptimist club of Klamath Falls, sponsor group.

Church Rites Read In Early February

In a quiet, simple ceremony read in early February at the First Presbyterian church, Jane Elizabeth Bowne, daughter of Mrs. Francis J. Bowne of this city, became the bride of Jess Ellis Oakley, son of B. F. Oakley of Seio, Ore.

Rev. David F. Barnett Jr. read the nuptials the evening of February 6, in the presence of the bride's family and a few close friends.

Arrangements of pink carnations and white phlox formed the background for the rites. Mrs. Elbert Veatch played incidental music as guests assembled and accompanied Carl Hagel, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "I Love You Truly."

Miss Bowne chose a dressmaker suit of blue for her wedding. At the chapel was a corsage of roses and stephanotis.

Attending her was Mrs. William Mills who wore a suit of beige and a similar corsage. Best man was Carl Calvin.

Following the vows, the newlyweds left for a visit in San Francisco and other bay area points and in Southern California.

Since their return north, Mr. and Mrs. Oakley have been in Klamath Falls, but are leaving this week-end for Tacoma, Wash., where they will make their home for the present.

Mrs. George Grizzle was hostess to officers of the Klamath Falls Garden club at a lovely luncheon at her home on Jefferson street Wednesday afternoon, February 25.

Covers were laid for Mrs. H. S. Stone, Mrs. N. W. Wood, Mrs. T. L. Goodwin, Mrs. A. G. Proctor, Mrs. H. E. Getz, Mrs. Hugh O'Connor, Mrs. L. E. Geist, Mrs. Leo N. Huls and the hostess.

An executive board meeting followed luncheon.

AN ATTRACTIVE mother-daughter combination is Mrs. Calvin Lawson Hunt, left, and Mrs. Silas Corwin Coleman. A lovely luncheon at the Pelican party room last Saturday afternoon honored Mrs. Coleman, who is here for an extended visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Hunt, from her home in Battle Creek, Michigan. Mrs. Warren Coe Hunt entertained for the visitor.

THIS VISITOR delighted small Lynne, left, and Sherry Farley. She is their grandmother, Mrs. W. F. Farley, who has been a guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. T. F. Farley, at their Pacific Terrace home since December. Mrs. Farley left a few days ago for a visit in Florida before returning to her home in Holden, West Virginia.

KUHS Drama Group Presents Play

Excellent portrayals were given by the students of the drama department of Klamath Union high school, when the play, "The Valiant," was presented before members of the American Association of University Women at the Little Theatre, Saturday, February 21. Mrs. B. B. Blomquist, head of the drama department of the high school, directed the play, and the meeting was arranged by the drama group of AAUW. All members of the cast were very fine, with special credit going to Joe Demetarakos, the understudy, who portrayed the leading role after only one rehearsal.

Mrs. C. E. Brissenden, a member of the international relations group, asked full support for what will be known as the "Vanderberg bill." A resolution was passed by the membership requesting that this district's representative to the congress, as well as Oregon's two senators support the bill in its entirety. The bill embodies the Marshall plan, and is a compromise of the earlier Herter and Eaton bills.

The treasurer's report included a gift to assist two local students to participate in the recent art exhibit at Portland.

The tea table was charming in a motif honoring George Washington's birthday. A modernistic cherry tree, designed by Erna Wauchope, lemon sherbet floating in red punch, cherry colored mints and white cake were used by the refreshment committee, which consisted of Mrs. Robert Erlandson, Mrs. Hugh Tolley and Erna Wauchope. Mrs. O. E. Pickett, president of the local branch, and Miss Wauchope, served.

An orchid corsage was presented to Mrs. B. B. Blomquist by the drama group of AAUW, of which she is a member, and a gift from the local association itself was made to her in appreciation of the interest and stimulus she has always given members interested in drama.

Toastmistress

At the meeting of the Toastmistress club last Wednesday evening Vivian Owens was toastmistress and introduced the speakers. Wanda Elliott gave an interesting talk entitled "Why Can't We Be Like Crews?" and Helen Mueller spoke on the cause and cure of the spring ailment, "Rummageitis."

Mabel Hanson was topic mistress, and each member gave a two-minute talk on an "unforgettable character."

Guests of the evening were Mrs. Billie Walker and Mrs. Marie Barr of Salem.

The next meeting of the Toastmistress club will be held at the Winema hotel on March 10 when there will be special guests from most of the towns in Southern Oregon.

Dessert

Friends were invited to the Walter Wiesendanger home, 2032 Earle street, Wednesday, when Mrs. Wiesendanger entertained at a 1 o'clock dessert for Mrs. Calvin Lawson Hunt.

Bouquets of sweetpeas and forget-me-nots centered the small refreshment tables, and favors carried out a pink and blue theme.

Guests were Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Silas Corwin Coleman of Battle Creek, Mich., Mrs. Walter Bethune, Mrs. James Hunt, Mrs. Alfred Collier, Mrs. Fred Ehlers, Mrs. Don Hunt, Mrs. Bob Hunt, Mrs. Warren Coe Hunt, Mrs. J. C. Hunt and Mrs. Arthur Triebwasser.

Visitor

An interesting visitor in town these past few days has been the Rev. Father Rexsteiner, who for 10 years has been head of a Catholic mission in China.

Father Rexsteiner renewed acquaintances with Stanley Staiger while he was here. Mr. and Mrs. Staiger and son came down this week from their home in Oswego and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Woodruff, Mrs. Staiger's parents, where Father Rexsteiner was also a guest.

The story of how Father Rexsteiner and Staiger met is an interesting one. It was in the war, when Staiger was stationed with a paratroop unit doing OSS work behind Japanese lines. Father Rexsteiner's mission was located nearby, and Staiger was one of a group who lived at the mission while they were in that area.

Father Rexsteiner has been in this country for a year on leave of absence and will leave early next month for eight more years in China.

Mrs. Woodruff had Father Rexsteiner as a speaker at the meeting of the Delphian group held at her home Friday morning. Present were members and a group of guests invited to hear the speaker.

GUEST ARTIST at the annual Klamath Union high school spring concert is Madelon Adler, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Adler of this city. Madelon will play the Grieg Concerto in A Minor at the March 5 concert in the KUHS auditorium.

Spring Fantasy Mrs. Wissenbach Is Quota Club Speaker

A committee of Sojourner members is hard at work on festive plans for the club's spring tea, scheduled for Saturday, March 27. Co-chairmen for the event, who were introduced to members present at the February 25 meeting, are Mrs. Al Lent and Mrs. Harry Fredricks. Mrs. Lent announced that the tea committee would be composed of the following members, Mrs. A. J. Lambert, Mrs. S. B. Hopkins, Mrs. William Greene, Mrs. H. R. Collins and Mrs. John Ashley. Coming as it does on the day before Easter, the Spring Fantasy theme which Mrs. Lent mentioned, is particularly appropriate. Members are permitted to bring as many guests as they desire, and are urged to mark March 27 as an important day on their calendar.

Other business of the meeting was the introduction of seven guests, Mrs. G. W. Nelson, Mrs. C. B. Stauff, Mrs. A. D. Harvey, Mrs. David Boyd, Mrs. Dean Oakley and Mrs. Nathan Rosenbaum. Two new members were welcomed, Mrs. Ted Lind and Mrs. Gerald Garner. Hostesses for the afternoon, Mrs. John Inley and Mrs. Clyde Roberts, had provided an attractive centerpiece for the speaker's table, and at the close of the card session, awarded beautifully-wrapped gifts to the prize winners, Mrs. Al Kusler and Mrs. George Gates in bridge, and Mrs. A. J. Lambert in pinocle. A new feature of this meeting was the first session of a bridge instruction table, which proved very popular.

In cards, prizes went to Mrs. Don Hunt, Mrs. Ehlers and Mrs. Whitlatch.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Campbell of 1245 Pacific Terrace returned this week from a three weeks motor trip to Southern California.

Members and guests present were Alice Vitus, Hazel Sloan, Catherine Frock, Annabelle Newton, Lavonne Hooper, Alexis Runyan, Helen Weber, Bernice Buffington, Virginia Mack, Marjorie Eagle, Virginia Calhoun.

Cardula Eells, Vera Chase, Anne Mason, Hap Jones, Sara Brooks, Gladys Brody, Thirza DeCew, Juanita Nellis, Florence Shirk, Jessie Lyle, Hazel Morrison, Francis Palmer, Blanche Petroff, Mrs. Muesen and Mrs. Wissenbach.

The next meeting will be a luncheon and business meeting at the Pelican cafe.

Hostesses for the evening were past matrons, Lena Dennis and Dorothea Wortley.

After the meeting members and guests were served refreshments by a committee consisting of Myrtle Schieferstein, chairman, and Margaret Ward, Elba Reno, Helen Spiker, Anella Voight and Clifford Voight.

Worthy Matron Alma Getz wore a lei of fragrant pink carnations presented to her by Mrs. Glenn Kent and sent from Hawaii for the occasion. Mrs. Kent recently visited in the islands. The next meeting of the order on March 9 will be a special occasion celebrating the 49th birthday of the chapter.

Fashion Review

The Hesperians group of Altamont Junior high school entertained their mothers and teachers with a fashion review and tea Monday afternoon, February 23.

The style review featured fashions from the Revolutionary War period to the New Look. Mrs. Roland Thompson was in charge of the program, and Hesperians were assisted by the homemaking department. Mrs. Jack Wright was in charge of the tea.

Daffodils and green tapers formed the attractive spring setting for the tea table.

Entertaining were Margaret Quick with a piano selection, and Jeanette Rusteen and Elaine Irwin, who sang vocal solos.

A number of young friends called to wish Jolynn Zimmerman happy birthday Saturday, February 21, when her mother, Mrs. Thomas Zupan, entertained for her at her home, 925 Donald street.

Jolynn was six years old. Games and refreshments furnished activity for the afternoon. A red, white and blue theme was used in party decorations in keeping with the George Washington birthday motif. Jolynn's guests were Donna Schuss, Susan, Sarah and James Forter, Mary Ann Knight, Diane Wolter, Larry Walter, Jr., Anne Marie Eck, Erma Jo Scoggins and Gracie Lou Henry.

MRS. JESS ELLIS OAKLEY, before her marriage in early February, was Jane Elizabeth Bowne. She is the daughter of Mrs. Francis J. Bowne of this city. The new Mr. and Mrs. Oakley are leaving this week-end for Tacoma, Washington, to make their home.

Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Gerber entertained at a dinner party last Sunday evening at their home on High street.

The affair was given in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Jess E. Oakley. Mrs. Oakley is the former Jane Bowne of this city and was married early this month to Mr. Oakley.

Honoring the couple were Dr. and Mrs. John Merryman and Susan, Mr. and Mrs. Gerber and their daughters, Margaret, Marilyn and Sylvia.

Tau Chapter

Mrs. Loyal Heath and Lona Martin were co-hostesses at a regular meeting of Tau chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, at Miss Martin's home, 679 South Sixth street, Tuesday evening, February 24.

Mrs. George A. Wright, president, conducted the short business meeting. Pat Fairchild told the story of "Lohengrin" by Wagner to better acquaint members with opera.

Mrs. Lloyd Smith who is moving to Myrtle Creek, and Charlotte Bailey, who is returning to her home in New Jersey, were honored by a handkerchief shower.
