Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

YESTERDAY'S announcement on the purchase of the Pelican Bay lumber plant by an Iowa firm marked the formal conclusion of the activities of one of the glamorous "giants" of the lumber business here during the period of the great harvest of Klamath pine.

EPLEY

Pelican Bay Lumber company, organized and headed by the energetic Harold D. Mortenson, operated in the Klamath country for over 30 years, and in that period became the largest purchaser of timber under government contracts —both forest service and Indian service—in the entire West.

Our authority for that statement is the late W. E. Lamm's excellent "Lumbering in Klamath," written by a man who directed another of those "giants."

Mr. Mortenson came to Klamath in 1910, a year after the railroad reached this place, and organized Pelican Bay with a contract for a large unit of government timber lying west of Pelican Bay in the Crater Lake National forest (thus the name of the firm.) In 1911 the company built a complete modern sawmill plant, with the first band head saw, the first shotgun carriage, and the first complete planing mill. It had a capacity of 60,000 feet, and it was the first local plant to cut in a big way for the outside markets. When the mill burned in 1914, a bigger one supplanted it, and another fire in 1918 resulted in construction of still another mill—the first completely electrified mill in the county.

The company's logging operations covered many units in the national forests, on the reservation and elsewhere. In recent years, following the big wartime cut, the plant's manufacturing operations have slowed down, and in 1946, the Pelican Bay plant was sold to Pelican Pine Manufacturers, a co-partnership including Mr. Mortenson, P. A. Albertson and H. Edwin Nowell.

The sale by Pelican Pine to Car-Ad-Co means that an active operation will continue at the plant of the old Pelican Bay, a matter of much gratification to this community. The new owners will process lumber there, a development significant of changes in the character of Klamath lumbering. Klamath people welcome the new operators, even as they feel regret at the retirement from the active field of Mr. Mortenson and his associates. Mr. Mortenson, who is reported as ill in San Francisco, was active in community affairs for many years, headed the chamber of commerce, and was the spearhead of one of our most successful community celebrations back in the 'twenties.

Terrace Improvement

UNDER leadership of Councilman Paul Landry of that district, a movement is on foot among Pacific Terrace property holders to make changes in that street that will remove the center parkway eyesore and otherwise improve the thoroughfare through an outstanding residential district.

Widening of the paving strips is proposed, under a Bancroft financing plan. This program contemplates leaving a parking strip for beautification, we understand. Certainly, the latter should be definitely a part of an improvement program, though it might not qualify for Bancroft financing.

Pacific Terrace is a most attractive residential district, and a real appearance asset to the community. Its function in that respect will be greatly enhanced by beautification throughout of the center parkway, which has been improved for a short distance by individual property holders.

Briefs From The Pocket File

REMEMBER back in the Midwest dust bowl how the Los Angeles city police were stationed on the California borders to keep penniless dust-bowlers from entering the Golden State . . . Now, suggests a waggish acquaintance of ours, how about ranging the Oregon State police along the border to keep fugitives from the California dust bowl out of Oregon? . . . There is some wistful thinking about Percy Murray for a mayor candidate this fall . . . Mr. Murray, who would make a fine city executive, so far has refused to encourage it . . . Judge Fred W. Wilson of The Dalles, who was the fair jurist on the sensational Manning case trial here 14 years ago, has decided to retire from the judgeship after five terms (30) years.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The revulsion of the non-communist nations of Europe to the bolshevist rape of Czechoslovakia is reminiscent of the violent reaction o Hitler's assault on that same little republic ten years ago as he got his conquest of Europe under way—both reminiscent and significant.

DeWitt Mackenzie

Toward the close of 1938 I arrived in London looking for the solution of an important problem. This was after I had attended the Munich conference, followed Hitler into Czechoslovakia, and made a grand swing of the Balkans and back through Italy and France to England. I immediately sought out a distinguished British source and placed my problem before him.

"I sense a decided hardening of the British and French attitude toward Germany, but I can't put my finger on it. I shall be grateful if you will tell me whether I am right and, if so, what that hardening means."

Appeasement Out

"You are quite right," he replied without hesitation. "We have decided that appeasement goes out the window. We shall use our armies if necessary."

That was to say, of course, that the two powers would use their armies to keep Hitler in hand if he started a rampage. It was the right idea but a couple of years too late.

Now with the communizing of Czechoslovakia we have reached a crucial point in a fresh world conquest which the democracies have been trying to halt by appeasement. The first reaction to the red assault on the small democracy was the joint note of condemnation by America, Britain and France. This has been followed by a wave of anti-Soviet sentiment which has swept Scandinavia. Norway, Denmark and Sweden—all of which are in the danger zone of red aggression—are showing their feelings by mass demonstrations and press attacks against the aggressive spread of communism over Europe.

At the same time there has been a sudden decision to speed up the conferences to consider implementation of British Foreign Minister Bevin's proposal for a "western union" of Europe. England, France and the so-called Benelux countries —Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxemburg—are scheduled to meet tomorrow in Brussels to begin discussion of this sensational project.

In short, this would provide for a consolidation of Western Europe for mutual benefit which would include defense against bolshevik aggression.

Meanwhile Turkey, another strategically situated country upon which Moscow had trained its big guns, has erupted into action. Fifty-six alleged communists went on trial yesterday in Istanbul, charged with forming a society to "establish the supremacy of one class over another."

Far from being an encouragement to war, a firm stand against communist aggression is the sure way to prevent another global upheaval. The certain way to bring on another world war is to temporize and appease.

Marines Slate Goering Show

Gold tableware and a jewel-studded gold vanity chest will be among articles from the Herman Goering collection on display here next week. The display, sponsored by the Marine Corps league, Crater Lake detachment, will be at the corner of 8th and Main on March 11 and 12 from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The exhibit is on a nationwide tour to raise funds for the welfare foundation of the league for the benefit of marines, widows and orphans. There is no fee charged to view the display but contributions will be accepted.

Besides the tableware from Goering's private railroad car, rich tapestries and rare documents will also be displayed, plus the chest encrusted with sapphires, emeralds, imperial Chinese jade, opals and rubies.

Another item of interest is a 36-foot panel which was used to cover Hitler's speaking platform. This is the largest and most expensive swastika with 17 pounds of gold used in its tailoring and is said to be worth thousands of dollars.

The exhibit will be housed in a huge trailmobile.

Since I am a daily restaurant eater a have tucked a napkin under the chin in practically every beanery n our town, I feel qualified to make a few comments on the subject of coffee.

You can count on the fingers of one hand—and still have enough of the members left over to scratch your head with — the number of places hereabouts that honestly and consistently serve real good savory java.

In most any place you want to use as an example, the jamoke is pretty good one day but the next day it'll probably taste like it was made out of dried Deschutes potatoes.

If I were city health inspector, instead of the "A," "B," "C" and "D" cleanliness scorecard grading of restaurants, I'd mark them on the calibre of coffee they consistently brew. A place that serves its customers a good 5-cent cup of java can be trusted to be okay in other departments of the feeding game.

I'm like Mutual Broadcasting System's puckish newscaster, Frank Hemingway.

When I say coffee, I mean good coffee.

Charlie Schuss, impresario of Schuss' Tavern on South Seventh, is a partner in the business firm which is remodeling the Town club and Busy Bee restaurant. The inside of that building is being worked over and already a huge Neon sign is installed over the front.

Charlie promises something de luxe in the way of dining and conviviality when the new place is open for business.

Speaking of eateries, a fry cook in one of the Main street establishments is familiarly known as the "Crisco Kid."

Radio people tell me that during the war when Roosevelt delivered one of his fireside chats, he had just about a perfect Hooper rating. He took all four networks at the same time and really got an audience.

But now a man blessed with a voice of somewhat less pure silver is in the White House and when he goes on the air his Hooper rating is no better than that of the average entertainer. Truman is not being allowed to tie up all four networks at once, either, and competition with detective thrillers and jackpot quiz shows does not tend to increase his listening audience.

* * *

Petitions to put Truman's name on the Oregon democratic primary ballot circulated here last week and collected signers rather slowly. The man is no popular hero to us hard-shell democrats, but he is several cuts above the bargain-counter FDR, Henry Wallace.

Since it takes only 1000 names to put Truman on the Oregon ballot as a presidential candidate, his backers probably will succeed with the petitions. But I wanted to point out that no one was hurt in a stampede of signers.

The Doctor Says—

Penicillin Helps VD Victims

Written for NEA Service

The two principal kinds of venereal diseases, gonorrhea and syphilis, are both present all over the world. Until recently, they have required entirely different kinds of treatment. Now penicillin has been found useful for both diseases.

Gonorrhea is caused by a germ called the gonococcus, which is responsible for a great deal of illness, both acute and chronic. Most of those who were infected recovered quickly when given sulfa drugs.

Unfortunately, some of the gonococci resist the action of the sulfa drugs and patients with some infections did not respond. Then penicillin came along and was found to be extremely useful for those who were infected with gonococci which were not desroyed by the sulfas.

The results were not perfect; some gonococci were found which also resisted penicillin, so that the complete and successful cure of gonorrhea is still not an accomplished fact.

Syphilis had required a lengthy treatment with preparations made up principally of the heavy metals, including arsenic, mercury and bismuth, given by injection. This type of treatment cannot yet be abandoned, because penicillin is not a cure-all for syphilis. However, the recent studies of penicillin for various stages of syphilis do show that in this new preparation we have a remarkable agent which will probably help to some degree in the treatment, and perhaps in the elimination of syphilis.

CARE URGED

Until more is known about the action of penicillin in syphilis, however, it cannot be too strongly emphasized that those who have had either gonorrhea or syphilis, and especially the latter, should continue under medical observation until it is absolutely sure that they have been cured.

Syphilis can be wiped out, not only because treatment has been and is being constantly improved, but also because the disease can be diagnosed early and those who are infectious treated so that they will no longer remain a danger to others.

THE DOCTOR ANSWERS

QUESTION: What can be done for intermittent roaring and buzzing sounds in the ear?

ANSWER: It depends on what is causing the trouble. The condition may be in the ear itself, it may be imaginary, or it may come from some general condition, such as high blood pressure. The important thing to do is to be examined by a physician.

Armory Sets Open House

Thursday night will be open house at the armory in observance of National Guard Week, Capt. David Totton, ranking officer for the Klamath Falls chapter announced today.

Concluding the week of observance will be a big dance at the armory with music by Karl Smykil's orchestra. Members will be in uniform and unit wearing-in of new members recruited through the membership drive being held this week will be part of the program.

New equipment of the guard will be on display both on the evening of open house and at the dance which is sponsored by the Junior chamber of commerce. Among the articles on display will be a 105 mm Howitzer, a bazooka, mortar, 50-calibre heavy machine-gun and radar equipment.

Bud Steinseifer is chairman in charge of the dance and Bill Jeffcoat will have charge of the refreshment stand. The public is invited to all phases of the observance.

Tillamook County Hospital Okayed

PORTLAND, March 3 (AP) — A $1,000,000 hospital for Tillamook county has been approved by the U. S. public health service.

Dr. Harold M. Erickson, state health officer, said the hospital has first priority under the Oregon hospital and health center program.

One-third of the funds for the 75-bed hospital will come from the federal government. Tillamook county will provide the remaining two-thirds under a 15-mill two-year tax program voted last year.

Other communities scheduled for similar structures are Heppner, Bend, Burns and Sandy.

When calling the Monique Beauty Shop, 8280, for your appointment, ask about a facial. They're delightful! Upstairs in the Town Shop.

APPRECIATION

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., (To the Editor)—For many years my wife has had great need for doctors, nurses and hospitals. It is fair to say her life has been spared a number of times through their kindly service.

Again my wife has undergone emergency surgery successfully.

We have had a lot of faith in doctors and nurses and we are grateful and believe in saying "Thank You" to the living.

These verses were composed by Mrs. Braaten for nurses a number of years ago for their graduation and I thought them appropriate.—Dewey Braaten, 2450 Biehn street, Klamath Falls.

TO THE CLASS OF 1933
By Mrs. Braaten

To the graduating class of 1933
Success and good health I wish to thee.
You cared for me, each one of you,
Given me comfort, to carry through.

In training you've spent three years of your life,
The longing for home, it pierced as a knife.
How often I've seen, the teams would come,
Though lonely you felt, you tried to hum.

It's been a great struggle for each one of you,
A nurse has so many duties to do.
During my sickness, so many a time
You have given me comfort, dear nurses of mine.

Many a night I restlessly lay
For each one of you, I have tried to pray,
That the Lord would give you strength each day,
To do His work in His own way.

At the cross road of life, you girls now stand,
Through your service, you've gained many a friend.
My thanks to you, I want to give,
Remembering your service as long as I live.

Little we know what us befalls,
Let us be ready, when the Master calls.
For every pain on earth, you made lighter,
Each star in your crowns will shine much brighter.

(Dedicated to the graduating class of the St. Lukes school of nursing, Fargo, N. Dak.)

LAST STRAW

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., (To the Editor)—There are four words that bother me when I see them in headlines. They are "Compulsory Universal Military Training." Conditions in the world being what they are today, it behooves us to be strong if we would survive. But, we can not be made good or strong by compulsion. These attainments must come from within—voluntarily. Compulsory universal military training in times of peace is bad. It kills individual freedom and initiative. It makes robots out of free men.

It leads to centralized authority, which was the last form of government of all great nations and civilizations before their downfall. We have too much centralized authority under our bureaucratic form of government today. Compulsory universal military training would be the last straw.

Germany is a shining example of compulsory military might. Look at her today, after over a century of military training. Look at all of Europe for that matter.

If we cannot keep strong with a volunteer army in peace times, we are lost. It might help if we abolished the caste system in our defense forces and in time of war conscript wealth as well as men.

It has also been said, "There can be no world brotherhood without a divine fatherhood."

The Gallup Poll

ERP Holding Support Of Voters

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., March 3—Voters who have heard or read about the Marshall plan, now being debated in congress, continue to support it.

When asked what their opinion is of the plan, twice as many people who have heard about it express favorable opinions toward it as unfavorable.

There are some geographical differences of attitude, but in all sections the Marshall plan receives substantially more votes of approval than of disapproval.

On the question whether the plan, if adopted by congress, should be administered by the state department or by a separate agency, the poll finds no particular crystallization of public opinion. The number favoring state department control is slightly larger than the number favoring a separate agency to administer the plan. But neither scheme gets a majority.

Those are the findings of the latest institute test of sentiment on the plan. Growth of public knowledge about the Marshall plan during recent months is shown in the following trend on the question, "Have you heard or read about the Marshall plan?"

| | Yes, have heard | No, have not |
|---|---|---|
| July | 49% | 51% |
| October | 49 | 51 |
| November | 61 | 39 |
| December | 64 | 36 |
| February | 71 | 29 |
| TODAY | 79 | 21 |

All who had heard about the plan were then asked:

"What is your opinion of the plan?"

The vote today as compared to previous polls follows:

| | Nov. | Feb. | Today |
|---|---|---|---|
| Favorable opinions | 47% | 56% | 57% |
| Unfavorable | 15 | 17 | 18 |
| No opinion | 38 | 27 | 25 |

The attitude by geographical sections is as follows:

| | Favorable | Unfavorable | No opin. |
|---|---|---|---|
| N. Eng. & M. Atl. | 61% | 16% | 23% |
| E. Cent. | 50 | 25 | 25 |
| W. Cent. | 56 | 18 | 26 |
| South | 57 | 14 | 29 |
| Far West | 58 | 16 | 26 |

The issue of how the Marshall plan funds should be administered was put before the country as follows:

"Do you think a separate agency headed by a man with cabinet rank, should be set up in Washington to have full control and supervision of the Marshall plan—or do you think this problem should be handled by the state department?"

| | |
|---|---|
| Separate agency | 32% |
| State department | 39 |
| No opinion | 29 |

* * *

Attitudes toward the Marshall plan in England, France and Italy —the three nations who would be the major recipients under the plan —were measured in February by three members of the international Gallup poll organization. It was the first international poll conducted on the Marshall plan.

In all three countries it was found that between 60 and 65 per cent favor the plan, but that many different theories are held concerning American motives in proposing the Marshall plan. The number who think we proposed it for the broad humanitarian purpose of helping Europe get back on its feet is almost equally matched by the number who think our purpose is to build up foreign markets in order to stave off a business collapse here in the United States.

The vote in this survey follows:

| | Eng. | France | Italy |
|---|---|---|---|
| To help Europe, Humanitarian | 24% | 23% | 35% |
| Wants markets, profits, bolstering Europe to stave off depression | 22 | 26 | 17 |
| To stop communism | 14 | 14 | 20 |
| To get more power, imperialism | 8 | 9 | 11 |
| For own safety, to promote peace | 3 | 1 | 9 |
| Other reasons | 3 | 6 | 9 |
| No opinion | 26 | 21 | 17 |

The polling was conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion, the French Institute of Public Opinion, and DOXA, the Italian Institute of Public Opinion — three of the eleven overseas member organizations in the Gallup poll international set-up which has been conducting international polls regularly once a month for the past nine months.

Pendleton To Get Guard Units

PENDLETON, Ore., March 3 (AP) A battalion medical detachment of two officers and 32 men will be organized here in addition to an infantry company of the 186th infantry, 41st division, Oregon national guard, it was announced Tuesday.

Capt. Arlo Pjelland, company C commander, said the medical unit, a detachment of second batallion, would be commanded by Dr. John B. Easton of Pendleton, a World War II veteran.
