Search For Lost Trapper Continues

Search continued today for Claude Everett Haskins, 46-year-old trapper, who is believed to have drowned either in the marsh area bordering the Klamath river near the old Whiteline yards or in the river proper.

Searchers today turned their attention to the river, and dragging equipment was employed in the hunt.

Haskins has been missing since Wednesday, when he left at 1 p. m. to look over his trap-lines in the swampy area near the old Great Northern roundhouse, known as the old Whiteline yards. He was expected to return at 6 o'clock that evening, but when he failed to return, members of his household assumed that he had gone to stay with other members of the family in town. When he had not returned Thursday evening, his brother, Floyd Haskins, of Klamath Falls, notified state police, who went immediately to the marsh. It was decided to postpone search until yesterday morning, since it was dark.

Floyd Haskins told police his brother was diabetic. It is believed that Haskins suffered a stroke while working his trapline, and not being able to help himself, may have drowned.

Start On Friday

Haskins' brother, along with a state police officer and a handful of searchers, began a hunt yesterday morning, finding a number of the missing man's traps, but no trace of the man himself.

Police issued a call over local radio stations for volunteer searchers at noon, and by 3 o'clock, some 20 or 30 men were at the scene. A systematic combing of the boggy and dangerous marsh was conducted, but yielded no trace of a body. A plane from Lakeland Flying Service circled the area, but could find nothing. An officer clambered to the top of the railroad water tower and looked over the area with field glasses, but he reported no findings.

One volunteer searcher brought his Doberman Pinscher dog to the scene, and while the animal reportedly had been used successfully on such occasions in the past, he was evidently unable to pick up a scent in the stagnant water and mud.

State police expressed their appreciation to the searchers who worked with them. Despite hip boots and waders worn by many of the volunteers, most returned wet from slaps and falls in the treacherous ground. Officers said they wished to thank each man who aided in the search.

Snow Survey Goes Ahead

MEDFORD, March 20 (AP)—The government's newly mechanized snow measuring wheels are chugging along on schedule today after braving a heavy snowstorm on their first day in the mountains.

The seven men who departed from Ashland yesterday to measure snow levels along the Cascades divide reported by short wave radio that they completed the 30-mile trek to Fish Lake safely.

The group, traveling by snow-cat, expects to cover the 674 miles to Mount Hood by April 1, completing work which in the past has taken weeks to do. The snow measurements are used for forecasting irrigation water supply.

The surveyors radioed that they were going through Lake of the Woods to the east side of the mountains today and would camp tonight at Cold Springs near Pelican Butte lookout station in Klamath county. Sunday they will measure the snow course at Crater lake.

Klamath Man Joins Tong

ASHLAND, March 20—According to Roger Cram, vice president of Sigma Alpha Sigma at Southern Oregon college, 12 new members were taken into the speech fraternity February 27, at an initiation held at the home of Chris Barker, president of the organization.

The neophytes were Del Yantis and Jack Samson of Klamath Falls; Richard Traylor and Robert Griffith of Ashland; Marvin Hart, Virgil Wolf and Alvin Wolf, all of Medford; Kenneth Bradshaw of Bonanza; Robert Stumbo of Wolf Creek; Huber Camell of Rockaway; Wallace Falkenstein of Grants Pass, and Bob Weaver of Edmonds, Wash.

Speeding Train Leaps From Rails

CHICAGO, March 20 (AP)—A speeding Chicago-bound streamliner carrying 500 passengers hit an open rail yesterday, spilling all 13 cars from the tracks. One passenger and three train employees suffered minor injuries.

The Abraham Lincoln, a Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroad train, was traveling 70 miles an hour when it was derailed in the Glenn yards, 10 miles south of Chicago.

Early Opening Of Meat Plants Seen

ALBERT LEA, Minn., March 20 (AP)—Senator Ball (R-Minn.) forecasts the reopening of the nation's meat packing plant not later than a week from Monday.

Addressing 800 at the annual Swine Institute here last night, Ball said if the president's fact-finding board failed to settle the strike issues, the government would seek an injunction under the Taft-Hartley law.

Homelife Blamed For Ulcers

LOS ANGELES, March 20 (AP)—Men, are you bothered with peptic ulcers?

Maybe the little woman is to blame, says Dr. Earl E. Congdon, of Laper, Mich., president of the American College of Osteopathic Internists.

"More men have peptic ulcers," Dr. Congdon declared in an interview, "because they can't get along with their wives."

Along with matrimonial discord, he placed "worries and frustrations" as major ulcer producers.

Monkeys once were used in some parts of the Far East to pluck the top leaves of the tea plant.

Weatherman Sees Big Crop Year

WASHINGTON, March 20 (AP)—The weatherman holds one key to how well you'll eat in the year ahead, farming experts say.

An agricultural department survey made public yesterday shows farmers are ready to produce big crops—if they get good weather.

Spring has been slow arriving in most sections of the country. Severe winter weather last week left a large part of the United States under a blanket of snow. It will take time for fields to dry. The department said spring day planting already is delayed in the south.

Last year's spring floods and a summer drought cut farm production, particularly of livestock feed. That's the main reason for declining meat supplies.

This year farmers are intent on refilling empty feed bins—the first step toward putting more meat on the nation's tables. They plan to plant feed grains on three per cent more land than last year, the survey showed.

The indicated corn acreage is about equal to last year's small acreage. But it is offset by larger acres of oats and barley—grains which will supply feed in the fall before corn is ready.

The department said a 3,000,000-bushel corn crop is possible. This would top last year's small one by 600,000,000 bushels.

The acreage of food grains—wheat, rye and rice—is expected to be a little larger than last year. Increases were indicated also for flaxseed, potatoes, and sorghums. Small-crop plantings are in sight for soybeans, rice, dry beans and peas, tobacco, peanuts and sugar beets.

In Ontong, Java, copra, the dried coconut meat, is used as money.

Model Fan Rotary Guest

Rotarians this week heard an interesting description of the model railroading hobby by Dr. Merle Swansen of Klamath Falls at their regular weekly meeting at the Willard on Friday.

Dr. Swansen described in detail the intricate craftsmanship which supplies the principal fascination of the hobby and explained that model railroading as a hobby is merely an amateur outgrowth of the construction of scale models used by transportation engineers and architects in developing new railroad train designs. Jokingly but pointedly he said that the hobby is one of the best treatments for ulcers known at the present time.

Rotary also elected the following members to serve on the board of directors for the coming year, Dick Hensel, Ed Geary, Charles Hester, Elton Thompson, Deb Addison and Al Hattan.

Dusting Underway

Earl Liston and Grove Baneroff returned Thursday morning from Arlington where they have been crop-dusting for Murel Long. They came down to get a 450 HP Waup Steerman for Long, to be used with three other dusting planes in treating wheat fields with weed killer.

The spray assembly on the dusting plane was installed by L. E. Stinson Flying service. The plane was licensed by Klamath Aircraft service, operated by Tony Steinbock. Dusters are stored and maintained for Long here.

Ski Rack

A new plane ski-rack has recently been designed, built and installed in Louis Soukup's BT-13. Soukup used the new equipment for the first time on a week-end flight to Sun Valley with his wife and her sister as passengers. He has reported the ski-rack which was constructed at KAS as satisfactory in every way.

Visitors

Les Wilson, tractor and used-car salesman of Portland, flew in this week in a Beechcraft Bonanza which he left at the airport to be serviced.

A familiar blue and white plane was flown in and landed at the Klamath airport and is now stored in the hangar. It is the Beechcraft formerly belonging to Louis Soukup.

Vincent Herthy recently brought his Luscomb over from his Henley ranch to hangar it at the field. He is putting in his spring grain crops and needs all his space at the ranch.

Tony Steinbock left Wednesday by car on a combination business and vacation trip to Los Angeles. He will visit flying fields en route and look over airplane parts.

United

Non-stop service between Reno and Los Angeles, and Reno and Fresno would be inaugurated if United Air Line's improved air Klamath Falls - California service is approved by CAB. It was announced today.

This would be in addition to the non-stops available to Sacramento, San Francisco and Oakland. Also the air line is anxious to establish non-stop service to Klamath Falls, Medford and points north along the coast, official word advised.

Traffic Figures

A final tabulation of 1947 air traffic figures of United Air Lines shows that the company registered substantial gains in passengers and cargo boarded at Klamath Falls according to W. T. McIntyre, local station manager.

A total of 6402 passengers were carried out of Klamath Falls by United last year, and air cargo increased 169.48 per cent over 1946. There were 28,799 pounds of mail, express and freight shipped to and from Klamath Falls last year, as against 19,848 pounds in 1946.

At the Denver center there are 79 persons working in shifts around the clock, controlling space on 126 daily flights out of 73 cities, including Klamath Falls, on the airline's coast-to-coast, Pacific coast and San Francisco-Honolulu system.

First Flight

Mrs. A. Nordberg of Connecticut, who has been visiting her daughter here at 3817 Altamont drive left Friday morning to return home by plane. Her son will meet her in New York at the airport and drive her home.
