

Tribesmen Take Whites Up On Joke About Giving The Land Back To Indians

PORTLAND, March 26 (AP)—The white man has joked so long about giving the country back to the Indians that the tribesmen are filing their claims in increasing numbers.

They say the great white chief didn't abide by his treaty agreements made in the 1800's. And now they want the cash.

The war agents for the bureau of Indian affairs figure the value of the land—plus accrued interest—it may be cheaper to give back the ancestral hunting grounds.

Congress started the whole thing when it set up the Indian claims commission. The descendants of the original inhabitants were given five years to prove that the government owes them for the land.

Claims in Oregon are only an example of what is going on in other parts of the country. And it looks expensive.

E. Morgan Pryse, regional director of the bureau of Indian affairs, has some of the claims on file.

In the most recent the Palutes of Nevada, Idaho and Oregon want pay for millions of acres in those three states and possibly a chunk of Utah. They claim the government cheated them under a treaty of 1863. At the time, they were given a few reservation areas on which to live. But the tribesmen say their ancestors bargained for more than that.

Growers To Hear Report On Marketing

TULELAKE, March 25—California state marketing officials are expected here for the early April meeting of the Tulelake Growers to speak on what happens to first grade Tulelake potatoes at wholesale and retail outlets after they leave local shipping points.

Clifford Wood, manager of the Growers, stated Wednesday that other problems will also get an airing. All Klamath basin potato growers are invited to be present and to take part in the proposed discussions on regulations governing certification of seed potatoes in California, the farm wage scale for this season, and the proposed official grain inspection service for this area.

The definite date will be announced upon the return of Jack Slezak, local state potato inspector for certified seed who has been present at a conference of California state department of agriculture officials in Sacramento.

Sam Anderson, newly elected chairman, will preside.

Lewis Troops Make Movie

FORT LEWIS, March 26 (AP)—This sprawling army post has been turned into a gigantic movie set with 10,000 stars taking the leads in an infantry training super-colossal epic.

Every unit of the 2nd infantry division will have a chance to show before the signal corps cameras engaged in filming what a signal corps company does in a combat infantry division. The picture will be used for instruction of troops assigned to infantry divisions and their accompanying signal corps units and will run to the length of a full feature.

Two movie-making veterans, Burt Wilson and Paul Long, are directing the production.

The biggest problem in the work is the weather, with frequent cloudiness and rain making shooting dates very uncertain. It is estimated that about eight weeks will be needed to accomplish the necessary 18 days of camera work. Such delays are easier to take, however, than picking up the division and moving it to sunnier lands, officials decided.

The Fort Lewis division was chosen as being "the most representative and best trained aggregation in the army, the only one at present considered an active combat division."

Red Bluff Roundup Biggest Yet

The 1948 Red Bluff Roundup, scheduled for April 17 and 18, will be the biggest western contest ever held in Northern California. C. F. Stover, president of the roundup association stated today. Advance ticket sales are far above any previous year and local roundup fans are urged to make reservations without delay. Stover added.

Headed by the $1000 purse in the bronc riding contest, the prize list has been proportionally increased in all events. Preparations are being made for more than 200 of the nation's leading cowboys who will compete for the big purses.

A full two-day program of arena and track events has been scheduled, including four thoroughbred running races each day. Featured racing events will be a quarter horse race and a men's relay race.

It is pointed out that the Red Bluff Roundup is a two-day contest, and the events are the same on both days. Roundup fans are urged to attend the Saturday show, if possible, as more and better seats will be available on that day.

Lawn-Sprinkler Drafted For Heavy Duty On Farms

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—The simple little lawn sprinkler—after decades of service to city folks—is going to the country.

And though it'll have to go hand in hand with a good-sized pumping plant, it is expected to make reclamation history in orchard and truck garden areas.

Secretary of the Interior Krug today announced his department's approval of the first sprinkler irrigation project in the federal reclamation program.

The idea is to use lawn sprinklers to prevent erosion on lands too steep for irrigation canals and ditches. The project would have its first trial in an orchard and truck garden area near The Dalles, Ore.

If approved by congress, the project would provide a pumping plant and pipe system to bring Columbia river water to 4530 acres of crop land in the west unit of The Dalles reclamation project. Operators would acquire sprinkler equipment privately.

Michael W. Straus, commissioner of reclamation, said private sprinkler irrigation on 1500 acres of the project has proved successful in preventing soil erosion and in saving water.

The cost of the project was estimated at $2,300,000.
