

WALLACE FIRES BOTH BARRELS

Third Party Candidate Levels Bitter Attack At Military Training Plans

WASHINGTON, March 31 (P)—Henry A. Wallace came to town and fired both barrels at the government's "Stop Russia" policy.

But there is no sign today that he switched any votes in congress on the issues of a draft and universal military training to strengthen the armed forces.

In fact, Chairman Gurney (R.-S.D.) of the senate armed services committee remarked:

"It is evident congress will pass some form of selective service and may adopt a universal military training program."

But for two hours and 58 minutes yesterday Wallace held the Washington spotlight as the star witness against America's military plans. He spent almost 45 minutes reading a bitter attack against President Truman's policies which he said are leading this country toward war.

Answered Questions

And then for more than two hours he faced a barrage of questions from members of Gurney's committee.

More than 400 people jammed into the hearing room. Other hundreds were unable to get past the guards. The audience was quiet and intent—but gave no sign either of sympathy or hostility.

After firing his prepared broadside at the administration's policies at home and abroad, questioning by senators brought out these Wallace viewpoints:

1. Our leaders should meet as soon as possible with Premier Stalin to get an "overall agreement" that will halt an arms race between Russia and the United States.

2. Russia has been no more guilty of aggression than the United States.

3. The United States' military policy toward Russia changed after the death of President Roosevelt.

4. Russian expansion in Europe is over and the Soviets are not a menace to the United States.

Wallace said he favors "a complete reversal of the Truman doctrine," pulling out of Greece and halting aid to Turkey. He also said any aid given to China would be wasted.

Instead, Wallace said, "we should meet with Stalin and get an overall agreement. It should be done as soon as possible."

As one explanation of Russia's distrust of the United States, Wallace said in answer to a question by Senator Hill (D-Ala.):

"Senator, if you would just reverse the situation and put yourself in the other position. The country destroyed from the seaboard to Gary, Ind. Ten million men killed. Livestock driven off. Homes destroyed. All that happens. And then a foreign power came close to the border with air bases—many air bases. Don't you think you would try to use whatever methods you have? This method of tit for tat will lead irrevocably to war. Russia can't win, but neither can we."

Wallace said he was not trying to "justify anybody" but merely trying to explain a viewpoint.
