Reduction Of Rail Rate Is Travel Spur

PULLMAN, Wash., April 3 (AP)—Reductions in railroad class rates would help the Northwest attract and develop new business without loss to any group. Dan H. Mater, Olympia, said yesterday.

Mater is consultant to the state attorney general on transportation and soon will publish a book on his three-year study of class rate structures. He addressed a Washington State college class.

Mater urged the Northwest to work together to get the interstate commerce commission to reduce class rates. He said more jobs, industries and markets can be developed without harming the more favorable rate structure enjoyed by some of the area's older industries. He said only 1.7 per cent of the total traffic in the Northwest is in the "class" structure, but high rates in this field handicap new businesses.

ASCAP Loses Court Case

OLYMPIA, April 3 (AP)—The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) Friday lost another round in its court battle to license and collect fees for public performances of its members' musical compositions in Washington.

It lost when the state supreme court refused to reconsider its decision of January 8 which ruled ASCAP had not complied with a 1947 state law. Compliance with the law is required before fees can be collected.

The law prohibits an organization such as ASCAP from doing business in the state unless it first files with the secretary of state a list of its copyrighted works and supplies certain supporting data as to each music title.

ASCAP had maintained it complied with the statute by filing a list of some 80,000 copyrighted works with the secretary of state.

The supreme court held, however, that the list included thousands of titles which are in the public domain, including "Auld Reekie," "Etude," "Minuet in G," and others.

"The music in the public domain is the cultural heritage of the people," the court said in its January opinion. "Everyone has the right to a free and unlimited use of it. ASCAP has no right to receive pay for its public performance for profit."

Cattlemen Plan Meet

PULLMAN, Wash., April 3 (AP)—Oregon and Washington speakers will be featured at the annual convention of the Washington Cattlemen's association at Okanogan May 26-27.

Joe Muir, extension animal husbandman at Washington State college, president of the Oregon Cattlemen's association, would discuss cooperation between the states.

The foot and mouth disease outbreak in Mexico will be described by A. K. Mitchell of Albert, N. M. Other speakers include Walter J. Robinson, Pomeroy, member of the W. S. C. board of regents; F. E. Mollin, secretary of the American National Livestock association, and Herman Oliver, John Day, Ore.

Prominent Northwest breeders will discuss "the other fellow's cattle" in a special panel. Muir said. Leaders will be Herbert Chandler, Baker, Ore., Hereford breeder; R. L. Rutter Jr., Ellensburg, Angus breeder, and Carl Grief, Uniontown, Shorthorn breeder. They will be forbidden to discuss their own breeds of cattle.

The traditional cowboy breakfast May 21 will launch an entertainment program which will include steer roping, stake races and a rodeo.

Pair Held After Wreck

SEATTLE, April 3 (AP)—An Oregon college student and a 21-year-old miner were held without charge in the city jail Friday after an automobile in which they were riding plunged through the barriers of a ferry slip into Lake Washington at 1:30 a. m.

Byron K. Bohm, 23, a student at Pacific college, Newberg, Ore., and Shepherd W. Demarc, Seattle, were treated at Harborview county hospital and released to police.

Ferries used an adjacent dock until the car was removed from 20 feet of water at 8 o'clock this morning.

Police said the car belonged to K. S. Williams of Seattle, who said he left it in a downtown parking lot at 11 a. m. yesterday.

Both men swam to the dock after the car sank about 30 feet from the end of the slip.

U. S. Planes Head North

FORT ST. JOHN, B. C., April 3 (CP)—Giant transport planes—both troop and supply carriers—roared over the wartime built northwest staging route Friday bound for the north, presumably United States air bases in Alaska.

The airborne armada, the greatest seen in the north since wartime, has sped across the skies in the last 36 hours, flying through hazardous northern weather.

March Was Cold, Wet

The month of March was cold and wet when compared to the previous years. The average temperature for the month was 35.6 degrees, 4 degrees below normal and 8.6 degrees below the average for March 1947. The maximum was 61 degrees and occurred on the 31. The minimum 18, occurred on the 19. There were 26 nights during which the thermometer dropped to below freezing temperatures.

Precipitation for March was above the 117 inches normal 198 inches were recorded. Most of the moisture fell during the three-day snow storm on the 22, 23 and 24 when 1.20 inches fell.

There were about 11 inches of snow in Klamath Falls, while Midland reported 13 inches. Thirteen to 15 inches were measured at various spots around Herbold Dam on the east end of Poe Valley.

There were seven clear days and nine partly cloudy days.

Lead Stocks Show Gains

NEW YORK, April 3 (AP)—Leading stocks tilted higher here and there in today's market although many pivots did nothing or edged into minus territory.

Hopes that the coal mine impasse would be broken, following word of John L. Lewis to union members that they could do as they please about returning to work, propped bullish sentiment to some extent. Rearmament prospects aided scattered favorites.

Skeptics regarding disturbing international affairs and labor situations generally continued to hold aloof. Belief that passage of the tax and European relief program had been pretty well discounted market-wise also caused further profit cashing.

Dealings quickened at intervals after the opening. Mild irregularity persisted near the close. Transfers for the two hours ran to about 500,000 shares.

Bonds were narrow and commodities nervous.

Florida Man Admits Theft

DAVID N. Stewart, 19-year-old magazine subscription salesman, was jailed this morning for burglary as a result of quick work by state and city police officers. The Miami, Fla., youth has admitted breaking into the home of Oliver Herzog, Pelican City.

Stewart said he went to Herzog's home late yesterday and sold Herzog a subscription to Musical Digest, a publication, and received $5 which Herzog took from a small metal strongbox.

Later, on about 7 o'clock, after Herzog had gone to work, Stewart said he came back to the house and entered by ripping a screen off a window. He took the strong box and a saxophone. The box contained about $5 in change, bankbooks and other papers belonging to Herzog.

When Herzog returned from work about 3 a. m., he discovered the burglary and called police, who began a check of rooming houses and auto camps, looking for the magazine salesman.

The strongbox turned up in a trash can in a downtown alley and Officer Bud Adkins of the city force located Stewart at the Holley hotel. He still had the saxophone. Papers taken were still in the box.

Stewart admitted under questioning that he had committed the burglary and state police said a formal charge of burglary would be placed against him today. He was taken to the city jail.

Stewart also told officers he had served two years in prison in Georgia for burglary and had been in a Florida detention home earlier.

Operation Sno-Cat Hits Rugged Going In Survey

ASHLAND, April 3—Operation Sno-Cat Cascade reports rugged pushing ahead on the first leg of its 600-mile trek along the snow-deep rim of Oregon's Cascade mountains.

The expedition, which left late in March, is out to determine the practicability of regular scientific surveys of winter snow on Pacific ranges, using newly-developed mechanized snow-going equipment. The machines are ski-equipped tractors with a caterpillar-type drive.

A radio progress report from the storm-harassed party when it reached the rim of spectacular Crater Lake gives some indications of the difficulties encountered.

Andrew Brown, National Geographic Society staff writer with the expedition radios:

"Our party had to shovel out a 15-foot square bivouac in the snow to camp for the night at the lake. To build a good fire, we had to dig down through 10 feet of snow to reach solid ground.

"Our seven-man team, in two track-laying Tucker Sno-Cats, originally headed for a ranger cabin 12 miles northwest of Crater Lake. But even the nimble Sno-Cat slipped and wallowed in the deep soft snow like a live cat crossing a featherbed. Our progress at times was as slow as one mile in three hours, so we never reached the cabins Arth Work, expedition leader, set up camp at Watchman's Junction. On our way, we had to dig out the vehicles from deep holes under dense fir trees.

"Work measured 50 inches of new snow at the site. Snow has fallen every day since we left Greensprings summit—but that's only the latest chapter in a weather thriller that has dumped snow on these high slopes for 23 consecutive days!

Operation Sno-Cat Cascade is a project of the Federal-State cooperative snow surveys of the U. S. department of agriculture. Purpose of the journey, scheduled to push north along the spine of the Cascades to the Columbia river, is to determine if it is practical to mechanize snow surveys carried on every winter throughout the mountain regions of the west. Monthly snow readings provide the basis for water forecasts which tell farmers, ranchers, power companies, and irrigation officials how much water they may expect for summer use, when the big snows melt off the mountains.

The two National Geographic society representatives are accompanying Operation Sno-Cat Cascade to report the long trek for the National Geographic magazine.

to become citizens of Oregon so they may enter the race for Sheriff of Klamath County.

Well, you've all been looking for it, and here it is: So grab onto your hats and keep your fingers crossed!

We of the Yukon Tavern are plumb disgusted! People are coming to our Free Drawings by the hundreds, getting used to holding out their hands for Free Gifts so as to qualify as Sheriff of Klamath County. Now we don't get the connections, but that's what they tell us anyway. What makes us so peeved is, that we thought for a long time that they were coming here just because they had such a Good Time and 'cause we were giving away so many Nice Prizes, including Pots with hundreds of dollars in them.

We have thought some of suing Klamath County to recover some of the great expenses of this free training. But we are in hopes that they will not all be elected and some of them will come back to the Yukon because they know that we have the Best Food and Cocktails on earth. And they also know that if a bottle of liquor is sold any place in the State of California for less than we sell it for at the Yukon they are violating the California fair trade law. Look it up and see for yourself.

Anyway, it is our guess that every night at 8:00 and 11:00 we will have the house full just because no one can afford to miss the big Free Gift Hours. You have to be somewhere at those hours, and Jo and Charley say, "COME AS YOU ARE."
