Today's Roundup

By MALCOLM EPLEY

FOR many years, there has been talk here of the need for a public waiting room with sanitary conveniences for the benefit of people shopping in Klamath Falls—especially for women visiting from the suburbs and the rural areas.

The Associated Women of the Farm Bureau Federation in Klamath county have taken steps this year which may bring this situation more strongly than ever to public attention, with the result that action may come at last.

EPLEY

The group has made a rather complete survey of the waiting room and rest room situation. I have looked over the results of the survey, and it points definitely to the need. On the basis of the survey, the group plans to circulate a petition, which will be presented for consideration of the county court, the city council, chamber of commerce and merchants' bureau.

What the farm women would like to see here would be a waiting place for women only. There would be easy chairs for resting tired feet, a small nursery where babies could be "changed" and a bottle warmed, a chech room for leaving parcels. A matron should be in charge. They believe that an establishment such as this would be free of the abuses that sometimes occur in connection with public rest rooms, and that it would be a great service to the public.

The importance to Klamath Falls of the city's attractions for women shoppers, and the convenience such a place promises people who live outside the city, makes this project well worthy of the consideration of the public bodies and the business organizations to whom it will be presented.

More About Reservation

MRS. WADE CRAWFORD, who can dispense well-chosen words with great facility and speed, called me last night to discuss the report I had yesterday on the Klamath Indian business committee, which hasn't been able to operate because of failure of the anti-liquidation members to attend.

Mrs. Crawford wanted to explain that the four members of the liquidation group, who have gone to the meetings when called, are living up to their responsibilities as elected members of the committee. She resented any implication of "strategy" on their part, stating they were simply doing their duty, and she asserted that inability of the committee to meet is working a hardship on the reservation. Many important matters should be handled by the committee which is immobilized by failure of a quorum to show up, she added.

In fairness to all concerned, I am glad to summarize her comments, which emphasize what was said here yesterday—that the breach between disagreeing groups on the reservation and their lack of mutual trust is most disturbing.

Briefs From The Pocket File

MARY CASE, Klamath historian, is looking up some information for a story on the snakes that used to infest the lower end of town and stick their heads up through the board sidewalks . . . Board sidewalks have gone with the snakes . . . a fact which we hope Mary emphasizes in her piece . . . A lot of outsiders, who have seen that ugly but widely disseminated picture of a mass of snakes at Klamath Falls, Ore., think they can't come to town without wading through a two-foot carpet of serpents . . . Collier's magazine article says Charles True of Medford made the first auto trip to Crater lake in 1907 . . . What was the matter with such guys as Ed Dunham and Harry Peltz, letting Medford beat them to the punch in 1907 that way?

At most recent report, Diamond lake has seven feet of snow at the lake level, and at the nearby Cascade summit the measurement was nine feet . . . The lake was frozen over with 18 inches of ice, and there was a heavy blanket of snow on the ice . . . That mountain bank of snow will come in handy in lower areas as the dry season advances . . . Chamber of commerce has lined up Dean Walker for its annual meeting May 10 . . . Walker will help a lot of people straighten out their thinking on the state's financial affairs . . . George Yost, the Tulelake man who is running for supervisor in Siskiyou county, has been doing some active campaigning . . . A friend has brought me some rusty cut-nails of the type used 60 or 70 years ago or longer in buildings . . . He tells me they come from an old log fort in the Long lake district northwest of town . . . That's something I want to know more about.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

WHILE the propagandists for the new world beat the drums of China's failures, Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard is in that country seeking to improve its laws. He writes to the Harvard Law School Record:

"It is no wonder that conditions in China today are not ideal. They are far from ideal in any country. But there is by no means the general condition of demoralization, corruption and inefficiency which is portrayed in American newspapers. The gravity of the news from abroad increases with the square of the distance. In the clippings from the American press which my friends send me from time to time I can't recognize the land in which I am living . . ."

That is so similar to my own experience there. I recall when Chiang Kai-shek first emerged, we called him the "Red General." He was then associated with Michael Borodin, representative of the third international, and General Bluecher, representative of the red army. These Russians and their associates were experimenting in China with techniques which they have since perfected and used in many countries of Europe. They failed in China, as they did not fail in Poland or Czechoslovakia, because during the Christmas week of 1926, Chiang Kai-shek finally turned on them. They had regarded him as their man, but on the march from Canton to Hankow, Chiang discovered that the Russians were not assisting China to freedom, but that Chiang and his armies were really becoming puppets of Soviet policy.

Extraneous Issues

I WAS recently asked by a younger Chinese why there was so little resistance in those days by the established governments. The answer is so simple: By strikes, local disturbances, intimidation of shopkeepers, kidnaping the rich and intellectuals, every area was so disrupted before the southern armies appeared that resistance became utterly impossible. In addition, high emotions were raised over issues that were really extraneous but that were billowed into terrific importance. Violent attacks were made by the revolutionaries against the British and Americans, so that if any northern Chinese accepted foreign advice, other than Russian, or consorted particularly with the British, he came to be regarded as a traitor.

When Chiang Kai-shek broke with the Chinese and Russian communists during Christmas week of 1926, they were in control of his armies and they were able to stage a massacre in Nanking during which they killed some foreigners. The object of the massacre was to give the impression that Chiang was really responsible for it. Fortunately for him, the truth was readily available and was given to the world by American and British newspapermen without censorship of any kind.

Dean Pound is wholly correct in his appraisal of the Chinese situation, and it shows that wisdom and experience do count. Some of those who, in recent years, have written on China have been young and too inexperienced to grasp the picture of 450,000,000 human beings in a state of constant revolution. Dean Pound makes this very important point:

• • • •

Liberal Representation

"Much is said in American Newspapers about exclusion of liberal parties from the government, the necessity of admitting minority parties to a share in the government, and the imperative need of a 'coalition government.' When one sees the actual political situation here, such things sound more like a Gilbert and Sullivan opera than like the practical conduct of government in a democratic republic. No one complained that republicans were 'excluded from a share in the government' during the long administration of President Roosevelt. I do not suppose even Harry Bridges would say that Mr. Wallace ought at once to be given a place in President Truman's cabinet. I note that the prohibition party has been resuscitated. But it won't claim that a certain number of seats in congress should be allowed to it as a 'minority party.'"

Precisely so. The so-called liberal parties in China are ridiculously unimportant except in news dispatches to American newspapers. I have watched this scene for nearly 30 years. Many of the other so-called liberals in China are merely on the outside hoping to get inside. As Dean Pound says: "Anything that calls itself 'liberal' is supposed to be privileged."

SIDE GLANCES

"One is sometimes at a loss for an interesting subject of conversation at these parties, isn't one?"

Some Political Gleanings

By HALE SCARBROUGH

The Kiwanis club is grabbing off political speakers right and left these days . . they've already heard from Governor Hall and now have scheduled Douglas McKay, Hall's No. 1 opponent for the republican nomination, for April 29. . .

Ormond Bean of Portland, one of three republican candidates angling toward the state treasury, will unburden himself of a talk before the Kiwanians Thursday. . . He indicates it will be "non-political."

• • •

Harold Stassen's supporters reportedly spent $350,000 in beating Dewey, et al., in the Nebraska primary. . . . For purely business reasons I hope he spends as much trying to beat Mr. Dewey in Oregon. . Isn't there some sort of a law which forbids lavish expenditures during elections?

With Taft and MacArthur hanging on the ropes, the Oregon primary will be a slugging match between Dewey and Stassen and both are expected out to do their stumping personally. . .

• • •

John Hall is running well ahead of his three republican opponents for the republican nomination as governor over the state as a whole—that is, according to Ernest Jachetta, Portland attorney, who was a visitor in town Monday on behalf of Hall. . .

Just after I had finished penning a little squib in this column Monday about Stanley Jones, republican aspirant for attorney general, Mr. Jones popped into town. . . The former Klamathite was chief civil deputy DA in Multnomah county from May, 1944, until September of 1947 when he re-entered private law practice. . .

He is a veteran of World War II as a lieutenant of foot-soldiers . . . was twice wounded and has the Purple Heart and other military decorations.

• • •

Robert S. Farrell Sr., father of the late Secretary of State Bob Farrell, is a candidate for delegate at large to the GOP national convention. . . He has spent 16 years in the state office as legislator and senator and is an outspoken foe of the new deal policy of heavy spending. . .

Purvine To Speak In GP

OVS — W. D. Purvine, director of OVS, will leave for Grants Pass early Tuesday morning where he will speak to the Kiwanis club in the afternoon and the Lions club in the evening.

He will be guest speaker of the Rotary club Wednesday, giving promotional talks to acquaint Grants Pass residents with the aims and purposes of Oregon Vocational school.

Between meetings Purvine will spend time with the Josephine county service officials.

State Director O. I. Paulson arrived at OVS Tuesday evening from Salem for a regular inspection of the school.

Glenn Weaver, state supervisor of occupational information and guidance, accompanied Paulson. Weaver will work with student personnel supervisor, Robert Smith, on plans for extending the guidance program of OVS.

Three new instructors have taken positions at OVS. Morris C. Anderson, Alfred Winkelman and Melvin J. Bauman. Anderson is instructing diesel mechanics. He has been employed in numerous cities throughout Oregon, including Klamath Falls.

Winkelman, who will teach machine shop, has been employed in New Jersey for several years, and he has also worked in Klamath Falls. Bauman, instructor in auto mechanics, has had many years of experience in his line. He came from Michigan.

The three new instructors and families are residing in Klamath Falls.

Rainbow Gives To Europeans

TULELAKE, April 20—A second contact with children of the countries that suffered during the war has been made by the Tulelake assembly, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, and word has been received that a dollar sent to Pirkko Annikki Kahkonen, 14, of Juuka, Ahmovaara, Hyttila, Finland, has been received.

Finland, when Pirkko wrote, was just emerging from the long winter of little sunlight and only six hours of daylight. She lives in the northern part of the country where the land is rocky and little agriculture is possible.

In her family are 10 persons, nine children and her mother, and the family's condition, according to the "Save the Children Federation" of New York, is precarious. The father died two years ago.

Pirkko is 14, there are three brothers older, a sister 12 and four brothers younger, aged 7, 5, 3 and 2 years.

The assembly has adopted Pirkko and a French girl and packages of food and clothing have been sent overseas.

Anyone interested may send gifts direct to the Finnish girl's address

All Or Nothing For This Couple

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 20 (AP)—A husband and wife were down to fundamentals here last night when police broke up a family fight.

Prowler Car Officers M. L. Pooler and C. D. Scott said the couple were having a free-for-all ripping up each other's clothes.

"She tore my suit up," complained hubby.

"Then he tore up two of my best dresses," countered the little woman, "so I went to the closet and tore up the rest of his clothes. Then he did the same to me."

The policemen told them to take the noise out of their strip act and left them standing in a state of nature on the rag-littered floor.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

There are before the U. S. congress 31 bills which, in one way or another, are calculated to deal with the abuse of the veto power whereby Russia has been hamstringing the United Nations.

All these proposals provide for a revision of the UN charter. However, at least a couple of them are so framed that the present UN could be allowed to rumble along while the anti-red democracies formed a new organization free of Soviet interference.

DeWitt Mackenzie

These bills are concrete evidence of a strong sentiment for some action against promiscuous use of the veto. Moreover, in the UN membership itself we find Australia—a big opponent of the veto—and Argentina leading a group of small nations to revise the charter in this respect.

The veto right is accorded the Big Five—America, Russia, Britain France and China—in the security council, which alone can impose sanctions. Thus far the Muscovites have used this all-powerful weapon 23 times, whereas France is the only other power to resort to it. She has used it twice.

Ticklish Problem

Revision of the veto provision would, of course, be a ticklish undertaking. The United States insisted on establishment of the veto as a protection against impingement on sovereignty, and there has been no sign that the Washington government would agree to elimination. However, America has indicated that it would like to disregard the veto except for fundamentals affecting sovereignty. Russia naturally wants to retain it in toto, and in fact, undoubtedly would employ it against charter revision.

This being the case, where do we turn for relief? Well, it strikes me that perhaps the situation is rapidly being taken care of by the recent creation of international organizations within the democratic bloc. The organizations to which I refer are these:

Last September 19 American republics met in Rio de Janeiro and signed a mutual defense treaty for the western hemisphere. A month ago Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg entered into a 50-year partnership to defend their democratic way of life against any aggressor.

Then last week representatives of 16 western European nations and the American-British-French occupied zones of Germany met in Paris and adopted a convention binding themselves into a permanent organization for economic cooperation. These are the countries participating in the Marshall plan, and they include Greece and Turkey.

Now then, coordinate these various organizations, all of which aim at economic rehabilitation and defense against aggression, and you have a new peace organization free of Soviet influence. And the way it looks from here, that's exactly what is happening.

That needn't interfere with the UN. There's room enough for both.

Tule Council To Meet Tuesday

TULELAKE, April 20—The new city council will meet tonight, Tuesday, at the Tulelake city hall to be sworn in by Mrs. Victoria Thaler, city clerk, and will then elect a new mayor.

The old city council met Monday to clear up all pending business and leave a clear slate for the newcomers. Present were Mayor Ralph Fausett, Dick Moore, Al Porter and Clarence Schott.

Fausett and Schott are retiring this term.

New Directory To Be Printed

Klamath county is due for another county-wide directory in late summer.

R. L. Polk and company, directory publishers, have started taking census for the new 1948-49 directory, and headquarters are now established in Klamath Falls at 120 S. 9th.

Workers Tuesday asked that persons finding blanks left at their homes where workers called during residents' absence, fill out the blanks and either mail or bring the blanks to headquarters.

Police Too Slow For 'Buckshot'

SPRINGFIELD, O., April 20 (AP)—An excited resident called police headquarters last night saying he had fired a shotgun at a prowler.

Capt. Harry Schuman ordered a radio cruiser to the scene, some eight blocks from the station. He barely had the microphone down when a negro boy burst through the station doors.

"Are you the ——?" Schuman began.

"Yassum, I'se him," the boy replied. "I just couldn't wait for those slow policemen. This buckshot hurts something awful."

Schuman sent him to a hospital to have the buckshot removed, then turned him over to juvenile authorities.

City Issues Nine Permits

Nine building permits were issued by the city council Monday night.

Largest permit went to C. W. Howry for construction of a residence on lot 12, Dixon street, for $10,000. Other permits:

W. W. Wilkins, $50, new roof on residence, 39 Gibbs.

Ray J. Hill, $3800, remodel residence, 210 Martin.

Foster and Kleiser, three poster panels, $45 each.

Douglas Roofing service, $400, reroof residence, 1000 Pacific Terrace.

Theodore Brown, $100, remodel residence, 2323 White.

W. E. Holland, $2000, remodel residence, 142 E. Main.

Foresters Slate Meet

A full and interesting afternoon and evening program is planned for April 30 by the Society of American Foresters, Shasta-Cascade subsection.

Meeting at Horsehead Spring road on highway 299 (half way between Canby and Adin) at 12:30 p. m. Oregon time (or 1:30 p. m. California time) the group will go on to a "weasel" demonstration conducted by Ed Morris.

From there the timber stand improvement area worked in 1946-1947 will be examined and discussed. A stop at the McClure range reseeding lot will follow where George Burnett will give a brief outline of the Modoc range reseeding program.

The timber stand improvement area (Post canyon) worked in 1948 will be visited next and the afternoon's tour will be concluded with a visit at Egerton Brothers Lumber company sawmill.

The evening program will start with "children's hour" at the Club cafe in Adin at 6 p. m., California time. Chicken dinner will follow in the Adin high school and the evening meeting will be conducted by Merle Lowden.

An outline and history of Big Valley Working circle will be given by Harry Edgerton and C. M. Rector. Walter Reid, chairman of the Northern California section, will give the forestry program of the Collins Pine company.

An organization in Denver, calling itself "Weddings, Inc.," is offering matrimony on the finance plan. For couples who are short on cash, this outfit bankrolls the entire wedding, and the bridegroom settles for the ceremony in 12 easy payments. Sounds like a fine idea, but it brings up the question as to whether people who can't pay the parson should go on the cuff for the big affair. Suppose the little woman goes home to mother before the year is up, does the groom get a rebate? Or if he can't meet the 12 easy installments, does he have to return the bride to the finance company?

Don Wells happens to be a "tonsorial artist" of great repute, and so, wanting the best, I sauntered into his shop (maybe I should say studio), to get a clip—not the Alaska type either.

Don is a good clipper and a good conversationalist, as are most barbers, however, Don is a good listener, too! On this last visit we were treated to some theory on international banking as expounded by Herschel Hadley. The guy knows his international chips. Anyhow, it made such an impression and was all so confusing that upon more sober reflection I was grateful . . . grateful to return to the more simple task of running my every-day business, part of which I enjoy immensely . . . that is to show you the new 1949 Lincoln and Lincoln Cosmopolitan on next Thursday.

In Italy a man was sent to jail when he climaxed a political argument by biting off his opponent's nose. Anyway, it was a snappy ending! Has your car got a snappy pick-up? If it's somewhat sluggish, drive into INMAN MOTOR COMPANY, 424 South 6th Street, and let our factory-trained mechanics give it a Motor-Tune-Up. At the same time, it'd be a good idea to have the chassis lubricated and oil changed. These three items will give you greater highway safety, more economical driving. Phone 7778.

Says Man Has Strange Powers That Work While He Sleeps

A strange man in Los Angeles, known as "The Voice of Two Worlds," reveals the story of a remarkable system that often leads to improvement in power of mind, achievement of brilliant business and professional success and new happiness. Many report improvement in health. Others tell of increased bodily strength, magnetic personality, courage and poise.

The man, a well-known explorer and geographer, tells how he found these strange methods in far-off and mysterious Tibet, often called the land of miracles by the few travelers permitted to visit it. He discloses how he learned rare wisdom and long hidden practices, closely guarded for three thousand years by the sages, which enabled many to perform amazing feats. He maintains that these immense powers are latent in all of us, and that methods for using them are now simplified so that they can be used by almost any person with ordinary intelligence.

He maintains that man, instead of being limited by a one-man-power-mind, has within him the mind-power of a thousand or more as well as the energy-power of the universe which can be used in his daily affairs. He states that this sleeping giant of mind-power, when awakened, can make man capable of surprising accomplishments, from the prolonging of youth to success in many fields. Strangely, he says that this power works best while we sleep, when proper methods are used.

The author states the time has come for this long-hidden system to be disclosed to the Western world, and offers to send his amazing 9000-word treatise which reveals many startling results—to readers of this paper, free of cost or obligation. For your free copy, address the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. 163-G, Los Angeles 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly as only a limited number of the free treatises have been printed. Adv.
