Mrs. Sloan of Ellingson mill had an amusing incident happen recently as she was walking past a new Chevrolet sedan across the street from Louie Polin's store. The horn began blowing and Mrs. Sloan said she was so startled she jumped about a foot. Cars pulled to the curb and pedestrians lined the streets while passers-by tried in vain to stop the horn. Everyone grabbed at a door and one man even got in the front of the car and whistled at it. Others jumped on the front bumper and teetered up and down, others crawled under the car trying to get at the wires. Finally, after a half-hour, a city patrolman called a mechanic and he was able to open the glass in the door and slip in a thin tool and open the door and stop the racket.
