New Pine Creek Bly

Sunday, May 9, was recently voted Church Day by the East Side grange when the organization will attend the church en masse. Following the meeting at about 1 o'clock all in attendance will convene at the Grange hall where a big potluck dinner will be enjoyed. A similar occasion was planned last year which was well attended and mutually benefited both organizations. A large attendance is anticipated.

The California fishing season opened meekly last Saturday and for the most part even though cooler weather had cleared and subdued the streams considerable still the opening day was a "wash-out" for most anglers. Very few limits were even heard of in this vicinity and only scattering catches of five fish or less were reported. Many who had built high hopes on a nice catch at Lily and Cave lakes were sadly disappointed. Supervisor George Perkins had had his road crew working hard all week previous to clear out the up to five feet of snow that blocked the road and had succeeded in clearing out the snow up to the Cave lake descent. But alas, ice and four or five feet of snow blanketed the lakes and fore-closed all chances for the fishermen to get to the fish. At a spot or two in Cave lake minnows cavorted at the mouths of the two trickling streamlets feeding it, and teased a few anglers. It may be several weeks before anything like good fishing is to be had at these lakes, or in the streams either for the warmer weather will rule and swell them for two or three weeks probably.
