

Queen Catherine Rules Over Prom

CHILQUIN—Wearing the gleaming crown of royalty, Queen Catherine Knox and her escort, Senior Class President Leroy Gieser Jr., led a capacity crowd in a grand march at the junior-senior prom on Saturday night, May 8, at the Chilquinn high school gymnasium. The march came as the climax of the 10th annual coronation ceremony.

The queen was followed by her two princesses, Pat Buell and Nola Heminger, their escorts, Wilfred Loosley and Gillis Hannigan, and her three maids of honor, Alice Pohl, Ann and Jean McKell. All the elected royalty were members of the senior class and chosen by the juniors.

Two little blonde girls, Karen Wilson and Louise Niehaus, who were crowned in green and pink floor-length dresses, were flower girls and tiny Melvin Ohles accompanied the task of crown-bearer. Junior Class Advisor Kalman Fell presented the court and crowned the queen.

Queen Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knox, is finishing her 12th year in the local school system, has made her way to the honor roll and is active in school affairs and an officer in the home economics club. She is a quiet, shy blonde who lists cowboy music as a special favorite.

The queen found a royal setting for her reign. The juniors and shop classes, under the direction of Kalman Fell, had transformed the gym. From a false ceiling of pink crepe paper was suspended a lavish paper chandelier. A stone-walled wishing well in the center of the floor drew admirers throughout the evening. The sides of the floor resembled stone walls with carnation filled greenery peeping over at intervals. A manzanita bower, white lattice fence and stairway led up to the Rhythm Makers, who furnished the music for the evening.

The juniors gave a reception at the high school earlier in the evening with seniors, faculty members and the local school board as guests. Joanne Loosley, Betty Johnson, Kathryn Wampler, Frances Knox, Mary Ann Souers and Jeanne Reed, underclass members, served.

Small wishing wells made of wood were used as candlesticks and as place markers. African violets added a daintiness to the long tables.

After Bill Norval played Chopin's "Nocturne" as a piano prelude. Toastmistress Lorna Roser, junior class president, gave the welcome and was answered by Leroy Gieser, Jr. "Concerto in B minor" by Tchaikovsky, played by Bill Norval was followed by the laugh provoking class will and prophecy, read by Pat Buell and Jack Jones. Ann McKell, accompanied by Bill Norval, closed the program with a solo, "Without A Song."
