

Park Superintendent Has A Bad Day

BRIGHTON, England, May 18 (AP)—Peter Gibbs, superintendent of the Brighton zoo, had a tough day Saturday.

First, an Anglo-Indian goat butted him out of the paddock at feeding time.
Second, Percy, a porcupine, sank three quills in his leg. Hospital treatment required.
Third, the money cage door knocked him cold. When he came to Mitch, a monk, was sitting on his chest twirling Gibbs' prized 15-inch mustaches.
