Weather In Basin Holds Up Planting

One of the most backward seasons seen in the agricultural development of Klamath county has held up planting this spring.

The situation has been relieved with good weather the last few days, the county agent's office advised, the ground is drying out fast and heavy farm work is now under way.

Grain planting is almost completed for the acreage established for this year, with the exception of barley and oats. These grains should all be in within the next 10 days if the weather holds and farmers contemplate fulfilling the 1948 heavy acreage goals in barley. Potato planting usually under way in this area between May 5 and 10 has been delayed by about two weeks. Heavy planting is now under way with approximately 60 to 70 per cent of the crop in.

Farmers are not planting up to the total of the potato acreage goals for the year. C. A. Henderson, county agent, due in part to the backward season, shortage of land in shape, high rental values, the shortage of good seed and fertilizer and the lack of definite support prices after December 31, 1948.

While the acreage to be planted is less than the goal, it is higher than that planted in 1947.

Stockmen are having problems too, from the delayed growth on pasture. Early spring feed is gone and the normal carryover of hay has already been fed out. Although pastures are not quite ready for stock, cattle are necessarily already being moved.

The season in this area is later than in many Eastern Oregon places.

55 Per Cent Of Klamath County Voters Turn Out For Primaries

A thumping 55 per cent of Klamath county voters turned out for last Friday's election, it was shown in a study of election returns Monday.

Republicans set some kind of a record by leading the polls to the tune of 66 per cent of their voter registration. Democrats lagged behind at about 44 per cent.

It was the biggest percentage of vote at primary elections in many years, and possibly the biggest primary election vote in actual volume in the county's political history.

At least 3913 republicans voted.

Child Injured In Accident

A child was injured and two persons were charged with traffic violations as the result of an accident at 4:30 p. m. Sunday at S. 6th and Crest streets intersection.

Hurt was Raymond Roy Goodrich, 5, grandson of Yokeley Carroll, 1212 Homedale, operator of one car. The child suffered cuts on the chin and forehead. Mrs. Carroll, passenger, was uninjured.

State police said Carroll signaled to turn left at the intersection while in the outside lane and crossed over both lanes of traffic. A car operated by John Allard Enright, 36, 919 High, struck the Carroll car, bringing it to a stop.

Carroll was charged with making an improper turn at the intersection and Enright, a Greyhound bus driver, with no vehicle license. Enright was operating a borrowed car with a 1947 California license. He said he did not know the name of the owner, but it belonged to some woman who had left him the machine to use while she was in Portland.

Weather In Basin Clears Over Sunday

The Klamath basin turned out with the "new look" Sunday after weeks of weather which brought howls of dismay from both sides of the fence—the city feller and the farmer.

The maximum temperature recorded by CAA was 80 degrees at 5:30 p. m. It was a high for the season.

Highways buzzed as Sunday motorists took to the road and streams were lined with fishermen.

At Lake of the Woods, where ice held the lake only two weeks ago, numerous summer homes were opened and the lake was humming with boats. Several strong-hearted souls swam Sunday as a warm sun beamed. The road into the lake was dry and in fair shape but the lanes leading to cabins were clogged with snow in many instances.

At Crater Lake national park, rangers said the record number of cars, 829, brought in a record number of visitors—1807.

There were only 25 skiers in the bunch and most folks came for the ride. Roads are open as the temperature reached 65 degrees at mid-afternoon.

Snow depth on the level was 121 inches as compared to 8 inches just a year ago last Sunday.

The warm weather brought out a lot of mushroom hunters in the Tulelake district but the loot was reported small. Another shower followed by a warm day would do the trick.

Catherine di Medici, queen of France, pioneered in the wearing of richly designed accessories such as rings and gloves.
