cally expect them to be shallow in their thinking and flighty in their ideas.

You'll be WRONG. They're GOOD. Modern progress isn't so bad, after all.

HENRY WALLACE, opposing the Mundt bill before the senate judiciary committee in Washington this morning, says:

"We can't have peace with Russia if we approach Russia with the atom bomb in one hand and the Mundt bill in the other." Well, Hank, we haven't done too well in the past by approaching Russia with an apple in one hand and a white flag in the other. Russia has grabbed the offered apple and has assumed that the white flag is our permission to grab all the other apples.

BILL OPPOSED

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—(To the Editor)—The local National Association for the Advancement of Colored People opposes the passage of H-R 5852, otherwise known as the Mundt bill.

The following telegram has been sent to Senators Wayne Morse and Guy Cordon: "We urge you to vote against Mundt bill H-R 5852, as its definition of 'subversive' is dangerously loose and lends itself to abuse."

The reason the NAACP opposes this bill is that we fear this loose wording might be made to include any group trying to secure civil rights for minorities. For instance, those who deny complete citizenship to certain peoples and races in our country will be likely to call these groups un-American if they make any protest against the obstruction of their constitutional rights.

The NAACP as an organization certainly does not endorse communism, and the 39-year-old fight of the association for the civil liberties which are guaranteed by the Constitution cannot be called subversive. However this bill, although aimed at the communist, may well, in the hands of the 'wrong people,' be used to destroy freedom of speech and thought, and hinder the fulfillment of democracy for all people throughout our land.

Foreign Language School At KUHS Draws Interest, May Be Expanded In Future

By HELEN HOFFMAN
Head of Foreign Language Department, KUHS

From a brief review of our foreign language department at Klamath Union High school we have formulated the following to give a glimpse of their achievement and plans.

No, Latin is not dead. It isn't even sick, judging from the hundred and fifty students who enter each day under the beautiful picture of the Coliseum which hangs over the outside entrance of room 207. We have such a pleasant room, soft green walls, venetian blinds at the four sunny windows. Three large oil paintings of classical subjects are hung in the best light and enrich any student's day by just a glance.

Then there is the Latin club, members of the American Classical League—over a hundred live wires, backing any progressive movement in the school. Last year we copyrighted and published the new school song. This year we gave a benefit dance for the Community Chest, sent an Art club member to the exhibit in Portland and paired with the Art club in the "Keep Klamath Clean" campaign, besides promoting three radio programs.

To be serious about Latin—aside from being a prerequisite for many professions, it is also a college entrance requirement for numerous fine colleges. As if that were not enough, it is basic for all the Romance languages. Few people realize that sixty per cent of all our words originated in the Latin tongue and that eighty-five per cent are related. And how valuable are the mental gymnastics of amo, amos, amati!

It is but a few steps to the Spanish room where wall hangings and ornaments and even plants which came from Mexico provide a pertinent and pleasing atmosphere. As for the students: such a stimulus has been provided that several are going South this summer to gain first hand knowledge of backgrounds and a practical use for their learnings. The Spanish club has given for broadcasts this year, had well-informed lecturers. Their social activities have been successful—real Spanish food! Guests from the university, and dances with all the appurtenances of a gala Latin American festival.

We would like to see this department expanded. There are teachers on the present faculty who could handle French, German and even Russian. Should the demand become urgent, and building facilities acquired, another year might see some of these courses in our curriculum.

We feel in the foreign language department at Klamath Union that the way to peace lies through understanding, and that the chief block in this direction is lack of adequate common conversation and communication facilities.

Be assured that in our department we are stressing the importance of this conception in the minds of the thinking youth of today.
