

Despite Rain Progress Day Breaks Even

In spite of unfavorable weather, the Klamath air show will come out even financially. This was the unexpected report made to the directors of the chamber of commerce at their weekly meeting on Wednesday. It was received with considerable enthusiasm.

Chamber Manager Stark reported that as of Wednesday, with all bills, so far as known, in, the cost stood at $4136.03, and there was at that time cash on hand amounting to $4171.00. Paid admissions so far accounted for were 2991, and it was believed that button sales, when all checked up, will run at least 100 more than that figure.

In response to a query as to the total attendance, Manager Stark asked what was meant, inside or out, and added with a wry grin that the attendance outside and unpaid was apparently larger than that inside and paid.

Held Success
For Hicks, chairman of the chamber committee that handled the show, reported that from the standpoint of the exhibitors and the chamber the show was considered a success, with much stimulation of interest in aviation in this area. More than 100 visiting planes, he said, were present from outside communities. These planes carried some 500 passengers. Much interest was shown in the exhibits. Decision on whether to hold a similar show next year was referred to a more complete report can be had from those taking part.

Andrew Loney reported to the chamber directors that so far approximately $1100 has been raised in cash to send the Klamath Union high school band to the Rose Festival in Portland and it is expected that button sales will yield perhaps $100 more, leaving some $500 to go to reach the total anticipated cost of $1700. Other donations, he said, are hoped for. There had been some doubt, he added that the Rose Festival would be held this year, because of the flood situation, but word had been received that it had been decided in Portland to go ahead with the plans without change.

Dance To Benefit Crippled Children

Net proceeds from the Klamath Shrine club's dance at the armory Saturday night go to help finance the Shrine's crippled children's hospital at Portland. Here is a scene of one of the rooms in the hospital, where hundreds of children have received help.

Winnemucca, Nevada, on June 12 was read. The visitation will start with a breakfast at Alturas on the morning of June 12, and it is anticipated that representatives from the Klamath and Lakeview chambers will accompany the Alturas delegation. Better highway communications between Alturas and Winnemucca are the objective of the visit. Plans for attendance from here were referred to the roads and highways committee of the Klamath chamber.

SOC Graduates Biggest Class

Southern Oregon college graduated the largest class in its history Wednesday night at Ashland and a number of Klamath and Lake county students were among those receiving diplomas in Churchill hall auditorium.

Graduates included: Robert James Bennett, Lakeview; Gerald L. Hicks, Klamath Falls, and Richard J. Hicks, Ashland; John Patrick Linman Jr., Klamath Falls; William Jack Meade, Klamath Falls; Victor F. Meiser, Bly. All received junior certificates. Delia Patricia Frazier of Paisley received the three-year diploma in teacher education. Students receiving the bachelor of science degree in elementary teacher education included Dean Leslie Jones, Bennett A. Loftsgaard and Delia S. Records, all of Klamath Falls.

Camp Fire News

The new recreation hall recently dedicated at Merrill was the scene of the Camp Fire Girl's annual dad-daughter potluck dinner held on Friday, May 21.

The dinner given in honor of their fathers was planned by four active groups of Camp Fire Girls and Blue Birds, and was attended by over 130 guests. Virginia Denton, Mrs. Lawrence Marie, and Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Johnston were guests from Klamath Falls.

Mrs. E. E. Kilpatrick, presiding speaker, introduced Kathleen O'Keefe who gave the welcoming address. The theme of the evening was "Exploring Interesting Trails." Mrs. Kilpatrick stressed the need for more volunteer leadership in the hope of increasing the active girl membership.

"Are we, the adults, going to be delinquents in the leadership of our youth," was her challenge.

On behalf of the Camp Fire daughters she expressed her thanks and appreciation to the fathers for their splendid efforts to provide adequate recreation facilities with a special room in which to hold Camp Fire meetings.

Miss Denton, the council executive director, invited all girls to attend the three weeks of summer camp at Lake o' the Wood. She also commended the dads on the fine recreation center for Merrill youth. Mrs. Lawrence Marie, president of the Leader's association, presented Delores Steel with a flag for the new Camp Fire meeting room.

Bringing greetings from Region VI was Mrs. B. C. Johnston, who is the national council representative. Mr. Johnston spoke briefly, reminding the fathers that help was needed to make the camp ready for the opening on July 11.

Fly-up Ceremony
The Blue Bird group led by Mrs. Donald Carson and Mrs. Robert Drago presented nine Blue Birds in an interesting fly-up ceremony which promoted them to the Camp Fire program. Mrs. R. H. Barkhurst's group welcomed the new Camp Fire group into their circle with an explanation of the law of Camp Fire.

Activities of the Waditaka group led by Mrs. John McNeill were summed up in a poem written by the girls. Three readings were presented by Mrs. Kilpatrick's Tawanka group.

Songs on the program dedicated to dad were "Hello," "What's The Matter With Father," and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Special recognition was paid to Delores Steel who has been an enthusiastic Camp Fire Girl for eight years, and in that time has developed outstanding poise and leadership. She is now assistant guardian and "big sister" to her original group led by Mrs. Kilpatrick. She has been invited by Miss Denton to assist with craft supervision at Camp Esther Applegate this summer.

Aluminum Supply Increase Urged

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—George S. Brady, industrial consultant, urges an increase in aluminum supplies to relieve tight supply situations in copper and steel.

He told the final session of the National Association of Purchasing Agents convention that current scarcities of key raw materials such as copper, tin, lead and zinc are here to stay. Stating that they "exist in nature only in very small amounts compared to iron, aluminum, magnesium and titanium," he said executives should prepare for a complete change in the use pattern of such scarce materials, immediate doubling of America's aluminum capacity, he said, would not be enough for what lies ahead.
