PORTLAND, June 7 (AP)—Communications links in the Columbia river flood areas, where workers are remote from telephones, have been established by the coast guard.

Nine radio communications trucks, two cutters, six fully commissioned coast guard auxiliary craft, one airplane and eight motor surf boats are available, all with two-way radio.

A high-power transmitter has been set up at Seaside, where the auxiliary boat Moxus and a motor surf boat are stationed. Communications trucks are at Clatskanie, Cathlamet and Kelso, all keeping in touch with headquarters in Portland.

The coast guard has the buoy tender Rhododendron and a motor surf boat at Kelso, a motor surf boat standing by off Deer Island, the auxiliary cutter Cimba at St. Helens, a high-speed 38-foot picket boat at Burlington, the buoy tender Blue Bell, a motor surf boat and the auxiliary boat Charlu at Vancouver.

Standing by at Portland headquarters are the auxiliary boat Betty H. and four motor surf boats on trailers, attached to trucks.

The plan is on all-day patrol, reporting back on observations as to dike conditions.

Two daughters, Mrs. Max Brenston, Beverly Hills, and Mrs. C. H. Bliss, of Grasse Point farms, Mich., survive.

Saddle Club To Expand Clubhouse

The permission has been granted by the fair board to the Klamath Saddle club to enlarge the clubhouse at the fairgrounds.

At a meeting of the club last Tuesday night it was agreed to work on the building Sunday and out-hands of the members tore out the partition between the present room and an extra stall yesterday to enlarge the space.

Improvement work will be continued in spare time with the hope of completing the job by the time of the July rodeo for entertainment of visiting saddle clubs.

Fire Chief D. C. Kennett estimated the loss at about $200,000.

Miami Beach Policeman H. L. Merdu said a "terrific explosion" preceded the blaze which gutted the club furnishings and left only the shell of an outside wall standing.

Surgery Aids In Cataracts

When the lens of a camera is blurred, the picture which it takes will be cloudy. A cataract is similar. Clouding develops in that part of the eye which serves as a lens, and objects seen are no longer clear.

A cataract is one of the difficulties with vision which tend to occur with advancing age. Occasionally a cataract can be present at birth and sometimes it is connected with certain diseases, like diabetes.

The amount of disturbance in sight depends on whether all or only a part of the lens is affected and also on the degree of the clouding. For this reason people with cataracts do not all have the same degree of difficulty. Also cataracts vary in the speed with which the clouding of the lens progresses.

No Drug Treatment

It is common to speak of a beginning cataract as "incipient" and when it is full grown and not getting worse, as a mature or "ripe." There are no drugs to dissolve the material which clouds the lens and to restore normal vision. Such treatment may be a reality some day.

Treatment for cataract is an op-erage, as the interim chairman of the physics department.

Dr. V. L. O. Chittock, author of several books, is retiring after 27 years as professor of literature at the college.

Air Force Working On New Long Range Jet Bomber

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—A new long range jet bomber, called the XB-52 and using propellers driven by jet turbines, is being built for the air force.

The XB-52 is being built by the Boeing Airplane Co., Seattle. It has been in the top secret classification.

The experimental plane represents another effort by designers to overcome the high fuel consumption (and resulting short range) of jet bombers without loss of all the jet's high speed.

First official disclosure of the new bomber appears in the just-published testimony of air force officials before a house appropriations subcommittee.

Maj. Gen. L. C. Craigie, USAF director of research, referred briefly to the plane in discussing proposed expenditures for "range extension" of aircraft.

He mentioned an item for "dual rotation propellers for the turbo props for the long range XB-52 jet bomber."

Earlier experiments with jet-driven propeller aircraft have
