Indian Village Peaceful Again

PORTLAND, June 23 (AP)—There was peace in the Indian village of Celilo today.

At least, Indian service officials here believed there was after a conference intended to settle the latest protests over the proposed moving of the village.

The community is to be taken—at government expense—from the Columbia river bank to a site south of the Old Oregon Trail highway.

After settling earlier protests, the Indian service found new ones coming recently from Mr. Martha Ferguson, McKeon, Hood River author, and several Indian leaders, including Chief Tommy Thompson.

Thompson said, among other things, that winds weren't right for drying fish, except along the river bank.

Officials here said he really was more worried over tribal rights. They said all were placated when told the Indians would surrender none of their treaty rights.

Spruce Budworm To Be Fought Again

PORTLAND, June 23 (AP)—The spruce budworm will be fought in Oregon again next year.

Foresters and timber owners said here Tuesday that a survey has been started to learn effectiveness of the poison sprayed over 272,000 acres of forest in the Mt. Hood and Eugene areas this year.

Early indications are of a heavy kill—about 86 per cent in the Eugene area and 95 per cent in the Mt. Hood region, entomologists reported.

After the survey, foresters and timbermen will meet in August to lay definite plans for the 1950 campaign.

Marshall Plan Gets High Praise

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 23 (AP)—Henry R. Luce said Wednesday the Marshall plan "has been a real, genuine, 18-carat success."

In an address to the 34th annual convention of Kiwanis International, Luce said Europe now needs "a sound financial system."

He said that rather than discontinue the Marshall plan, "I think Paul Hoffman (Marshall plan administrator) should be given every nickel he asks for."
