Frenchman Plus Car, And You Have Key To Character

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, (AP)—To understand a Frenchman all you have to do is take a ride with him in his motor car.

After five miles you will know the spirit of France better than if you had read a hundred histories. You will never again sell the French short, or believe they are through as a nation.

For the Frenchman hasn't let the machine age take romance out of his life. His motor car isn't just an instrument to get him somewhere efficiently. It's a four-wheeled adventure—a vehicle that lets him play highway chess at 60 miles an hour.

I learned all I want to learn about the dauntless character of the French the other day in a ride from Caen to Paris. My fellow passengers were two ex-jerpmates from the war days—George Hicks of the National Broadcasting company and Jack Thompson, the Chicago Tribune's boarded military expert.

Our voiture was a new tiny model Renault. In a Detroit factory it might be stepped on as an overzealous cockroach. But these little cars, which sell for $800 to $900 and get 50 miles to a gallon of gas, are popular in France.

We three shoe horned in with the driver but had some trouble closing the door. It kept rebounding from Jack's beard. Finally he managed to twist his head. Someone outside quickly slammed the door, and we were off.

There has been no ride like it since Paul Revere rode to spread the alarm and Sheridan galloped to Winchester, 15 miles away.

Speed Artist
It turned out our driver wasn't just a chauffeur. He was Barney Oldfield and Sir Malcolm Campbell. He was D'Artagnan carrying a message for the queen. He was Roland, blowing his horns at Roncesvalles. And when huge trucks bore down on us he was "Papa" Joffre, the Rock of the Marne.

Down the road our little car sped at 100 kilometers an hour like a maddened waterbug. Our driver drove like a Frenchman making love or painting a picture—with zip, artistic frenzy.

We grasped the handlebars of bicycles, and they peeled off to the right. We skinned the paint off motor cars coming at us, and they shied off to the left.

"Anybody got a can opener—let's bail out," someone screamed.

Then we got caught in a series of traffic jams. Elsewhere in the world when there is a traffic jam, the vehicles come to a tangled halt, unable to move.

Not on the road to Paris. The bigger the jam the faster it moves. Everybody gears up and hundreds of cars going in opposite directions thread through each other in shifting, weaving honking masses at 60 miles an hour.

"Stop! halt! slow down!" we yelled. The driver turned, grinned, circled a truck and picked up speed. He wanted the Americans to have a good time.

After the third traffic jam I found myself mumbling a codicil to my will. Hicks was murmuring what I took to be a prayer. Thompson's beard was turning a silent blue.

By some miracle we reached Versailles, on the outskirts of Paris. As suddenly as it had erupted in frenzy, traffic slowed down to a gentle, 50-mile an hour crawl.

It was then we discovered our driver was boiling mad. By gesture and phrase he let us know why. It seemed a truck had swerved into his path without honking a horn. And he was angry because he hadn't crashed headon into the truck to punish it.

"A Frenchman would rather get into an accident if justice is on his side than avoid an accident and feel he had not insisted on his rights," he said with dignity.

That is all anyone needs to know about the French spirit. He'll hold on to it—even if it lands him in a ditch.

Judges Named For Bicycle Parade Event

John Sandmeyer, Cecil Kollenborn and Malcolm Epley will select the winners and award the prizes in the Bicycle Safety parade to be held in Klamath Falls on Saturday, June 25, at 10 a.m.

A difficult job is anticipated for them by Howard Stroud of Montgomery Ward and company, sponsors of the event.

Stroud stated that entries have been coming in fast, and the enthusiastic plans of the boys and girls indicate that the bike decorations will be spectacular. Already there are over 200 contestants for the parade, and at least 100 more are expected before the deadline at 10 a.m. on Saturday. All contestants must register with Chuck Smith in the sporting goods department of Ward's store.

Awarding of prizes and speeches on safe bicycle riding will be broadcast over a public address system from the judges stand on Tenth street between Main and Pine.

All The Comforts Of Home For Stars

HOLLYWOOD, June 23 (AP)—All the comforts of home soon will be available to the Hollywood hotshots who like to do their fighting in public.

A private barbershop, handy for cosmetic repairs, is being added to Ciro's, plushy nightspot on the Sunset Strip.

Proprietor H. D. Hover also announced plans for a gymnasium and steam room—just the thing for the boys whose floor records indicate a little more training.

"Purely a matter of convenience," explained Hover, a twinkle in his eye.

There are approximately 342,000 gasoline stations now operating in the United States. Delaware law provides for a man to be whipped if he is convicted of beating his wife.
