Nation Magazine Appeals Ban

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—The Nation magazine, barred for another year from New York public schools, plans court action to seek reversal of the ban.

By an unanimous vote Thursday, the nine-member board of education renewed the ban on the publication. The board approved a list of periodicals from which the Nation had been dropped by the board of superintendents.

This marks the second year the magazine was omitted from the list of approved school reading. It originally was dropped in June, 1948, because of an allegedly anti-Catholic series of articles by Paul Blanchard.

Miss Lillie Schultz, director of the Nation associates, filed a brief with the board notifying it that the ban will be contested in court.
