Klamath Falls Schools Not in Quake Area...

Despite recent shakes which gave the Klamath basin publicity from the earthquake angle, the Klamath Falls city school system has been advised that the city is not classed in an "earthquake area."

Shortly after the last "shake," the school boards asked a government seismologist if this would tend to put Klamath Falls in a more hazardous area than formerly.

The reply was negative and Klamath Falls still remains in a non-quake area.
