Smith May Go Before Jury In Portland

Little Raymond (Skippy) Smith, held in the county jail on a charge of second degree murder, may be moved to Portland this week-end and his case will be studied by a federal grand jury convened in Portland July 12.

Attorney J. C. O'Neill, representing the 18-year-old Beatty Indian, said Smith probably would not have a preliminary hearing before his case goes to the grand jury.

He has been held in the county jail since June 8. He allegedly stabbed Elmo Lobert, 22, with a pocketknife in a drinking party quarrel near Chilcoquin June 2. Lobert died within 30 minutes and Smith disappeared in the woods.

He gave himself up two days later at Chilcoquin, and the federal charge of second degree murder was placed against him.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Paul Hamlin, whose duties include transporting federal prisoners, is expected through Klamath Falls Friday or Saturday and may move Smith to Portland at that time.
