Anti-Smog Law Asked In Portland

PORTLAND, July 20 (AP)—Mayor Dorothy McCullough Lee of Portland announced Tuesday she was taking steps to keep smog from becoming a problem here.

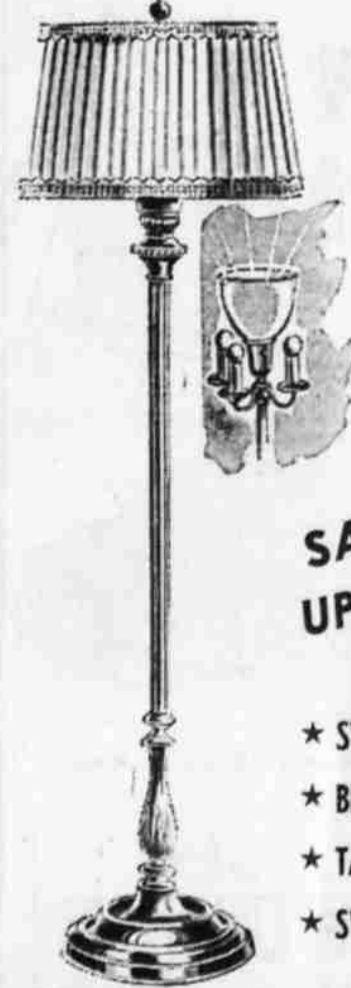

She proposed an ordinance to restore the smoke-prevention committee that operated before the war. Mrs. Lee noted the city's growing industrialization and commented "the time to develop adequate smoke-control is when plants are being built, not afterward."

COMMUTER LEWISTOWN, Montana (AP)—The Rotary club here claims its president is becoming one of the most widely-traveled Rotarians in the land. He is John Peck, a Garnett rancher, who has to drive 70 miles to the weekly luncheon club meeting.
