Grenadier Guard Club Called Down

LONDON, July 25 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth, colonel-in-chief of the Grenadier Guards, has told her officers to watch their manners.

The princess went to the Guards club dinner a while back and was displeased with the heckling of some of the speakers.

Her royal highness has mentioned that the interruption of the speeches this year showed a lack of manners.

"It is a great honor that her royal highness, the colonel, attends the dinner and it would be a disgrace to the club if she should have any doubts about attending in the future."

Regimental Comdr. Lt. Col. E. H. Goulburn told a reporter: "I don't think it will occur again."
