Retiring are Gladys Brodie, chief operator who has been with Pacific Telephone and Telegraph for 30 years, and Levi (Shorty) Thompson of the plant department who received his 20-year service emblem Saturday.

Seventy employes of the Klamath office and their friends were present for the dinner. Lee Clyde of the Portland Pacific Telephone and Telegraph general office presented Mrs. Brodie with her 30-year emblem, and Howard Boyd of the Eugene office gave the 20-year emblem to Thompson, who also received a wrist watch from fellow-employes. Mrs. Brodie was given a coffee table.

Both will continue to reside in Klamath Falls, although Thompson is considering taking some time to visit relatives in Mexico City.

Wainwright Sees Danger In Pact

CLEVELAND, July 26 (AP) —Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan, sees the Atlantic pact as an "invitation to another war."

The tall, retired officer told an interviewer yesterday that he found little good for the United States in the agreement and felt that in the event of war, this country would "face it almost alone."

"Possibly some help from England" might come, he added.

Instead of spending millions on European countries, Gen. Wainwright said, the United States should rebuild our own defenses, "which have been let down to a low level."

The general is national commander of the Disabled American Veterans. He came here to arrange for the group's annual convention Aug. 14-20.
