Moseley Is Speaker At Tule Banquet

TULELAKE, July 30—Americans must seek other defenses against another war than education on the use of secrets of nature if this country is to survive, said Dr. John O. Moseley, president of the University of Nevada, here last night.

The educator, who spent 37 years in his profession, spoke to an audience of 200 guests, gathered in the Legion hall for the annual dinner of the chamber of commerce. His wit and humor brought repeated applause.

Using as his topic, "Wanted, More Pioneers for a New America," he emphasized the dire need for leaders with the courage of a pioneer, men with vision and faith, willing to attack the things that are leading the country to slavery.

"Declension of America faces us if we fail to recognize this trend," he said in closing, "for, on the spirit of the pioneer depends the safety of this country."

Dr. Moseley was introduced by Ross Rogland, retiring president of the chamber of commerce, who also introduced Dr. Richard Sinclair, new president of the chamber, other officers and the board of directors.

Present for the dinner were visiting presidents and secretaries of chambers from nearby towns and other distinguished guests.

During the program, broadcast by station KPJL, the first movement of Grieg's concerto was played by Mrs. Desi Stevens, Klamath Falls, and her pupil, Don Graichen. Two pianos were used.

Mrs. Stevens, before coming to Klamath Falls appeared with the Boston symphony orchestra and other musical groups in the east. Graichen is preparing for the concert stage under Mrs. Stevens' teaching.

The dinner was prepared and served by the guild of the Tulelake Community Presbyterian church.

WHAT HAPPENS TO NATIONS

PORTLAND, Ore. (To the Editor)—Ralph M. Shaw, Chicago lawyer, native Kentuckian, was called upon at a reunion of his class (Yale '90) to respond to the toast, "The State of the Nation." He expressed himself as follows:

"I wish to say that a mighty change has come in the affairs of our city, and our ideals are utterly unlike those of our leaders in a previous generation. When I was a boy it was considered not only safe and honorable to create an estate, so that almost all men of standing wished to add to their possession, and felt a certain dignified honor in prospering; but now one must apologize for any success in business, as if it were the utter violation of the moral law, so that today it is worse to seem to prosper than to be an open criminal."

Mr. Shaw was quoting Isocrates, Greek orator, who spoke the words in a speech 354 B. C. But what Isocrates, companion of Socrates and contemporary of Plato, had said sounds very much like what any thoughtful, patriotic American citizen would say today.

Greece was then at the pinnacle of her glory. She occupied the same proud position in the world that our own country did at the close of World War II, when we had won an external war waged for the freedom of mankind, while losing our liberties at home.

Greece collapsed and later Rome assumed world leadership. Then Rome decayed. All of which suggests a moral: Nations are not destroyed; they rot.

MAYBE IT'S THE HEAT—Patrons of the Tower Drive-In on S. 6th, yesterday were startled—to say the least—to see the above pictured action going on in a nearby lot. Buckaroo Bud Owens, Billy Stepp and Les Mowdy had rigged up plank and spring apparatus to offhandedly resemble a calf and were practicing their bulldogging. Owens is in the picture. All three were turning in some sparkling arena times with the dummy, 5 1/2 to 6 seconds for the throw and tie.
