Yippee!

By DEB ADDISON

WE'RE going out to see Spike. Each year when the aspen leaves have turned to flame, and the first rains have wet down the pine needles and quieted the rattle weeds a little, Spike is unofficial host to a bunch of us at the ranch.

It's the opening of the deer season. Killing the big buck is the objective, of course, but there's a lot more to it than that. And Spike represents a lot of the things that make you scorn a vacation in the city.

Spike is the man at the ranch. He's not a cowboy, but he goes in with the cattle in the spring. He builds fence, cleans out springs, carpenters up what needs it, makes a garden, and just keeps things going.

The ranch house lies just over the big mountain at the head of the meadow, where the creek flattens out. As we drop down off the ridge and roll up to the yard, Spike will be out to greet us. He'll tell us about the big buck with a head like a rocking chair that he saw yesterday morning, and he'll show the kids the new batch of kittens and tell them their names. He'll twist his ears to make them crackle, when properly coaxed, and will generally spoil the brats.

When we come in to rest up during the heat of the afternoon and listen to the wild series, Spike

Old Hunter Says Beavers, Otters Enemies of Nimrods

By HAL BOYLE

INLET, N. Y. (AP)—Cuss that old Louisiana Purchase exposition held in St. Louis, Mo., way back in 1904!

Here—45 years later—it's causing a scarcity of wild deer in the central Adirondack mountains.

So says Gerald Kenwell, 62, the best woodsman hereabouts. This is his reasoning:

"Some of our guides went out to the St. Louis fair. They saw some beavers on exhibition. Looked real cute, so they brought a pair back and turned them loose. Then somebody put out some more."

Protected for years by a closed hunting season and with few natural enemies to catch them, the beavers multiplied like rabbits. And now, Kenwell says, they've got nature out of balance.

"The beaver is the death of the woods," he said. "They've dammed up the streams and flooded the natural winter quarters for the deer, leaving the deer nothing to eat. And they're destroying the trout, too. The trout can't get past the dams to spawn, and the water in the ponds heat up in the sun, and the trout can't stand that either."

Kenwell holds that the otter, also increasing rapidly, is an equal threat to the fishermen's fun.

"An otter catches and eats about two pounds of fish a day, and fifty of them will get rid of a lot of fine trout."

The old guide puts much of the blame on "the cussed conservation rules. The state now has a two-foot open season on beaver and otter, but Kenwell thinks it ought to pay a bounty for trapping the pests. And a bounty on bobcats, too."

"There's more of them around now," he said. "And as for bears—why there's ten times as many now as there were 40 years ago. The old bear hunters are gone, and the bears have their way."

Some bruns raided his hunting camp this summer, smashed through a window and ate everything that wasn't in cans.

will tell us about the exploits of yore. He's an ex-ball player, as well as an ex-army man and what have you.

SPIKE also closes the ranch in the winter. He came over the mountain in the big snow last winter on a two-wheel fence-mending wagon behind four horses. He brought a crate of chickens and a couple of cats out through drifts that were belly high to a tall Indian.

"The rest of the cats wintered it out all right on a frozen cow and the mice in the hay barn." Spike was under the weather after he came out through the blizzard, but he's back on the job now and will be up building fires and routing us out the first morning.

THE old ranch house burned down last spring. It just at the start of the spring roundup. Burned up slick and clean. It looked bad for a while, but we have assurance that the walls and roof are up, and that the kitchen and bathroom are finished, on the new one. And Spike started rebuilding the meal house over the creek the first of the week.

We're taking out andirons for the fireplace, with TL on the top of one and the horse brand atop the other. Official house warming will start Friday night.

When the bulldozer cleaned up debris from the fire, they dug out a swimmin' hole down the creek. It could be a little cold—if it's the same water we froze our feet in when we came in hot, dusty and footsore from hunting. Maybe the kids can stand it.

MAYBE this year we'll get the big old boy with the wide rack of horns that plays tag with us every year in the box canyon down the ridge from the ranch.

First year we got our only buck in that canyon. Three of us got in shots at him as he bounced through the mahogany on the other side. But this was just an ordinary buck. Nobody's ever scratched a hair on the big boy.

Last year two of us stood on the rim rock and saw him for two jumps as he got away beneath us. I jerked my wind out getting across the point to cut him off. We never saw him again.

Maybe we will this year.

Football, football, and more football. Now comes the time of week when we can write about what we would like to see, but can't.

Instead there is always the radio. Four football frays will invade the local airways this Friday and Saturday.

LW sports-caster, Floyd Wynne, will play-by-play the Pelican-Ashland game at 9 to-night.

It comes up with two contests on Saturday, one local and one Pacific coast. At 1:45 p. m. the Notre Dame - Washington game will be broadcast. And later Dave Underhill in the evening at 8, the OTI-Eastern Oregon game will go on the air.

ABC's game of the week depicted by Harry Wismer will be the Georgia-North Carolina contest. Broadcast time is 10:45 in the a. m.

For full coverage of national scores tune in to LW at 6, Saturday evening for Today's Sport Page.

"Wynne With The Winners" will be heard on LW at 7:30. So get out your score sheets and see how good the crystal ball functioned.

Floyd Wynne has a phenomenal record of prognostication over the past nine years. His batting average is somewhere in the .800 column.

Charles Laughton, the chubby character actor, who did so well in "Mutiny on the Bounty" and other films, will be on the spot on Hollywood By-Line.

He will be interviewed by a force of Hollywood reporters in an unrehearsed session, ABC Saturday at 7 p. m.

An all-star cast will get things rolling for the "Community Chests of America."

Featured on the stellar attraction tonight at 7 on KFLW are Ethel Barrymore, Jerry Colonna, Honey Charnichael, Dinah Shore, Margaret Whiting and Jack Benny.

Included among the supporting stars is Harry S. Truman, who although famous for his piano rendition of the Missouri Waltz, will be

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Phobias and Mental Disease

By EDWIN P. JORDAN M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Fear is a strange thing. Probably everyone who has any sense has been frightened sometime. This is normal. There are some people, however, who live in constant fear of something which does not exist or is only a slight danger. This is called a phobia or obsession. Such fears may have no basis in past experience and are just "there." At other times the phobia may have come from some fright which occurred in childhood and has been entirely forgotten.

There are many different kinds of fears and I hesitate to mention any of them "for fear" someone might think of a new phobia for the first time. There is one fear called bathophobia, which really means fear of great depths. If it really meant the way it sounded, it would be very common among children!

Another fear is called acrophobia, which is fear of great heights. This seems to be quite common—probably so much so that it is almost "normal."

Many Different Kinds
There are other phobias with long and astonishing names and even stranger meanings. At the risk of making this sound like a list, a few are: bibliophobia—fear of books; bibliophobia—fear of being dirty; bibliophobia—fear of gaiety, and necrophobia, or fear of death. Obviously the last is a fear which nearly everyone shares. It is a true phobia only when a person thinks about death almost constantly.

Should anything be done about these abnormal fears? The answer is yes, if possible. Being afraid of something is abnormal only when it is excessive and there is no good reason for that fear.

Real phobias make the victim miserable and can completely dominate their lives and point of view. Even when the nature of fear seems humorous to the outsider, it is a constant source of annoyance to the person involved and may cause a great deal of mental distress.

Former LA Chief Comes Clear

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30 (AP)—Former Police Chief C. B. Horrall, in a speedy trial, has won speedy acquittal on perjury charges.

Perjury and bribery charges against another officer, Lt. Rudy Wellport, were dismissed yesterday by Superior Judge Stanley N. Barnes.

Ex-Chief Horrall retired recently in the midst of a furor kicked up by revelations that his vice squad had dealings with Hollywood bawdy house keeper Brenda Allen.

What they won't think of next, Wednesday night the main attraction at the grunt and groan parlor was a wrestling bear.

The next thing you know, Pogostick U. will be importing a kangaroo to fill out its track squad. (Should be a dead cinch for firsts in the broad jump, high jump, and pole vault.)

But how silly can we get? And don't answer that one.

Hollywood Girl Has Big Night
HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30 (AP)—Tonight is a big night for eight-year-old Lynda Harper. She'll introduce the president of the United States on a four network broadcast launching the community chest drive.

Lynda, daughter of William and Hester Harper of Santa Monica, was born a "blue baby" with a heart ailment that makes normal breathing impossible.

Russia's abrupt cancellation of her treaty of friendship with Yugoslavia, thereby setting a fiery example which her satellites may be expected to follow, further tightens the banishment of Marshal Tito from the bolshevik fold.

The Yugoslav dictator now is decidedly on his own until he makes new friends who at this stage obviously must come from the democracies. I imagine his sensations are something like those of your correspondent one day in the first World War when he got caught in the middle of a German barrage of big-power shells. I wasn't exactly lonesome, you understand, but did have a feeling that I could do with a little friendly encouragement.

Thus far the only kindly word Tito has received from his old comrade, is contained in an article published by "The Literary Gazette" in Moscow. The Gazette says history soon is going to offer him a choice—either rat poison, like Hitler, or a noosed rope, like Mussolini. The article adds that "there is good reason for the Belgrade dwarf to go crazy."

Moscow's Charge
Moscow accuses Tito of lining up with "foreign imperialist circles." Specifically Russia charges that the Budapest treason trial of former Hungarian Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk, sentenced to death last Saturday, disclosed that Yugoslavia has been carrying on hostile activity against the Soviet Union.

Yugoslavia also has a friendship and mutual aid pact with Albania, Poland and Romania. In the natural course of events all these neighbors also will cancel their treaties.

Well now, the significance of all this lies in the real reason for the break between Russia and Yugoslavia which came into the open in a big way in June, 1948. That was when the Moscow dominated communist expelled the Balkan state from membership.

Sovereignty
The cause of that expulsion was Tito's refusal to surrender Yugoslavia's national sovereignty to control of Moscow. He maintained that his country's internal affairs concerned her alone, and that she would accept no dictation. In other words he was pursuing nationalism in building his communist state, whereas Russia's whole effort is centered in international communism under which every country would take its orders from Moscow.

This means Tito has inaugurated a new brand of communism for his state. And that, of course, is a turn of events which is of vast importance to the Western nations.

Lakeview Officials Nominated

The candidates, mayor, S. H. Sawyer, of Auto Industrial Sales Co.; Carl W. Lange, of Lakeview Sales Co.; Councilmen, Dr. A. E. Naslund, dentist, incumbent; Homer Powell, of Rose Cleaners; Hugh Mercer, of Graham-Mercer Chevrolet Co.; Clarence Byington, machine operator for White Pine Lumber company, Recorder, Ed Court, incumbent; Clarence A. Feasler, employe at Hotel Lakeview, Treasurer, Ben Wilkerson, incumbent, Lakeview accountant; Walter Bowne, Lakeview accountant.

Declines to Run
Harry J. Anthony, mayor for the past two years who served as councilman for two years before his election as mayor, declined to accept a re-nomination for that office. Don Fossum, councilman for two years, also refuses to seek office again.

The town election will be held on Tuesday, November 8. Men named Monday night, to legally become candidates, must accept the nomination in writing not less than 20 days before the election. The deadline will be 5 p. m. Tuesday, October 18.

Other candidates may enter the field for any of the offices by filing nomination petitions, containing not less than 30 signatures of qualified electors, by 5 p. m. Tuesday, October 18.

Forks, Pick Handles Nip 'Invasion'

OTHELLO, Wash., Sept. 30 (AP)—A four-car "invasion" by 18 Moses Lake air force base soldiers was repelled with pitchforks, pick handles and flats last night by several dozen townfolk.

Early today, 13 of the enlisted men were in the Moses Lake base guardhouse while MP's and state patrolmen were looking for the remaining carload of five.

Mayor Clyde Matthews said he believed the "invasion" was organized as a reprisal for action last Thursday night when two air force men were "run out of town" after creating a disturbance.

Mobilized
"I tried to talk them out of it but it didn't work," Matthews said. "So I spread the word around town and some of the fellows got together."

"We caught one car at the edge of town and worked over three of them. Then we let them go."

The soldiers were in private automobiles, the pitchfork and pick-handle armed townfolk in trucks.

The Sarge Knows They Work!

MARCH AIR BASE, Calif., Sept. 29 (AP)—Tech. Sgt. Vincent Didio can tell you that those pilot ejector seats really work.

Didio, 30, ground crew chief for the 94th fighter squadron, was checking over the cockpit of an F-86 jet plane when it happened. Somehow he hit the trigger that set off the 37 mm. shell powering the ejector.

It ejected him and the seat through the half open canopy 20 feet into the air. He came down on the concrete flight apron in a shower of plastic—and with a broken shoulder, ribs and knee.

Tacoma Man Gets Shark-Bite!

EUREKA, Calif., Sept. 30 (AP)—Pete Falden, Tacoma, landed a three foot shark yesterday—and a drop of blood was gashed by its teeth.

Falden was fishing 60 miles off Cape Mendocino from the Seattle tuna boat, Montana.

He was brought here by coast guard picket boat. Doctors said the three inch gash on Falden's arm was not dangerous.
