Why Your Beer Gushes Over

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11 (AP)—Ever wonder why your beer gushes over when you open the can or bottle?

Dr. Philip Gray, here for the Master Brewers Association of America convention, today gave this explanation.

Laboratory studies indicate that wildness is primarily physical in character. Colloidal particles, acting as nuclei, are responsible for the liberation of carbon dioxide gas from the unstable, supersaturated solution of carbon dioxide existing when the container is opened."

HELD INCOMMUNICADO

Savel Kliachko (above), 26, of Palo Alto, Calif., told US embassy officials in Prague, Czechoslovakia, that he had been picked up by security police in Slovakia, taken on a wild ride during which his car rolled over and hurt his shoulder and held incommunicado for five days. He said the police demanded that he admit he was a US spy. Kliachko is in Czechoslovakia on a student scholarship.

Fort Klamath

Wilfred Loomley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Loomley, is now enrolled at Oregon State college at Corvallis for the fall term as a student of agriculture.

Mrs. Jerry King returned by car last week from a month's visit with her mother and other relatives at Merrill, Wis. Her daughter Sherry, who made the trip east with her mother, remained in Wisconsin with her grandmother, and as soon as their affairs here are settled, Mr. and Mrs. King will return to Wisconsin to again make their home after having been Fort Klamath residents for the past two years.

A week-end house guest at the Peoria, Ill., who is the mother-in-law of the Gordens' daughter, Mrs. Dick Jockish, formerly Norma Gordon. Enoch Maerz, building contractor of Salem, Ore., is here personally in charge of a crew of four men, who started construction work Tuesday, Oct. 4, of the new highway maintenance shop for which Maerz was the successful bidder. The building being put up by the Oregon state highway commission here is located on the former Frank Edwards acreage adjoining the Edwards residence on one side and the Wood River auto court on the other and borders on Wood river.

It will measure 32 by 76 feet and will be constructed of pumice tile, which is being brought in by truck from Salem. Maerz stated last week that he estimates the work will be completed and the building ready for use of the Fort Klamath patrol of the highway department in from six weeks to two months at the most. He and his crew have rented a house from Frank Edwards and are boarding at the Edwards home next door to their living quarters.

The unseasonal snowstorm on Thursday and subsequent rainy weather over the week-end has hampered the construction work to some extent, but the work is progressing, nevertheless.

Fair luck is reported to date by deer hunters in this area, many of whom have already got their bucks, while others, not so lucky, are still trying. Honors for being the youngest hunter in Fort Klamath to down his buck go to Paul Thomas, 10-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thomas, who while out hunting with his parents in the Sun Creek vicinity, shot and killed a fine four-point deer, which is his first trophy, and of which, needless to say, he is very proud.

The snowstorm on Thursday, October 6, has provoked much comment and speculation on the possibility of an unusually early winter this year. Snow started falling in large flakes at 2 p.m. Thursday, and continued until late at night, the valley and surrounding hills and mountains being covered with snow by morning, with an eight-inch snowfall reported in Crater Lake park.

The weather talk has brought to light dire predictions by local old-timers who claim that we are in for another tough winter, equally as severe as last winter if not more so. How these horrible conclusions are arrived at is not known, but it is sincerely hoped they are wrong, as last winter is still a nightmare.

memory, when sub-zero weather prevailed for six weeks without a let-up, and blizzards and heavy snowfalls were the rule the rest of the winter.

Contemplation of another such winter makes even the most rugged of us quail at the very thought of again enduring these conditions, but after the hot, dry summer just past when the valley was the driest for over sixty years, anything can happen in the way of weather.

Logging operations on the Modoc Lumber company, 7-Mile division by J. W. Fisher were suspended last week due to muddy roads caused by the storm, and will be resumed when the logging roads dry out.

TELEVISION—WHOLESALE

NEW YORK (AP)—Normally not so many television cameras are used, but as many as ten are employed on particular occasions. One instance was the telecast of the opening of a new television factory in East Paterson, N. J. Ten cameras were required effectively to cover an event which took place over quite a wide area, inside the building and out.

Vet's Mail Bag

As a service to veterans in the community, this newspaper will publish an occasional column of news items from the veterans administration. For further information, veterans should contact or write their nearest VA office.

World War II veterans should apply immediately for their special dividend on national service life insurance policies to be paid early next year by the veterans administration, if they have not already done so, the VA has announced.

The VA reports that thousands of Pacific Northwest veterans applied for their GI insurance dividend during the first few days after application forms became available August 29. Since then, however, applications from veterans have fallen off considerably.

In order to process dividend applications efficiently, by business machine methods, it is necessary that applications be received in a large volume, the VA explained.

The VA stressed that veterans must apply if they wish to receive a GI insurance dividend check. Application forms are available at all post offices, from the VA or any veterans service organization.

The VA said also that many dividend applications are being received without the veteran's signature or his service serial number, both of which are necessary. Veterans who failed to sign their applications should submit another properly filled out, the VA said.

Q. I am an employed World War II veteran and wish to get a GI loan to buy a business. Can I get such a loan, even though I intend to continue working at my present job?

A. If you plan to conduct the business yourself either on a full or part-time basis, you would be eligible for a GI business loan.

ARMORY — FRI. OCT. 14

COMING: On Friday, October 14th, it will be my great pleasure to present the Champagne Music of Lawrence Welk and his great orchestra to the dancing public of the Klamath basin. Lawrence Welk has had the favorite band in the Midwest for many years. His band has substituted for Guy Lombardo for many years during Guy's vacation from the Roosevelt Hotel in New York City. This is the first Northwest tour for Lawrence and he comes direct from a record breaking engagement at the Hollywood Palladium. I believe he will prove to be the most popular band I have ever had in Klamath Falls.
