From "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be the teaching of God's love to man, and man cannot love God supremely and act his whole affections on spiritual things, while loving the material or trusting in it more than in the spiritual.

Confused about Oregon's new school bus stopping law? This is the way it works. On a two-lane roadway, you must stop when meeting or overtaking a school bus which has halted to load or unload children. On roadways having three or more lanes, you must stop only if you're traveling in the same direction. After having stopped, you must not proceed as long as any children are leaving the bus or crossing the roadway. To assist in holding traffic while children cross the road, all buses are being equipped with red stop signal arms as rapidly as possible. You must stop for the bus whether or not the stop arm is displayed. Use of this signal by the bus driver simply indicates the situation requires you to remain stopped. The law applies equally to city streets and rural roads and highways.

New Series Continued At Brethren

Children of all ages are invited, and a nursery is provided for children up to 4 years of age during the morning worship service. There is also a church school class for adults.

Family Day At First Presbyterian

Sunday, October 16 will be observed by the First Presbyterian church as Christian Home Sunday. It is urged that families will attend church together on this day.

The kindergarten department of the Sunday school, is for all preschool aged children. Their guidance is under the supervision of well planned course of study and work for the children. The plan in this department is "Planned Study for the Home and Church." By using such a course of study it brings closer cooperation with the child in the home and in the church. The children, while in Sunday school, also have some hand work activity. This department of the church school is growing rapidly, but there is always room for more.

Plan Expansion Home? Check Size of Plot

Before buying or building a home with the intention of expanding its size at a later date, the homeowner should first make sure that the size of the plot will permit future expansion, says the Construction Research Bureau, New York clearing house for building information. The house or plot buyer is advised to obtain from his local building officials a copy of the zoning law before making any purchase.

Building Codes

Most communities and some leading agencies have regulations governing the distances from the house to the street and to other property lines. These distances are usually stated as minimums to prevent crowding or encroaching upon adjoining property.

Few front yards are permitted to be less than 20 feet, side yards less than 5 feet, and the requirements are usually more.

Limitations

Limitations are set on how much of the plot can be occupied by buildings. These range from 25 to 40% in most residential zones. In the case of a 100' x 50' plot where 25% occupancy is the maximum, house and garage can cover no more than 1250 square feet. Unless the house is extremely small, this would obviate any additions at ground level; any expansion would have to be in the form of a second story.

"The boy stood beside the fire heaping more paper on the flames," Macnease reported.

Police turned the matter over to the fire marshal for disciplinary action.

MEXICO HELPS GI STUDENT

HAVEN IN MEXICO—Joe Burstein, his wife and daughter find a good life.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Take it from Joe Burstein, that veteran's student allowance goes a whole lot farther in Mexico than it does in the U.S. Burstein, studying Spanish literature at the Mexico City college, is only one of about a thousand veterans now enrolled in schools in Mexico. The U.S. government pays their tuition and gives Burstein, his wife, Geraldine, and young daughter, Delilah, $120 a month to live on.

Burstein won his right to the grant by 31 months of overseas duty in North Africa and Europe with the 59th Engineer Regiment. Contact with Spanish-speaking people in North Africa gave him the idea for his intended career—teaching Spanish in U.S. schools. He had had three years of Spanish in high school "but I really learned to speak it in Africa."

Shanghai Born

He was born in Shanghai 26 years ago, the son of a refugee White Russian furniture auctioneer. His father brought him to the U.S. when he was 10, stopping two years along the way in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. But he had forgotten all the Spanish he learned there. He grew up in Marin City, Calif., near San Francisco.

After the war he went back to Marin City, married his wife, Geraldine Percy.

Allowance

Burstein's allowance amounts to 1038 pesos a month. Of this, 300 pesos—about $35—goes for a penthouse apartment and another 300 goes for food. Other household expenses take up 150 pesos more and the rest goes for books, clothing and incidentals.

The penthouse apartment has a big terrace where Delilah plays and a good view of the snow-capped mountains and Popocatepetl mountains. The couple had a series of servants, but couldn't find one they liked. They finally gave up and Geraldine does her own housework now. It's harder than it would be in the U.S., since she washes vegetables in a germicide. And water has to be boiled for drinking. They shop in a super-market, but buy Mexican products to make the food money go farther.

Daily Schedule

Burstein's day goes something like this:

Up at 6:30; breakfast on orange juice, oatmeal, toast and cocoa or

tea. Walk a mile to school and classes until 1 p. m.

Then home for a heavy lunch—The Bursteins find that in Mexico City's 7500-foot altitude their main meal should be in the middle of the day. Lunch is usually meat and two vegetables and dessert. Also on account of the altitude, a siesta is necessary.

After that, Joe either studies or goes to a sports club nearby for basketball, swimming, tennis or the Spanish game of "fronton," known in Cuba as "jai-alai." He says he's not very good at it.

Supper is a light meal, frequently just tea and cookies or cake. After that comes more study until bedtime.

Burstein will graduate this year and then go to San Francisco State college for a year of pedagogical training to get his teacher's certificate.

Mexico has more GI students than any other foreign country except France. There are 1322 in France. Mexico, incidentally, is the only Latin American country which has a formal "veterans' attache" in its embassy.
