

More Business More Meat More Fish

By BILL JENKINS
THERE'S cheering news on all sides these days. One little item tells us that one-fifth more meat was produced this fall than we had last year. Maybe the good old steak and egg days are at least in the offing. The war years and rationing are still a fresh memory with many, and the project of completely free and easy buying is a bright beacon in the home economy. More meat for less money to the final purchaser means more fun in living.

THE California state chamber of commerce informs us that business trends in the state are distinctly favorable and seem to be on the rise. While a tiny tinge of jealousy arises when we read of any state doing well (even though Oregon is still gaining by leaps and bounds) the California situation is hand-tailored for the basin area.

As long as the state to the south is doing well, more people coming in and more business opening, it stands to order that the Klamath county as a whole will benefit. California is turning into an industrial state well spotted with major cities. Cities are growing every day. Our own area is predominantly an agricultural one. As long as California cities keep growing, the market for all the foodstuff, livestock and poultry we can grow in this county increases. You can't build cities without lumber and we've got that. They'll need substantial amounts of everything we produce. The future of Klamath Falls would seem assured from all indications. If it didn't look good the local businessmen wouldn't stay here. They are staying. There's room for a lot more growth here, and all we need is a lot of confidence and a lot of hard work and a little patience. It's a great country. Even for those who don't shoot ducks.

FISHERMEN at Odell lake may have better mackinaw fishing soon. The state game commission has launched a program to secure lake trout eggs for hatching and eventual release in Odell. The fish would be planted when approximately six inches in length and hopes are that they will do well. Lake trout were planted before, some 20 years ago, but were unable to maintain themselves in sufficient numbers to make good angling. It was only last season that a fair catch was recorded. Perhaps in a few more years the big boys will again be in the deep water in numbers.

AA's Coming To Meet Here

Members of Alcoholics Anonymous from Grants Pass, Medford, Eugene, Portland and Klamath Falls will be in attendance at a meeting scheduled for 2:30 p.m. this Sunday at Veterans Memorial hall in Klamath Falls.

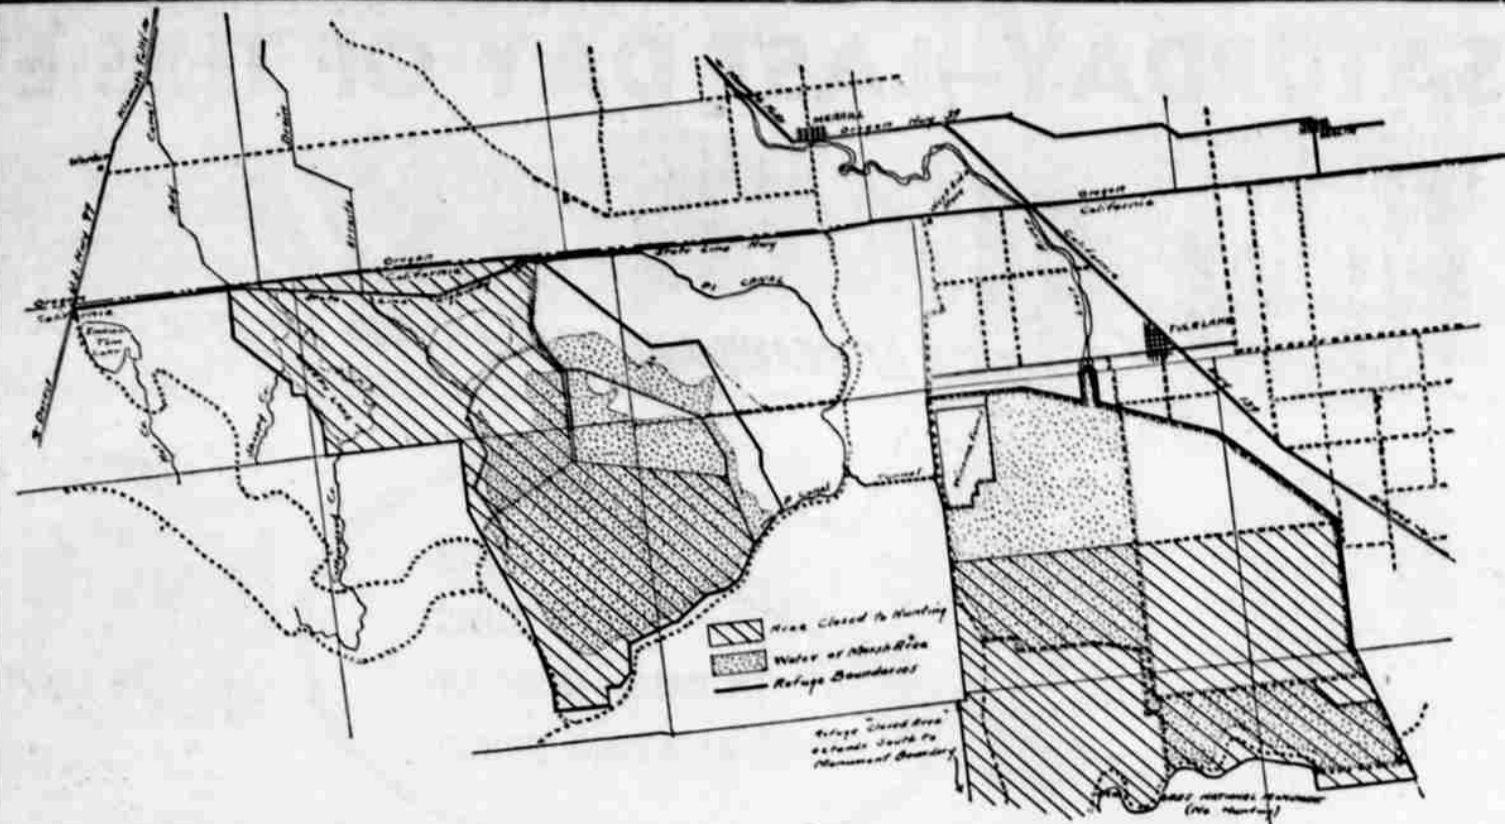

Members of the medical profession and the clergy, as well as all interested persons, are invited to attend and hear a discussion designed to acquaint the public with the subject of alcoholism and the manner in which Alcoholics Anonymous has succeeded in gaining a membership of over 125,000 rehabilitated alcoholics.

Alcoholics Anonymous originated June 10, 1935 when the founders, a New York broker and an Akron doctor, began working together to help sick alcoholics. In 1939 there were scarcely 100 members in a few cities throughout the country. Today there are some 2800 groups functioning throughout the world.

Skin Damage Suit Backfires

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Gertrude M. Shea told a district court jury a facial treatment in a beauty shop here damaged her skin—permanently. The shop, she said, should pay her $33,286. But the jury didn't agree. Instead, the jurors awarded the shop the $170.71 its owners said Mrs. Shea owed them in unpaid bills.

Carrots may be left in the ground almost until the time of the first freeze without damage.

HUNTING GUIDE—This comprehensive map shows the Tule Lake and Lower Klamath game refuge. Closed areas are shown as well as water or marsh areas. Also roads leading into the refuge are clearly outlined. The opening of wildfowl season today saw this area crowded with duck hunters.

Counties Need Funds to Curb Locust Horde

LAKEVIEW—Plans to poison egg beds of the locust horde that invaded Lake and Harney counties last summer struck a financial snag here Tuesday when 17 federal, state and county officials and ranchers met at the county courthouse to discuss means of combating further spread of the pests.

Needed first is local money—county, state or private—to show that there is local interest in fighting the pests. Once that is put up, it was explained by County Agent Elgin Cornett Wednesday, the federal government can be moved to carry the bulk of a mass poisoning program next spring when the locusts begin hatching out. After the locusts are large enough to leave the hatching grounds it is too late for such control measures.

New Type
This locust is a species new to entomologists, it was explained at the meeting. Bill Mabey and Ezra Funk, Elko, Nev., of the federal bureau of entomology, who have been studying this locust band for several years, explained that while the reports of last summer's invasion were correct as to the size of the band, they were exaggerated as to the destructive nature of this particular locust.

Called "range locust" by the entomologists, this species apparently developed 10 years ago in the Nevada desert. It has been reproducing rapidly and each season it has moved north and west. Last summer the area covered by the band increased by six times, and is expected to move into Warner valley next summer unless controlled. The forward elements stopped on Hart mountain and the Warner range last summer.

Range Preferred
But the range locusts, in their 10 years of travel, have stayed on range lands and have by-passed hay and grain fields. Apparently they eat only on sagebrush, rabbit brush, some broadleaved browse plants, while grass has suffered little damage from the locusts.

In order to definitely determine whether the ranchers want the horde stopped, and are willing to put up money to that end, a second meeting will be held November 3. Since Warner valley is directly in the path of the locusts, the meeting will be held there but the place had not been determined this week.

The entomologists, federal and state, who followed the hopper band last summer have mapped the egg beds so that baiting can be carried on when the time comes.

Elsasser Returning To Lutheran

Richard W. Elsasser, one of the country's leading organists, is scheduled for a return engagement at the Zion Lutheran church, Eleventh and High, Thursday, November 3 at 8 p.m.

Elsasser will present his concert at the Hagelstein memorial organ of the church. He appeared here in a recital in June, 1948. His return appearance is being sponsored by the Zion Lutheran Laymen's league.

Good Memory
Born in 1926, Elsasser is said to be the youngest person ever to have memorized and performed the complete 219 organ works of Bach. A program of new and modern compositions is planned for his concert here. The program will close with an improvisation. The theme, which Elsasser will not see before hand, will be submitted by Andrew Loney Jr., supervisor of musical education in the city schools.

The concert is being arranged through the contributions of sponsors, and there will be no admission charge. A free will offering will be taken. The public is welcome.

Mother Dies Under Body Of Daughter

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 21 (AP)—A mother suffocated today beneath the body of her daughter, critically injured in a tornado which exploded their home early today.

Mrs. Ruby Lee Pearson, 37, a teacher, was the lone fatality of the brief storm which appeared to have died out near this West Texas town. Her daughter, Mina La Dell, 11, was injured critically. Long nails from heavy timber of the house were driven into her body as she lay helpless over her mother's face. Alley Pearson, 51, the husband and father, who is blind, and Eddie Earl, 14, a son, were less seriously injured.

A vacated barracks just behind their home, several barns and other smaller buildings also were wrecked. The storm roared into the northern section of this town of 40,000 persons about 12:20 a.m. Hail, wind and heavy rain accompanied the five-minute twister.

Child Guidance Course at OTI

OTTI—Mae Van Deusen, home-making representative, from the State department of education, conducted a child guidance instructional course, the evening of October 20, in the recreation hall.

On October 26 an afternoon course in general clothing will be held under the instruction of Mrs. Helen Listoe. Hours are from 1 to 4 p.m. An upholstery class has been organized and will be under the auspices of Mr. Wilkes, proprietor of a shop following this same line of work in town. A great deal of interest was shown in all courses and all are still open to more enrollees. Tailoring, millinery, bedspreads, draperies and slip covers classes have not worked out definite dates yet, for meetings. These will be announced later.

GI Survived Hiroshima Atom Bomb

PT. LEWIS, Wash., Oct. 21 (AP)—There's a private in the army here who lived through the Hiroshima atomic bomb explosion.

He's Pvt. Kelly Nakashita, 21. He could tell his mates in khaki how it feels to go through an atomic bombing, but he says nobody's asked him as yet. Recalling 9:15 a.m., Aug. 6, 1945, he says:

"In the Air"
"I was studying on the second floor of the Hiroshima Engineering college. I heard a dull explosion and looked out the window. The tops of the buildings and houses were being pulled up in the air.

"I saw the bomb wind coming toward the building and I ducked under a desk. After the ceiling caved in, those of us who were left crawled to a bomb shelter. Five minutes later, 11 of us out of a class of 36 were alive.

"We were covered with the blood of our classmates."
Enlists

Nakashita was born in San Jose, Calif., and taken to Hiroshima by his parents at the age of 10. He returned to the United States this year and enlisted in the army.

"I don't give lectures on the subject. I just happened to be there when it hit and I was one of the lucky ones who got out."

WASPS INTERFERE
WITH BROADCAST
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 21 (AP)—Listeners complained to a local radio station that airplane noises were interfering with broadcasts from the Rutgers university football stadium.

A checkup revealed — not airplanes — wasps!
The buzzing creatures had made a sizeable home in the stadium broadcasting booth.

HIGH SCHOOL News and Comments

Today's pep assembly to arouse enthusiasm for the football game tonight between KUHS and the Longview, Wash., high school team was emceed by Ronnie Lowell. It included Mike Shady's band, a solo sung by Doug Meyers and a skit by the very recently organized "Little Men's Marching and Chowder Society." These four boys carried glasses of water across the stage and then announced they were putting out a fire in Principal James Brown's office.

Pep Peppers were in uniform today as they are every game day and they sold tiny pennants and rooster's buttons to KUHS students this noon in the halls. Although the Pep Peppers will not be marching during the halftime show tonight, the band has prepared a performance that is a little out of the ordinary.

Pep Peppers definitely decided to charter a Greyhound bus for members to go to Grants Pass for the grid game there October 28. The next night the club will put on a Halloween party for members on their dates at the YMCA. Members of the rally squad and their dates have also been invited to the affair.

The KUHS a cappella choir under the direction of Andrew Loney Jr., has been hearing one local soloist each week during a class period. George Brewer, tenor and orchestra director, has been scheduled to sing for the group next week.

November 15 has been set as the date for the traditional big and little sister dance. Junior and senior girls are signing for freshmen girls they would like for their little sisters and the remainder will be assigned sisters. Many of the girls are planning to entertain their little sisters further than the dance, with dinner afterwards and a show.

Music is the latest addition to the girls' physical education and swimming classes. Girls are doing their daily exercises in time with records played on a phonograph and loudspeaker set up in the gym. Also, a phonograph and loudspeaker have been set up in the natatorium so that girls may develop rhythm in their strokes.
