Bud Moth Full Of Prunes
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Public Enemy No. 1 around California prune orchards is getting to be the eye-spotted bud moth. Dr. Harold F. Madsen of the University of California has been keeping tab on this bug that has been sabotaging half the crop in some orchards.

Madsen says that in the larval stage it ties a leaf to a prune, then crawls under and feeds in the shade. The fruit exudes sap which cements the leaf to it and makes it a cull.

The moth long has fed on New England and Canadian apples. Madsen says it emigrated to California only 10 years ago and has tried apricots and peaches, which it doesn't like, pears which it will tolerate, and apples, cherries and prunes, which it likes best. He found DDT worked best against it.

Beautiful Girl Isn't Dumb; Men Appreciate Possibilities

By MARK BARRON
NEW YORK — She is a healthy girl as one can see by the bloom in her cheeks, her curvaceous muscles and the fact that she takes such vigorous indoor exercise as being the beautiful blond ski girl in a sports scene in Ken Murray's Broadway revue, "Blackouts."

On the stage Ellye Marshall looks mighty fetching as she comes on in her ski pants, ski cap and a ski jacket, the latter leaving about two feet of her neck exposed. Over her shoulder she carries a pair of skis as she sings a song about going high on a hilltop to ski through the air like a bird, etc.

"Can you really ski?" I challenged her. "No," she confessed. "In my dressing room once I got curious and tried the skis on my feet just to see how they felt. I stumbled, fell and nearly twisted my ankle. So I took them off in a hurry as I have to dance in the show."

Miss Marshall has to play a dumb girl of the Marie Wilson type, but she says she has to work very hard at it. "You have no idea how much work it is to be a dumb girl," she said. "For instance, when I started out to meet you, I thought and thought about something dumb to say so you would laugh and say, 'Gee, the girl is beautiful but dumb.'"

Serious
"Then I figured that you undoubtedly would comment that I am pretty or I am nice, and I would open my eyes wide and reply: 'That is the nicest compliment I've had all day. I just got up five minutes ago.' So now if you'll just say I'm pretty, then I'll say my dumb line and then we can get down to some talking about serious things."

Gee, the girl is beautiful, but she isn't dumb. Miss Marshall says she is always getting cast against type. She plays the ski girl on Broadway and can't ski. In Hollywood films she is usually cast as a bathing beauty — but naturally — but she can't swim a stroke.

In the forthcoming movie, "Champagne for Caesar," she plays the role of Frosty opposite Ronald Colman who is supposed to be a brilliant quiz-show contestant, a man who can answer every question in the book. Even in a story supposed to be entirely about erudite scholars, she still is cast as a beautiful but dumb chick. In one scene Colman comments that she "has a possibilities" for genius.

"Everyone thinks I have wonderful possibilities — especially men," Miss Marshall says.

Midget Race Driver Killed
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 21 (AP)—Ed Haddad, 37-year-old midget auto race driver, was killed last night in a race as 7000 spectators watched.

Haddad, of Inglewood, was one of Southern California's top race car pilots. His car squeezed into the fence by another and rolled and burned over three times. He died of a fractured skull.

Prisoner Found Sending Broadcasts for Release

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 21 (AP)—Three clandestine radio transmitters operated by a prisoner have been seized at the Mississippi penitentiary at Parchman, Miss. Joe McKinney, federal communications commission regional manager, said they were operated by Frank Moody, serving 50 years for armed robbery.

He said Moody had been making illicit daily broadcasts from the prison for four years.

The Story
Here is the story McKinney told The Houston Post:

For the past three months Moody had been using the transmitters in a campaign to obtain an indefinite suspension of sentence from Mississippi Gov. Fielding Wright.

Receiving the broadcasts were persons at Pascagoula and Bucatuna, Miss. They in turn relayed the information to Moody's wife to help her plea for Moody's release.

Early in October two amateur radio operators, one in Arkansas and one in Tennessee, advised the federal communications commission in Washington of strange broadcasts.

Finders
By use of long range direction-finders FCC agents localized the unlicensed broadcasts to a 100 mile area. Mobile direction finders went into the Parchman area and localized the section from which the broadcasts were originating.

Sunday federal men entered the trustees' cage at Parchman. Moody was summoned.

"He saw the game was up," McKinney said, "grinned, and took us to his cot. After we had acquired the two transmitters there he took us to the little four by six guardhouse and pointed out the other one."

Good Secret
Prison Supt. Marvin Wiggins told The Houston Post:

"We had no idea whatever of Moody's radio activities until the federal men tipped us off three weeks ago."

The FCC men had been monitoring Moody's daily broadcasts for three weeks.

As a trustee, Moody, now only 28, although he had been a prisoner for 10 years for his last offense, has many privileges. He was permitted to take correspondence courses in radio and became the prison radio mechanic and repairman.

"He's a mighty smart fellow," Wiggins said.

The penalty for unlicensed broadcasting is a maximum fine of $10,000 and two years' imprisonment.

Television Tough For Actors

NEW YORK (AP)—Acting for television is the thespian's toughest assignment yet, say those who have tried such other mediums as stage, screen and radio.

Television is the most difficult, they explain, because an actor must learn a complete script, go through a performance without a stop, and, if he makes a mistake, must work his way out the best he can.

In the movies, only a few lines need be learned at a time as scenes generally are taken section by section. On the stage, the actor learns his part once and then keeps doing it over and over. And on the radio, all he needs do is to read the script with the proper vocal embellishments.
