

Miller Asks New City Ad Fee Ordinance

Councilman Darrell Miller approached the council last night for opinion on proposed amendments to city ordinance 3609, which deals with the erection and construction of various advertising signs within the city limits.

The proposed amendments would change existing licensing specifications on individuals or firms connected with sign work.

Classes
Under the proposed setup a class "A" license, covering signmen in all phases of sign work, would assess an initial fee of $100 for the first year, and $25 each consecutive year, and also require a $1500 bond. A class "B" license, covering workers painting signs on windows and walls not over eight feet high, would assess an individual fee of $50, but would not require posting of a bond.

Miller stated that the purpose of the amendments was chiefly to prevent the influx of outside concerns that are competing with local sign companies.

At Present
Under provisions of the present ordinance it is required that any signs erected within city limits must be inspected and approved by the city building inspector and also the electrical inspector if any electrical work is involved.

Charles M. Gilmore, owner of Gilmore Sign Service, at the meeting to support the proposed amendments, cited many instances in which faulty sign work had been done within the city limits and had not been inspected.

He said that most of such work had been done by outside-the-city firms who had gotten away without paying a license fee.

Curb
The present ordinance provides that in such instances of faulty sign work the owners permit can be revoked and the sign be taken down. If that procedure is not followed the police judge has authority to assess a penalty of $100 fine or 30 days in jail.

Councilman Guy Tatman recommended that further study be made of the proposed amendments and that a report be made to council members by the judiciary committee at the next council session, two weeks hence.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT—The latest in a series of disastrous automobile accidents here in recent days did considerable damage to the two cars pictured above and brought injury to Charles Dale Dempsey, 22, of Eugene this morning near Hager. Dempsey was driver of the sedan, William Bert Wilder of the Henley area drove the coupe. Three persons have been killed and several injured in accidents the past four days, a period of good weather and dry pavement.

to have the controversial document printed.

McKay Hit Again
Pearson then attacked the governor for spending state money to go to Washington, D. C., to testify at congressional hearings against the proposed Columbia valley authority.

The governor answered that this money came from money appropriated by the legislature for the governor's travel expense, and that he could spend it any way he wanted to.

Answering Neuberger, Newby said "if Neuberger was in my position, he would have his name on the capital dome."

Newby said he has cut down printing expenses in his department, and that the state seals he distributes were printed by previous administrations.

Stationery
Then he attacked Neuberger, charging the Neuberger placed large orders for personal letterheads and postcards, even before he was sworn in as a member of the legislature.

Newby claimed that Neuberger ordered his stationery printed in different colored ink than that used by other members, adding to the state cost.

"I dislike refreshing the senator's memory. What he does is no concern of mine. But, I just do not like a cheat," Newby said.

Man Kindly Corrects New Errors
Newspaper people frequently and slightly injured late this morning, numerous sources, but the persons involved often give the Fourth Estate a bad time of it.

This was not the case of William Schulz, 25-year-old, Prospect high school teacher, who was involved in an accidental shooting which sent his wife Marion to Klamath Valley hospital peppered with bird shot in the legs.

Right Once!
Schulz told The Herald and News that the story was "all wrong" except that his wife's Christian name was spelled correctly! Otherwise, the name is Schulz, not Shulte, he wasn't going after a duck, his wife was, they didn't take the birdshot out of her legs but left them in, she is still in Klamath Valley hospital and will be until tomorrow, probably—but otherwise the story was okay, he grinned.

Schulz has been driving back and forth from Prospect, teaching school in the day time and visiting his wife evenings. He said he swung the gun to one side to shoot but his hands were wet and the gun slipped and discharged, the shot striking in the mud and splattering Mrs. Schulz.

Pheasant Season Ends Tomorrow
Pheasant season for Klamath county comes to a close tomorrow at sunset, state police and game officers reminded hunters today.

Quail season runs through October 30 and the first half of waterfowl season runs through November 9.

Cars Collide, Man Injured

Charles Dale Dempsey, 22, of 752 Williamette, Eugene, was shaken up and slightly injured late this morning when his car collided with a coupe driven by William Bert Wilder, route 2.

The accident occurred a quarter of a mile beyond the Hager highway crossing on the Merrill highway.

Dempsey was driving toward Klamath Falls when he attempted to pass a car just after topping a small rise. He swung his sedan out and smashed head-on with the couple, going south on the highway.

The impact locked the cars together and spun them into a roadside borrow pit.

Dempsey said he was traveling about 40 miles an hour and Wilder said he was driving about the same rate. Wilder and his companion, Martin Snyder, route 2, were uninjured but Dempsey received a gash on his jaw and leg bruises. He was brought to Klamath Valley hospital for treatment.

State police investigated the accident, and Dempsey was cited to justice court for passing with insufficient clearance.

Merrill Elk Hunter Hurt

MERRILL — An elk hunting trip into Eastern Oregon ended disastrously for one Merrill hunter late Sunday near Burns and Leo McKoen, farmer, was being moved today by ambulance from the Burns hospital to Klamath Falls.

McKoen was a passenger in one of two cars of Klamath hunters. The machine in which he was riding struck the second car in the rear, throwing McKoen through the windshield and causing a brain concussion, fractured jaw, cuts and other injuries. Mrs. McKoen was called to Burns to be with her husband.

McKoen was riding with John Sanders of Malin, driver, Tom Chatburn Jr., Merrill, and Dean King of Malin. In the other car were Jess McKoen, Merrill, brother of the injured man; John Van Meter of Malin and Arthur McKoen of Malin, father of the two McKoen men. The party had left here at 3:30 a. m. Sunday bound for the elk hunting country in the eastern part of the state.

Big Nugget Find Lures Prospectors
Bush Pilot Jim Magoffin paced it off and dubbed it "Yukon Ice" airport.

The influx of gold seekers has doubled this mining camp's population from last Saturday night's 75. More than 60 plane trips into the area from Fairbanks were logged yesterday, compared to 50 Sunday and 29 Saturday.

Even heavier aerial traffic is expected with two landing strips available. Heretofore, small aircraft bearing bearded prospectors had only a Discovery island sandbar on which to put down.

It is easy to separate the professionals from the amateurs.

Oldtimers—veterans of strikes at Chandalar, Pedro, Fairbanks and Pirih River—go methodically about the business of setting up camp, storing grub and kindling their stoves.

Then they find "color" in the river mud with a few swishes of their battered pans. Finally they begin batted out their claims. Color consists of minute gold flakes without commercial value.

Tenderfeet
Novices invariably dash toward the first group of men they sight, ask directions and then plunge off across the ice toward the tall ends of Fishwheel town—either up or downstream—in a ceaseless search for unclaimed ground which may contain gold.

Last night I saw men—some with sleeping bags too short for them, some with parkas, some with overcoats, some with pitifully inadequate clothing—sleeping in tents and in the open as the temperatures dropped to 15 below zero.

3 Injured In Merrill Road Wreck

Three persons were hospitalized late yesterday afternoon when a south bound car went out of control one half mile south of Mac's store on the Merrill highway.

Reported in fair condition at Klamath Valley hospital at noon today were John Elroy Childers, 19, 2115 Tunnel, driver of the car, and his two passengers, Mrs. Gloria Perkins, 17, 3332 Boardman, and her 19-month-old son, Paul Eugene.

Moved
State police said the victims were moved from the scene by passing motorists whose names were not learned.

Childers said he had given the horn to a car ahead and was in the act of passing when the machine made a turn to the left after a brief signal. Childers swung the car onto the soft shoulder, the car careened across the highway from one side to the other and then to avoid oncoming traffic, Childers took to the borrow pit.

Childers had facial cuts and body bruises, Mrs. Perkins and her child had numerous injuries and possible fractures. The young woman and her son were unconscious for a time following the crash.

The accident occurred at 4:15 p. m.

Chest Army Recruiting Stepped Up

Organization of the volunteer army of men and women, who will comprise the 1949 campaign to raise the $65.341 Community Chest budget, swung into high gear yesterday when Lynn Roycroft and Paul Lee co-chairmen of the important industrial division of the appeal, announced that they had completed their entire soliciting committee.

The two division chairmen were secured for the top leadership posts by Chester H. Hamaker, general chairman of the county wide appeal which will raise funds to finance the operating costs of 23 agencies which participate in the Klamath County Community Chest.

Responsibility
Roycroft and Lee, along with their committee of dozen civic leaders of Klamath Falls, will have the responsibility of organizing approximately 80 industrial firms throughout the area.

They pointed out this morning that their fellow workers would attempt to have the chief executive of each of these firms organize complete campaigns within the various plants for the solicitation of all executives and employees.

Chairman Hamaker said that he expects to be able to announce leadership in all of the campaign divisions within a matter of a few days. He added that "there is a general feeling of optimism toward the outcome of our Community Chest Campaign this year and there is every reason to believe that we will reach our objective between now and November 23, when the campaign is scheduled to end."

Workers
Committee workers, who will be under the direction of Roycroft, include Bill Kunz, Sam Neslin, Cal Peyton, Roy Premo, Bert Schmidt, and Lawrence Slater.

Lee's committee will be composed of W. W. Southwell, Phil Hitchcock, John VanDoren, John Sandmeyer, Walter Beane, and Jim Kerns Jr.

Women's Physical Ed Class Tonight
A women's physical education class, under the direction of Dorothy Ramsey, will open tonight in the Klamath Union high school girls' gym.

The class is designed for housewives and businesswomen and will be a combination program of physical conditioning and sports.

The course will run for six weeks and be held Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9:30. Registration fee is $5.00 for the six weeks. Registration may be at the city recreation office in the city hall or at the class.

Ranch Hand Says Room Prowled

Fred Dunn, Spring lake ranch hand, reported to city police early this morning that his room at the Cozy hotel was prowled last night while he was asleep.

Dunn said the prowler took a pocket watch, key chain, pocket knife, cigarette lighter, a mackinaw and about $5 in change.

A similar theft had been reported yesterday afternoon by Harry Elliott, staying at the Hart hotel. Elliott said a Setson hat, jacket, wool shirt and pair of trousers had been taken from his room Sunday afternoon or night.

New Scarlet Fever Cases In This Area

An outbreak of scarlet fever in the area still has not tamed down, with three new cases reported so far this week, bringing the total since the first case a couple of weeks ago to 17.

Some of the 17 youngsters, however, are now recovered and back in school. Dr. Seth M. Kerron, county health officer, urges continued alertness on the part of parents in watching for symptoms in their children.

Mild
Most of the fever cases have been quite mild, Dr. Kerron said, but the danger is that if a child with a mild case comes into contact with someone more susceptible to the disease a really severe case might result. A few have already been of a more serious type, Dr. Kerron said.

Parents are asked to watch for mild sore throat and a rash in their youngsters and to keep them home should these develop, putting the youngster under medical care.

Cases so far have been mostly in the south suburban sector with a few in the south end of town. Dr. Kerron and Public Health Nurse Marial Palmer will go to Chiloquin Wednesday morning and Fort Klamath at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday for general immunization of school children in those areas.

Elks Schedule Barn Dance

The barn dance for Elks and their ladies will be featured next Saturday night in the Elks temple. The rooms will be decorated in the Halloween theme, and the dress for the occasion will be aprons and overalls.

Ham and eggs will be served at midnight to the guests. Morrison and McDonald orchestra will provide music for dancing.
