Thrifty Coats For Budget Wear

The girl who can't afford a mink coat or even a tired old muskrat can take heart this winter.

She won't have to go around wrapped in a gunny sack or nudged in a blanket, because coats, manufacturers have discovered, it's possible to make a smart, sturdy and practical winter coat at a price that won't shatter any girl's budget.

For considerably less than $50, a smart girl can find coats in handsome woollens and tweeds some even lined in fur-like fabric, to see her comfortably and fashionably through the winter.

Most popular coat of the season in any price range is the fur lined job. Many of these may be found at modest prices. But if you can't afford fur, you can get coats lined in simulated Persian lamb, leopard or beaver that look surprisingly like the real thing.

Another top hit is the untrimmed tweed or covert coat with zip-in lining. Wear it in fall or spring unlined. When the first snow falls, zip in the lining, and you're ready for zero weather.

The fur lined styles are smartest in three-quarter lengths and boxy cut. The full-length coats may be fitted or straight as you prefer. Some are cut on polo coat style, with full or half belts.

The fur-trimmed dress coat also is staging a large comeback this season. One reason is that it is not subject to the 20 per cent luxury tax which hikes the price of fur coats so steeply. Another is that it is a flattering and feminine style that was due for a comeback.

Whatever your budget, you can find your money's worth in a winter coat this year. It may take a lot of shopping, but if you put your mind to it, you'll find what you're looking for at the price you want to pay.

Lioness Has Eve Care Project

Often times when a child repeatedly brings home poor report cards it isn't because of stupidity or lack of application. Eye examinations in such cases may reveal that the child's trouble lies in poor eyesight.

The Lioness club of Klamath Falls is interested in helping children whose parents cannot afford to have eye examinations, or cannot buy glasses for their children. The club takes over, and provides care for the needs of these boys and girls.

In order to raise funds for the project, the Lioness club is sponsoring a rummage sale Friday and Saturday of this week in the room next to Leon's store on Main street. On Saturday the ladies will also have cooked food for sale.
