Leave It To Uncle?

By DEB ADDISON
The following remarks are addressed to those who have had their arms twisted and have agreed to work on the Klamath Community Chest drive...

WE have a steady expansion of government into welfare activities. I am not here criticizing the expansion of government welfare agencies...

From all this, many citizens ask themselves: For what reasons must we continue to support the voluntary agencies? WHY NOT LET THE GOVERNMENT DO IT ALL?

THE first short answer to this question is that you cannot retire from the voluntary field if you wish our American civilization to survive.

That is, around our churches, our professional societies, our women's organizations, our business, our labor and farmers' associations—and not least, our charitable institutions. That is the very nature of American life.

The inspirations of progress spring from these voluntary agencies, not from bureaucracy. If these voluntary activities were to be absorbed by government bureaus, this civilization would be over.

Something neither free nor noble would take its place. The very purpose of this Chest Fund is to keep voluntary action alive.

THE second answer to this question is that it is our privately-supported and managed hospitals and educational institutions that establish the standards for similar governmental agencies.

It is the voluntary institutions which are the spur to official progress. Without them our governmental and educational agencies will lag and will degenerate.

THE third answer to this question is that morals do not come from government. No government agency can create and sustain a system of morals.

There are a fourth answer. Governments and bureaucracies cannot build character in our youth. With the brutalization which is inevitable from war, revitalized character-building has never been as necessary as it is today.

Doctor Says
New Drugs Nip Mastoiditis

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
A hard pony protrusion lies back of the ear lobe. This is called the mastoid process. This bone is not completely solid but contains small pockets or cells of air known as mastoid cells.

Mastoiditis usually develops from the spread of infections from the middle ear which is a small cavity lying just behind the drum membrane.

Enter Sulfa Drugs
Since the discovery of the sulfa drugs and penicillin, the frequency of dangerous mastoiditis has dropped considerably.

In acute mastoiditis, the symptoms come principally from pressure of the infection and pus within the air cells.

Thanks to the new germ-attacking drugs, surgery is not required nearly as often as in the past.

QUESTION: I have a fibroid tumor and have had two miscarriages. Do you think I lost my babies because of the fibroid?

ANSWER: This is a definite possibility. Some women, however, do carry a baby to term successfully in spite of surprisingly large fibroids.

Grouse Feather Trips Hunters
YAKIMA, Oct. 26 (AP)—A tiny feather proved the undoing of a pair of Yakima hunters.

When James Layne handed a punch card to game department inspectors, a grouse feather dropped out. It led to discovery of three grouse in the hunting car of Layne and Clarence Patrick.

And now this fabric nightmare is on the way back. A girl who should know tells me:

SOMETIME last summer, in Waterbury, Connecticut, I said that Governor Chester Bowles of that state was, in ideas and methods, a socialist.

Unfortunately the Hartford editor was right, and the reason for his being right is the appalling and frightening ignorance even among the leaders of our people of the force of ideas, their impress upon unprepared and unformed minds, and the lack of resistance to them by a nation that enjoys freedom in a world that is rapidly losing it.

THE A.D.A. is a case in point. The organization—Americans for Democratic Action—was organized by those New Dealers who could not go along with Harry Truman when he became president of the United States.

THE A.D.A. is a case in point. The organization—Americans for Democratic Action—was organized by those New Dealers who could not go along with Harry Truman when he became president of the United States.

This organization is said to have 25,000 members, including Governor Bowles of Connecticut, Senator Humphrey of Minnesota, Herbert Lehman, candidate for the United States senate in New York, and Newbold Morris, candidate for mayor of New York.

On July 19 of this year, A.D.A. adopted as its program, higher wages, lower prices, more unemployment compensation and old age assistance, the Brannan farm plan and FEPC.

FOR, no matter how bitterly the social democrats hate the communists, their basic differences are not very great. They believe that socialism—or welfare as they now call it—should be achieved by slow stages without the "democratic" framework of the existing society.

But going back to the 1920's again is another thing. We can't hope for anything but the worst—because we went through that madness before.

Go back to the fig leaf of Eve or the bustle of Victoria's day. Wear anything ever tried in the long forgotten history of woman's struggle for style—a y-king but what you clothed yourself in during the mad, bad 1920's.

They call that the period of "The Lost Generation" and blame it on the disillusionment of the First World War. But it wasn't the men who were lost; it was the women.

Remember? If you don't, get out the family album and take a look. I know some families that keep their album on a high shelf for fear the children will turn to the pages pasted in during the 1920's—and be frightened into bits.

Remember now? Remember how the girls drove men out of their last refuge—the barber-shop—to get those close-cropped boyish bobs. Remember the short shapeless dresses, the hats that fitted like a shield?

Never have lovely ladies looked so awful, not even since they took up slacks. No wonder men slept in bathtubs wet with homemade gin or plunged on the stock market. They had been made desperate by the sight of what the women they loved had done to their ruinous beauty.

And now this fabric nightmare is on the way back. A girl who should know tells me:

That Gunnysack Look --- Is It on the Way Back?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Lady, say it is not so. Please say it isn't so, lady. Say it isn't true—this report that female fashions are going back to the 1920's for inspiration.

No, no, no! Not that! Anything else—not that. What have we done to deserve such eyeball punishment?

And it isn't even ourselves we're so worried about. It's you, lady. Why should you do it again?

Don't trade the "New Look" for the "Gunny" look. I'll sack look. I'll sack look. I'll sack look.

because it was novel. Every man was surprised to see it turn out better than he had feared.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Britain's socialist Prime Minister Attlee is in the uncomfortable position of the fellow who is damned if he does and damned if he doesn't.

This predicament arises from his daringly drastic experiment of devaluating the pound sterling in an effort to increase British exports and so bring the country out of its economic tail spin.

The formula accepted for this safeguard was to slash the government's budget of $7,240,000 (lb), which was heavily laden with socialist welfare projects and defense measures.

So the whole country was set for a fresh blast of the austerity which, ever since the start of the World War, has been riding John Bull like the Old Man of the Sea.

The terrific slash was only an eight per cent cut. This was such an anti-communist that the general public not only was surprised but was widely feared that the government program isn't drastic enough to meet one of the gravest economic crises the nation ever has experienced.

All the major newspapers, excepting the laborite Daily Herald of London, condemn the proposal as inadequate. Moreover the cuts aren't in keeping with the measures for which the nation had prepared itself.

"After ministers' measured warnings, the nation was braced, tensed, keyed-up for heroic shocks. They have not come. Once again the government has shirked an unpleasant duty and have run away from a grave situation."

Here are some interesting statistics about this year's World Series broadcasts.

Almost twenty-six million homes in the United States tuned in to the series broadcasts. This figure is the highest ever recorded in the series' history.

According to the Network Research department (MDL's), in conjunction with radio listener specialists Crossley, Inc., it was learned that 63.1 per cent of all home radios in the country were tuned into the coast-to-coast Mel Allen-Red Barber play-by-play, during one or more of the five games.

Average listener rating over the five game period was 77.9 per cent. The peak of listener interest occurred during the final game when 54.6 per cent of the nation's home radios were tuned to the baseball classic.

All I can say after reading these statistics is, it's a good thing that Marconi invented the radio. Or was it Philco?

For up to the present time no one has thought of a way for Gus Q. Pan to get his share of world series dollars.

According to a magazine article I read today, poor old Gus Q. comes teenth in line in obtaining the almost unobtainable. First in line are the commissioner's office, baseball clubs, minor leagues, celebrities, baseball players, and even newspaper reporters and columnists.

Poor old Gus! He doesn't stand a chance.

Kids, do you have problem parents. If you do, then listen to ABC's woman's program, "Nancy Craig," at 9:15 tomorrow morning on LW.

Guest starring on the program will be Dr. W. W. Bauer, author of "Stop Annoying Your Children." He will discuss "Problem Parents."

Dr. Bauer, who claims he speaks on authority since he is the father of three children, is director of the Bureau of Health Education of the American Medical Association, and associate editor of "Hygeia."

United Nations Gets Pat On Back from U.S. Public

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 26—A considerable amount of public goodwill was cemented along with the stone and mortar into the cornerstone of the United Nations building when it was laid on Monday.

The general opinion of the American people about the U.N., judging by interviews just completed in a national survey, is favorable.

Although many think that it is not strong enough, or, to phrase it in the vernacular, that "it would be swell if you can get it to work."

In anticipation of Monday's ceremonies, the American Institute of Public Opinion put this question before a balanced cross-section of the nation's adults:

"What is your opinion of the United Nations organization?" Here is the vote: General approval, wonderful, good 42%; Qualified approval—good but not strong enough yet 19%; Disapproval—failure, weak, worthless, all talk 19%; No opinion 20%.

The 80 per cent who voiced an opinion were then asked a somewhat more specific question about the United Nations, as follows: "Do you think the United Nations has done a good job or a poor job in trying to settle world problems?"

The proportion who gave favorable replies closely matches the number expressing approval of the U.N. in answer to the first question: Good job 77%; Fair job 30%; Poor job 17%; No opinion 4%.

If Russia Pulls Out
Surveys in previous years have shown substantial sentiment in favor of taking all possible steps to strengthen the United Nations to make it a more powerful force in international affairs.

Critics of the U.N. have pointed out, however, that it would be difficult to strengthen the organization so long as the veto power exists and is used so extensively by Russia; and that if Russia were to pull out of the U.N. it would no longer be worth strengthening since it would no longer be a world organization.

But the extent of public desire to make the U.N. a more powerful force in world affairs can be seen by the fact that a substantial majority want to see it strengthened even if Russia were to withdraw from membership.

Note the vote on the following question: "Do you think the United Nations should be made into a stronger organization and have more power than it has now if Russia and her satellites (nations under her control) should drop out?"

Should 82%; No opinion 8%; No opinion 10%.
