Goose-Hunting More Attractive to Cordon Now Than Politics

By HALE SCARBROUGH

Guy Cordon was in Klamath Falls this morning "getting his feet back on the ground" after 10 hectic months in Washington.

The Roseburg republican, member of the U. S. senate since 1944, arrived in town early this morning from Salem where he spoke at a convention of Oregon GOP clubs.

He had breakfast at the Oscar Kittredge home on N. 3rd and later today was to go over to the Kittredge MC ranch in Warner valley for some goose-hunting. Dan J. Boyle, retired Massachusetts commissioner of labor and industry, and Mr. and Mrs. Vic McKenzie of Carmel, Calif., were also in the party.

No Politics
The senator is not on a political trip — his current term runs until 1954 — and his visit with a reporter for The Herald and News at breakfast was more conversational than political.

He touched, however, on a few items of senatorial interest, including CVA. Mon Wallgren of Washington and Robert Taft of Ohio.

Against CVA
As for the Columbia valley authority, the proposal for federal management of electrical power and silted resources of the Columbia river which probably will be a giant issue in congressional elections in Oregon next year, Cordon again put himself down as against the present proposal.

He said that, in due course, CVA legislation should come before the congress sometime next year but that he hoped it would get an unfavorable committee report and "just languish." Cordon is a CVA foe and expects CVA to become the great talking point for the democrats next year.

Senator Cordon agreed with the sentiments passed by Congressman Lowell Stockman in an earlier local interview that Ohio's Robert Taft is one of the most — if not the most — able men in the senate and declared he thought the voters of Ohio would return Taft to the senate next year.

Taft vs. Labor
Taft, generally regarded as the actual head man of the GOP nationally and a probable presidential candidate in 1952, is the object of all-stops-out opposition from organized labor.

As for Mon Wallgren, former Washington state governor and senator and crony of President Truman, Cordon is eloquent in his opposition. He termed Wallgren—a former billiards champ, a "fellow who ought to be in a billiard room than in an important administrative job." Cordon helped block Wallgren's appointment as chairman of the national security resources board, a post the Roseburg republican said was one of the most important administrative positions in the world, dealing with the security of 140,000,000 people, and also opposed Wallgren for appointment to the federal power commission, although the latter appointment went through.

Tired
Those and other subjects were touched upon around the breakfast table, between bites of ham and eggs, but it was obvious Cordon was physically tired from the long session of congress and was looking forward to a few days' relaxation on the MC ranch.

"What I want to do now it train my shotgun on a honker and see if I can bring him down," the senator sighed, "one of those big ones that make the ground shake when they hit."

CIO Probing Suspected Red Leainers

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5 (AP)—The CIO's executive board called in left wing nominees for posts on the board today to face charges they are ineligible under the amended CIO constitution, because of pro-communist leanings.

Under Fire
Nine union chiefs are under fire. Their nominations for the board were referred to the board at the closing session of the convention yesterday, to determine whether they could pass the new eligibility clause of the constitution. The clause bars from the board members of the communist party or any who were influenced by the communist program.

Eight of the nine appeared before the board to defend themselves. Absent at the start of the meeting was Joseph Selly, president of the tiny American Communications association.

400,000 People Paid More for Their Cars than a Cadillac Costs!

You will probably find it difficult to believe the statement which appears above as the headline for this message. But records indicate that it is true, nevertheless.

The reason for this is found in a surprising fact: There are eight other motor car manufacturers who produce certain models which actually cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac.

Approximately four hundred thousand of these higher-priced models have been produced and sold in the post-war era. Undoubtedly, a great many of the people who bought these cars did so because Cadillacs were not available at the time they wanted delivery—a situation now happily being remedied. But it is doubtless true that many owners of these higher-priced cars don't realize what they did.

Cadillac has such a wonderful world-wide reputation for goodness and quality that many who can afford it mistakenly conclude it is beyond their means. So they pay the price of a Cadillac—and don't get a Cadillac.

We don't believe you would want that to happen to you. So we suggest that you come in and let us give you the actual delivered price here in this community for a Cadillac Sixty-one, equipped exactly as you want it. Let that be your economic yardstick as you select your car.

Bear in mind, too, that a Cadillac is an economical car to own, as well as a reasonable car to buy. Its freedom from the need of repairs is sensational. It gives gasoline mileage which actually approaches that of the lowest-priced popular cars. And it lasts so long that its full life-span has never been measured.

Better come in today and get the whole Cadillac story. If you pay for a Cadillac, we think you will want to make sure that you get one.
