

Tenth Anniversary To Be Observed

Girls' Friendly Society Week will be observed nationally November 6 to 12. It is the oldest national girls' organization in the country, being organized in 1879. The headquarters are in New York City. Girls have fun belonging, and through friendship and doing things together know that it means something to be a GFSSer.

Although the Girls' Friendly Society is an organization of the Episcopal church it welcomes girls of every race and faith, girls of every type and interest, and has groups in cities and in rural areas from Maine to California and even over in the Philippines. Its activities include a well rounded program which includes the educational, physical, spiritual and social activities of girls from 7 to 21.

Ancestor Study, Subject of Meeting

"How to Find Your Ancestors" is the subject to be discussed by Mrs. William D. Foster at the regular meeting of the Eulalia chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, next Monday evening, November 7, at the Fremont school. The meeting will be on the second floor in either the library or art rooms.

Members having books on family history, county history, or genealogical magazines, are asked to bring the same to the meeting or at least to bring a list of what they have in this line. The object is to learn what material is available, in addition to the genealogical library now owned by the chapter.

Mrs. Syd Evans, vice-regent, will preside in the absence of the regent, Mrs. Harry Dickerson, who is in the Klamath Valley hospital with a fractured knee.

Pinocle Played

Mrs. Dorothy Hamstreet entertained the Eagles auxiliary last Tuesday at the Hamstreet home, 2124 Eberlein street.

The group played pinocle with Mrs. Francis Herbert winning first prize, and Mrs. Matilda Crapo, second.

Present for the evening were Mrs. Vivian Annen of Salem, Mrs. Marie Bales, Mrs. Lorna Groves, and Mrs. Marie Kilgore.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Fine Concert Played Thursday

By ROBERT H. STEVENS

Combine a superb talent, a tall, handsome youth and a few Moeller organ, and one is in for an extraordinary experience.

Richard Ellsasser's concert at the Zion Lutheran church Thursday night was extraordinary in every respect.

His performance last night equaled any organ playing the writer has had the privilege of hearing and that covers a few of the great ones including Widor, DeLamarter, Christian and many others.

His opening number was Variations De Concert by Joseph Bonet. He played it with a brilliance that set the pace for the entire program. The piece is of the French-modern school and it gave every opportunity to show off the artist's technical skill.

Flute Solo by Thomas A. Arne was exquisitely played. While in a lighter vein, it showed remarkable ability in shading and phrasing.

Then came the Bach group, Fugue La Gigue which is, of course, a dance form which Ellsasser developed as "just that." He brought out the rhythmic patterns more vividly than most players of Bach—most of them seem to make Bach very ponderous even in his lighter moods—and gave the composition a gay, dancing lightness that was delightful.

The fourth Trio Sonata in E Minor and the Tocata and Fugue in D Minor rounded out the Bach portion of the program.

The music of Johann Sebastian Bach is unquestionably the final word among organists but it can be very dull to the listener unless the performer happens to be a Richard Ellsasser. While the works he performed were occasionally a little startling because of his bright, crisp interpretation—this was especially true in the Tocata and Fugue in D Minor—he gave them something that was lovely to listen to and confirmed the acclaim given him by the metropolitan newspapers. If more organists would look to Mr. Ellsasser for a few hints on playing Bach audiences would respond more enthusiastically toward this great composer's works.

The second part of the program opened with a Rondo in G by John Bull. In this there could be no doubt in anyone's mind that the pipe organ is the king of all instruments. Mr. Ellsasser's playing of this was little short of breathtaking.

An improvisation on a theme submitted by Andrew Loney Jr. concluded the program. There is room for doubt as to the entertainment value of this particular type of musical skill.

For encores, Mr. Ellsasser played a gay little ditty based on Pop Goes the Weasel, which, if not great music, contained all of the elements that are always sure-fire amusement.

For a final gesture he played the great Largo by Handel which made a fitting climax to an evening of organ music.

He was handicapped last night by a chilly audience who were probably under the impression that a church is not the place for enthusiasm. We have reason to believe that the artist felt this chill and as a result responded in kind, here and there during his program.

Nova Jean Workman Married in Medford

Miss Nova Jean Workman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Workman, 2837 Altamont drive, became the bride of Mr. Douglas Gaines of Medford on Saturday, October 15. The groom is the son of Mrs. Russel Kerman and Mr. C. D. Gaines of Oakland, Calif.

The Rev. U. O. Reeder read the evening ceremony in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil L. Parks in Medford before an arch banked with flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a silver colored satin dress with pink accessories, and carried a large bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Shirley Workman, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, and wore a gown of ice blue satin with white accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Musical portions were rendered by Mrs. Doris Benedict and George Willis.

Mr. Jack Pearson of Klamath Falls was best man for the groom.

The reception, immediately following the ceremony, was also in the Parks home. Mrs. Theodore Workman, Mrs. Doris Benedict, and Mrs. Virgil Parks assisted with the reception.

The couple left after the reception, en route to Carmel, Calif., and are now at home in Medford.

Color Slides Shown

Orions met in regular session Tuesday evening, October 22 in the Methodist church parlors.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Gus Haglund, Mrs. Eldred Putman, Mrs. Paul Deller, and Mrs. J. L. Wright.

Halloween decorations were about the rooms and on the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Beull Ward were guests of the evening and delighted the group by showing color slides of western national parks.

It was decided to dress dolls for the firemen at the November meeting.

After a community sing, lunch was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Beull Ward, Mrs. Lamarr Jensen, Mrs. J. R. Holstendahl, Mrs. T. D. Kenter, Mrs. Fred Biehn, Mrs. Harold Braden, Mrs. Charles Carlson, Mrs. Dexter Elliot, Mrs. H. M. Faulkner, Mrs. S. Charles Finch, Mrs. Robert Faus, Mrs. Fay Garrison, Mrs. A. E. Gross, Mrs. L. Library Notes

SOME NEW BOOKS OF POETRY

Do you like poetry? The city library has some books of verse which would like to travel a little before being retired to their permanent home in the 811's where we virtually say "Requiescat in pace." Hence this hint that you might find something here to interest you.

To begin, we have new copies of Chaucer, Scott, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats, Kipling, and popular favorites like Edgar Guest and Robert Service, with which we are filling gaps so that old, loved poems may be available. There are also new biographies of Chaucer and Tennyson, and Lowell's excellent study of the verse of Coleridge, "The Road to Xanadu."

Two good recent anthologies are "The London Book of English Verse," a collection of lyrics similar to the old "Golden Treasury," and a fine religious collection called "Masterpieces of Religious Verse."

One is often depressed by the baffling method and dark tone of modern verse. Yet dipping in, you will nearly always find something to stir mind, imagination, and spirit. Take that eerie little book by Elizabeth Coatsworth called "The Creaking Stair." Here are the weird fears and shadowy moods of children and of lonely, hemmed-in lives impres-

Interesting Topic To Be Discussed

Delta Gamma chapter of Delphians will hold its regular meeting next Tuesday, November 8, at 9:45 a. m. in the parlors of the First Methodist church.

The subject discussed is "Marriage and Divorce."

Mrs. F. W. Peak will talk on "Basis on which Neurosis Rests," Mrs. Dean Osborn on "Neurotic Manifestations," Mrs. U. S. Balentine on "Marriage-List of Mortality," and Mrs. Walter Beane, "Conquering Enemies of Marriage."

Mr. L. Orth Staunton, local attorney, will address the chapter on the subject of the day, "Marriage and Divorce."

Members are urged to be present, and to bring a guest.

Mrs. Albert Zenger will be leader for the day.

Handwork Done

Mrs. R. H. Anderson, Merrill road, entertained twelve members of the Art Needlework club Wednesday afternoon at her lovely country home. The afternoon was spent in friendly conversation and artistic pieces of needlework were being fashioned by the members who are gifted in this handwork.

At 4 o'clock refreshments were served at tables decorated with autumn foliage. Mrs. Wilbur A. Jones, 203 High street, will entertain the club Wednesday, November 16.

MRS. EINAR BRANDSNES made arrangements for the tea given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lamott and family, last Sunday afternoon, who are leaving for Walla Walla, Wash., soon. Mrs. Brandsness serves Mrs. Lamott and son Bruce, Mr. Lamott, Jaimee and Jimmy Lamott. —Guderian.

Lamotts Honored With Reception

A farewell party will be held for the Bob Lamott family at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the music room at the Altamont junior high school.

The party is under the sponsorship of the Peace Memorial Presbyterian church. All friends are invited and each family that attends is asked to bring either an apple or a pumpkin pie.

Mrs. Einar Brandsness was chairman of the affair, which was attended by over 200 friends and parents of Boy Scouts.

Mrs. Bob Robertson and Mrs. Brandsness presented the couple with a silver service on behalf of the Boy Scout office here.

In charge of arrangements for the tea table, which was decorated with harvest fruits and vegetables, were Mrs. Kenneth Kiahn, Mrs. John Houston, and Mrs. Arnold Gralapp.

Pouring were Mrs. Chet Hamaker, Mrs. Paul Tanner, Mrs. Charles Bailey, Mrs. Robert Robertson, and Mrs. John Rafetto Sr. Mrs. Lou Miller passed the guest book.
