

Oregon GOPs' Policy Help Requested

An invitation to rank and file members of the Republican party to participate in policy forming for the republican party through their county organizations was issued today by State Chairman Sig Unander of Portland.

Representative Rude Wilhelm of Portland, chairman of the state policy committee, emphasizes that the desires and opinions of republicans in all parts of the state would be reflected in the comprehensive policy report. "Neither I nor the executive committee of the state committee have commitments or fixed notions in connection with the mission of this committee," Representative Wilhelm declared.

Policy Committee

Members appointed to the policy committee are Oscar Klittridge, a Lake and Klamath county rancher who has taken an active part in reclamation affairs; Jess Gard, treasurer of Interstate Tractor company and civic leader; Oscar Hogz of Reedville, prominent dairyman; Mrs. Lamar Toose, active in League of Women Voters; Freeman Holmer, associate professor of political science at Willamette university; Henry F. Cabell, member of the state board of higher education; Mrs. Frederic Young, active in PTA; Mrs. Charles A. Mockmore, former dean of women at Oregon State college; Leslie M. Ross, Deschutes county deputy assessor; Mark Hatfield, assistant professor of political science at Willamette university and chairman of the policy committee for the Young Republican Federation; John Niedermeyer of Medford, active Granger; Senator Philip S. Hitchcock of Klamath Falls; Senator Paul L. Patterson of Hillsboro, and Representative Gust Anderson of Portland.

Mission

The mission of this committee will be to report in final detail to a meeting of the state central committee, at which legislators and others will be present, a specific program which will serve as the program for the republican party of the state in the 1950 primary and general elections.

lower wages and widespread unemployment?

I HOPE you won't misunderstand me.

I'm not arguing against what we call direct relief—by which it meant money that is paid to those who have no jobs, who have no unemployment compensation coming, who have no bonds saved up AND ARE HUNGRY.

I believe without reservation that people who are jobless, hungry and cold MUST BE FED, HOUSED AND CARED FOR. If that isn't done, our boasted modern mechanical civilization will break down and come to an end.

BUT why is it that in boom years of full employment and labor scarcity our direct relief payments are SO MUCH HIGHER than in years of depression and lack of employment?

Unless we can find the answer to that question, it seems to me that we are headed for bad trouble in the years that are to come.

FENCING OF THE GOVERNMENT canal proved a well attended meeting last night when Coodrich W. Lineweaver, right, director of operations and maintenance of the USBR, suggested various steps for interested persons to take in the project. Left is Garry Lindley of Sacramento, USBR regional supervisor, and center, Mrs. Robert McDonald, chairman of the fencing committee.

Canal Fence Cooperative Venture, Lineweaver Says

By DAVID UNDERHILL

Goodrich W. Lineweaver, director of operations and maintenance of the bureau of reclamation, informed a public assembly at the city hall last night there are two possible approaches to solution of the canal fencing project.

Lineweaver stated it was likely some program could be agreed upon which the reclamation bureau could present to the budget bureau in Washington and thence to congress for action.

Other Step

The other step recommended by the director was that the people of this community prevail upon their senators and representatives in Washington to introduce in congress special legislation authorizing expenditure of funds for the project.

Lineweaver remarked also that although this latter step is not necessary, it is preferable.

In his opening remarks Lineweaver said the bureau considered the Klamath recreation project as one of its prize developments ranking at the top as a successful project. He added that the bureau's position was to assist project water users and be of service to people in towns served by reclamation projects.

Open Forum

After these remarks the meeting was open to the public so that views of the community on the project could be presented to the director.

Mrs. Robert McDonald, chairman of an all-women's canal fencing committee, informed the meeting that their purpose in promoting the fencing was to curb danger to children.

She stated that since the canal was built in 1907, 41 children and five adults have drowned in its waters. This information, she remarked, was obtained with the aid of Dr. Seth M. Kerron, Klamath county health officer.

Another member of the committee, Mrs. James L. Brown, told of an incident in which a two-year-old child of Mrs. Don Curtis had slipped into the canal, but was fortunately saved.

Won't Pay

A representative of the Klamath irrigation district, Bill Ganong, said that although the district is in favor of the fencing project, it was opposed to being saddled with costs

Recreation Takes Over Teen-agers

The Klamath Falls city recreation committee, through Recreation Director Sam Smith, today announced it had accepted the Teen-Age program for the coming year.

For the past year a movement has been under way to transfer activities of the Teen-Agers to the reclamation committee due to lack of funds to hire a full time director. This, and the loss of a meeting place, has made it necessary for those interested in the Teen-Age club, to look elsewhere for leadership.

Restrictions

Smith announced action taken late Tuesday by the recreation committee, has now placed Teen-Age activities in that group's hands. Smith said, however, that there were three restrictions.

The committee will accept the management only.

The committee will not be responsible "now or at any future time for providing quarters or funds for this program."

The recreation committee will have final authority in making all decisions on fact and policy.

The fund will continue to be raised as one of the Klamath County Community Chest agencies.

Why Necessary

Smith said that the committee has found it necessary to impose the three restrictions because the lease on property used by the Teen-Age club through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Oliver is no longer available; finances of the Teen-Age group without assistance from the chest are not sufficient and the recreation department budget is obligated for several years to come; the Teen-Age council, after three years' operation, believes that a program without a center will more nearly answer our responsibility to this age group.

The winter program, as supervised in the future by the recreation committee, will include chaperoned dances, skating parties, ski jaunts and after-game parties. Most indoor affairs will be held in the army, Smith said.

division was announced yesterday when Sam Smith, chairman of the government and education division, reported that Leigh Ackerman will supervise solicitation of city employees, Wally Hector will contact county workers, Gomer Caseman and William Tinsley will press for gifts from federal employees. Buel Ward will handle solicitation in city schools while Robert Smith contacts faculty and students at Oregon Technical Institute and Chairman Smith said he would ride herd on state employees personally.

Attendance Urged

Bulletins were mailed yesterday to all campaign workers throughout the city and county urging full attendance at the Monday noon report meeting. Campaign Chairman Chet Hamaker said. The bulletins stressed the importance of "doing the job now so we can have an outstanding total posted on the report board at noon Monday."

Hamaker has promised all his co-workers that the report meetings this year will be "short and snappy" and he said he will expect every worker to attend each of the four meetings.

The life of an adult worker bee during the active summer is about six weeks.

Quiet Session For Tulelake City Council

TULELAKE — A quiet council session was on the docket Monday night with about the only momentous news being the announcement that Gordon Jacobs, Siskiyou county supervisor had ordered culvert pipe for the irrigation ditch at the south entrance to town that will replace the broken-down bridge now in use.

County repair of this approach to Tulelake which is at the junction of highway 139 and the East-West county road is assured with the county to assume responsibility also for the railroad track crossing on authorization of the SP. No immediate realignment of the approach is planned but hazards will be removed.

Airport Site OK'd

The council also adopted a resolution approving a new application for a land site for the proposed airfield at Nesell.

A previous application was denied by the bureau of reclamation which has jurisdiction over the land near Nesell where much preliminary work had been done toward establishment of a field after local residents believed that the landing
