

Turkey Shoot To Be Held At Dorris

The Dorris Lions' club is holding a turkey and pheasant shoot at the Butte Valley Riflemen's club and shooting grounds just north of Dorris at the foot of the Dorris hill, Sunday.

Funds over and above the cost of putting on the shoot go to civic improvements. Shooting time is from 11 a. m. to sundown.

Each contestant is to provide his own gun and ammunition. Squads using iron sights and those using telescope sights will be set up separately. Large rifles, 22 rifles and pistols will all be shot on separate squads. Marksmanship alone will not always be a requisite to winning, as some targets will win on a scrambled target bases.

Plenty of turkeys are available as are pheasants. Pheasants are being made available through the courtesy of Cal-Ore Tavern pheasant farms.

An effort will be made to segregate expert marksmen from the average shooter.

Clover Crops Boost Farm Incomes

Clover seed production this year in the Klamath basin is expected to pass the two million pounds mark and amount to an income near a million dollars, according to information released by the county agent's office.

Cleaning operations are still progressing on this year's harvest of Alsike clover.

Clover has replaced alfalfa as the soil building legume in the Klamath basin because with clover there is no need of livestock as is usually required by alfalfa legumes.

Rotase

Farmers plant potato fields in clover for a year or two and then return to potato crops with the soil rebuilt and more developed.

Of course bees are needed with the clover fields to pollinate the clover heads but wild bees and tame ones are available for that job.

In 1931 there was only a $15,000 income from clover producers in this area, but in 1947, the income amounted to $1,872,400.

Last year's crop brought in over a million dollars but was under the all time high crop of '47.

Sales of clover seed this year are from 15 to 20 per cent greater than normal sales reports. Clover seed is shipped all over the U. S. where it is used to blend with other clover seed because of its high quality. Because of this high quality higher prices prevail for Klamath basin clover seed.

Potato Growers Meet Tonight

Proposed legislation which would provide marketing quotas for potato growers and also provide severe penalties for excess production will be discussed at a joint meeting of Klamath and Tulelake growers.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the recreation building at Merrill park. All potato growers and processors are invited to attend.

Henley Plans Band Uniforms Benefit

A dance and card party, sponsored by the Henley PTA to raise funds for purchase of new uniforms for the Henley high school band, is scheduled for Saturday night at the Henley gym and the public is invited to participate.

During the past year the Henley PTA, which boasts 237 members, has purchased playground equipment, indoor games and a projector for the grade school, assisted in purchase of two band instruments for the school, and sweat shirts for the basketball team.
