Flat Harmonica Exchanged

WASHINGTON, (P)—Richard E. Volland, 19, bought a harmonica. Some of the notes sounded flat to him so he took it back. The store wouldn't do anything about it. Volland went to court.

Judge George D. Nelson requested him to play the harmonica. He did. Judge Nelson said it sounded pretty bad.

"Let's have another try," he said. Volland obliged. The judge said it still sounded bad. He gave the store two weeks to make good, or else.
