

Committee Plan Seeks Columbia River Basin's 'Orderly Development'

LEWISTON, Idaho, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Columbia basin inter-agency committee gave its tentative approval last night to a 15-point program calling for the "orderly development, use and management of land and water resources of the Pacific Northwest."

Gov. C. A. Robins of Idaho moved adoption of the plan which he described as an "important milestone in relationships between the states and federal agencies."

- Points
- In brief, the plan calls for:
    1. Coordinated development and conservation of land and water resources as an essential part of hydro-electric, navigation and flood control activities in the Columbia river watershed.
    2. Development and improvement of land by irrigation, drainage and clearing.
    3. Rehabilitation of damaged lands "within economical limits."
    4. Protection and development of scenic and recreational areas.

Final action on the proposal will be taken at the end of 60 days. During the interval, copies will be circulated to "test public reaction," according to Herbert M. Peet, committee chairman.

Earlier yesterday, Peet, who also is Western representative for the department of agriculture, announced that group would begin a two-

Black and White Snow Falls!

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Residents marveled when they got the snow forecasters promise for Western Pennsylvania last night.

The weather bureau hadn't said anything about it being black. A torrent of soot flakes blanketed the downtown area for fifteen minutes. Police, who are still investigating, said they were unable to trace the source of the nuisance. Oh, yes—they got a few flurries of the white stuff this morning.

Highway Collision Kills Man

PENDLETON, Ore., Nov. 17 (AP)—Fred McClure, 23, was killed last night in a truck-auto collision at the Reith junction west of here. The victim was an operator at the Pendleton airport control tower.

Oregon state patrol officers said the truck was driven by William Harrison Turner, a driver for the Olympia Milk company of Olympia. He was reported "scratched and bruised."

Cause of the accident was not known.

Bronchial Tubes Yield Bell

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17 (AP)—Little Catherine D'Imperio no longer is a human carillon. The tiny bell she swallowed has been removed from her bronchial tubes.

Four days ago, the 10-month-old Morrisville, Pa., girl swallowed the small bell which she had taken out of one of her toy animals.

Doctors at nearby Abington Memorial hospital discovered the bell had become lodged in her bronchial tubes and yesterday with the aid of a bronchoscope, Dr. William A. Lell took it out.
