

WE TOOK A GROOM-TO-BE, who is also a son and a brother, on a shopping tour along Klamath Falls' Main street and this is what he found. The subject is Dave Underhill, night deskman at The Herald and News, who was doing his first bit of photorial acting.

1—Dave looks over a suede jacket for his Lady Love. 2—Tired of all this shopping rigamarole and wondering how he'd look in a feathered bonnet. 3—Dave is interested in cooking and considers a cookbook for the Little Woman. 4—What's this? It turns out to be a new fangled can opener and a roast clamp. 5—Dave discusses the all-important diamond with Carol Baker. 6—This is what it will be like next Christmas, Dave sighs. 7—An electric range is a "must" in any young householder's set-up. 8—And dishes, too, Dave observes. 9—Mmmm—sweet-smelling soap for the teen-age sister. 10—Mother and Dad would certainly enjoy Klamath wild plum jam for Christmas morning. 11—Christmas jewelry was found by Dave in a wide array. 12—And he has to send out some Christmas cards.

"The Night Before Christmas"

Theme of The Herald and News third annual Christmas edition is taken from the beloved poem, "The Night Before Christmas." On the cover, David, Martha Marie and Andy Jim, young children of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ragland of Tulelake, await the arrival of St. Nicholas on the lovely stairway at Anabaglish, home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Collier of Pine Grove. The paternal grandmother is Mrs. U. S. Ragland of San Francisco. The three youngsters cooperated beautifully in their interpretation of the theme.
