Dog Packs Arouse Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Dec. 7 (AP)—Roving packs of dogs have aroused Fairbanks residents this week. There's plenty of sympathy for them. But no dog catcher. Nobody wants the job.

Feeling mounted when a five-year-old kindergarten child was attacked by five dogs. The child was unharmed physically, but the animals tore at the youngster's heavy winter clothes.

A truck driver rescued her. Besides the quarry posed by the scarcity of dog catchers, the city points out there's no place to put the dogs, even if they are caught.
